A Great Woman Dead.
A German Puzzle.
Look Up at the Swan.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MME. CURIE, with her husband, co-discoverer of radium, is dead, after winning the Nobel prize twice, the only person ever to be thus honored.

Mme. Curie's work answers doubting gentlemen who wonder "whether a woman's intellect can equal that of a man." It is believed that Mme. Curie's death may have been hastened by the effects of constant radiations, to which she was exposed in her work.

The ordinary feeble human brain, male or female, cannot understand what the word radium means. You admire a human engineer whose machine will run for twenty years, with moderate care and repairing. At the end of twenty years, the best machines are worn out.

Consider the engineering skill locked up in radium. One gram of radium costs $50,000, which seems a good deal of money. But that radium will continue throwing out energy for two thousand years, and then be only half exhausted.

The cost of using the radium-engine would be about one cent for twenty days, or eighteen and one-quarter cents per year. That is indeed "cheap and efficient power production," energy inconceivable for one-twentieth of a cent per day of 24 hours.

NEWS FROM Germany this day is difficult to understand. If the Nazi government is not entirely silly, why should it offend sentiment and decency by stopping the funeral of General von Schleicher and his wife, included among victims of recent political massacres?

Why should it order cremation of the body of Dr. Erich Klausener, leader of the Catholic Action Society, another victim? Cremation is forbidden by the Catholic church, and to compel the cremation of a prominent Catholic is most offensive to millions of German Catholics.

A number of the so-called Nazi "traitors" are alleged to have stood before the firing squad, eyes not bandaged, crying out at the last moment:

"I am innocent; heil, Hitler."

Why, "Heil, Hitler!" by whose order they were dying, seems difficult to explain, but that sort of thing is not new.

You may learn from Waliszewski's history of Ivan the Terrible that numbers of men, tortured to death by order of the most horrible monster, died praying for "the Holy Czar Ivan."

THE BRITISH know how to collect money due them. Germany announced a moratorium. She would not pay interest or principal to the British and and others. The British issued a few threats and one ultimatum, "with teeth in it." What the teeth were is not known yet, but Germany changed her mind, and instead of paying nothing to England for six months, immediately promises to pay "full interest in sterling during the next six months to British holders of Dawes and Young loan bonds."

It is said the United States will now "press for a similar settlement." The United States probably will not get it, for this country is not taken seriously abroad, except as a LENDING nation. When it comes to collecting, we are asked PLEASE to remember that we remind everybody of Shylock, and ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

JUST NOW, in the "summer milky way," the swarm of stars just above your head, you may see the "cygnus cloud," or the "swan," just above your head a little to the north. Individual specks of light in the cloud are giant suns, many infinitely bigger than our own sun.

Mr. Walter Baade, boss of the one hundred-inch telescope at the Carnegie Institute, Mount Wilson Observatory, sees, through the cloud, spiral nebulae, "outside universes," turning slowly "like enormous Fourth of July pinwheels."

The milky way itself, in which our sun looks like a faint speck of light, seen from other solar systems, is believed to be turning also, another cosmic pinwheel.

The beautiful "swan," which you may see tonight if the sky is clear, is more than fifty quadrillion miles from the earth, or, in accurate figures, 50,496,000,000,000,000 miles. The light that strikes your eye when you see the "swan" has been traveling through space for more than eight thousand years, and light travels more than six trillions of miles in a year.

Bride Awarded Divorce, Mate Keeps His Dogs

$100 A MONTH SPENT ON PETS

Pretty Anna Marie McGuire, 23, has her divorce and Franklin McGuire, 29, has his dogs.

Judge Thomas M. Mashall granted the young wife her decree today on her charges that her husband, a quarry official, mistreated her while spending $100 a month for the care of his pets.

The McGuires were wed last September and enjoyed a $1,000 honeymoon before his dogs upset their domestic tranquility, three months later.

McGuire lives at 1407 Beechwood boulevard. Mrs. McGuire lives at 5857 Douglass street. She was represented by O. K. Eaton.

Rifle in Mail Bag Wounds Workman

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 6.—(AP.)—The "mysterious explosion" in a mail pouch that wounded a mail handler at the New York Central terminal last night, was said by postal authorities today to have been caused by the accidental discharge of a loaded rifle in the bag.

A small caliber rifle, packed in a traveling bag with some clothes, discharged when it was dropped on the floor. Patrick Breene, 28, was wounded in the neck. The rifle and clothes had been mailed by a veterinary to his son.

Cool Spell on Way To Rout Hot Wave

A cool spell in the wake of predicted thundershowers will displace the heat wave and topple the mercury to the lower sixties by Sunday morning, Observer W. S. Brotzman predicted today.

Temperatures in the forties were reported from the Dakotas, with frost and 42 degrees recorded at Williston, N. D. While no such temperature will prevail here, the heat will be ousted for a few days at least. Late today the mercury had reached 90.

TURNER LAYS PITT OUSTER TO MELLON

Social Legislation Campaign Blamed For Dismissal

Blaming his ouster on "businessmen trustees" and persons linked with the "Mellon-Grundy machine," Dr. Ralph E. Turner, deposed associate professor of history at the University of Pittsburgh, was the center of a rapidly developing storm of resentment today.

An investigation of the ousting of liberal faculty members at Pitt will be made if the next Legislature is Democratic, State Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence declared.

Commenting on Dr. Turner's dismissal, Lawrence said:

"The people of Pennsylvania have contributed many millions through the state treasury to the upkeep of this institution. The federal government too has advanced several hundred thousand dollars to pay for its enlargement.

"Institutions which seek to punish those advocating the New Deal in economics and social relationships have no right to support from public funds."

LEAGUE PLANS PROTEST

The Pennsylvania League for Social Justice was expected to discuss Dr. Turner's dismissal at its scheduled monthly meeting tonight. This group, closely allied with the Security League, of which Dr. Turner was former state chairman, was expected to lodge

Marie Dressler Clinging to Life

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 6.—(INS.)—"Unchanged—resting quietly" was the word that went out again today from the palatial "cottage" on the C. W. Billings estate where Marie Dressler is waging her most desperate battle.

Although physicians conceded the beloved 62-year-old actress may live for days, even weeks, there is no hope that she will regain her health or return to the screen.

Joshia C. Thaw Sues For Refund in Tax

Joshia Copley Thaw, prominent Pittsburgher, filed suit in Federal Court today to recover $7,831.70 he claims was overcharged in income tax in 1929 and 1930. The suit alleges he was overcharged $6,376.44 in 1929 and $1,455.26 in 1930.

McNair Battles Tolls; Millions From PWA Ready

Mayor McNair today raised a vociferous voice against that portion of the Allegheny County Authority's $24,500,000 building program which centers within the city boundaries.

Irritated because the Authority had not asked his permission to spend some of the Federal Government's loan in the city, the Mayor stormed against the proposed toll ramp on the Liberty Tubes. He threatened:

"There will not be a pick sunk . . . without my permission.

"If they take a steam shovel over there and start to work I'll have the police dump it in the river.

"The County Commissioners had better come to my office; I want to see them. There will be no tolls in Pittsburgh as long as I am Mayor. They'll have to get me out first . . . I know the law."

PLANS PROCEED

However, plans proceeded with comparative smoothness.

$250,000 GEMS SEIZED BY 5

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 6.—(AP.)—Five bandits, whose menacing automatics and machine gun contrasted sharply with their summer sports toggery held up the Hodgson Kennard & Co. jewelry store here today and escaped with gems estimated between $25,000 and $500,000.

Leaving Charles A. Orcutt, manager of the store, which is located in the fashionable Magnolia section of this North Shore city, bound and gagged, as were four others in the place, they fled in two cars.

The shop had not yet opened for business on what was to have been its first day of the summer season. The bandits made their entrance through the adjoining living quarters of Orcutt and his wife, where, in addition to the Orcutts, they surprised Robert R. Hodgson, son of a partner in the firm, Edward Davis and Jessie Goddered, a Negro maid.

Clash Over Night Disturbance Fatal

READING, Pa., July 6.—(AP.)—A quarrel with a neighbor over loud talking at night is given by police as the cause for the death of Homer Oliver, 25, in a hospital.

Oliver asked the neighboring family, the Mosers, to stop their loud talking and "go to bed" early Saturday, the police said. An argument followed, climaxed with shooting of Oliver by Thomas Moser, 18. When Oliver died last night, young Moser was jailed.

MORITZ GETS TRACTION POST

McNair Names Aide, But Council May Balk Move

Mayor McNair today named Theodore L. Moritz, that man of many sides, as chairman of the Traction Conference Board to succeed one of the Mayor's pet peeves, Charles A. Finley.

But Finley refused to join in the appointment. This afternoon when Moritz appeared in the board's office Finley refused to give up his desk. Moritz departed.

The Mayor not only appointed Moritz, but personally escorted him to Finley's office in the Law and Finance Building, read him an oath and pointed out his desk.

This brings Moritz's total of city jobs, at the moment, to three. He is the Mayor's private secretary and a police magistrate.

However, it is by no means assured that Moritz will be accepted by Council or other members of the board for the traction job, which pays $12,000 a year. The Mayor has been trying to oust Finley for months, but Council has been turning down his candidates.

COUNCIL INVOLVED

So His Honor waited until Council had recessed for about a month and explained that Moritz was a recess appointment. General opinion is that Council will have to confirm Moritz when the solons meet July 23. And this is not too certain.

Only a stenographer, Miss Janet Kimberly, was in the Traction Board offices when His Honor strolled in with Moritz. The Mayor wanted to know where Finley's office was. Miss Kimberly, somewhat flustered by this unexpected visit, indicated. The Mayor turned to his man of many jobs:

"This is your desk then, Moritz."

VACATION ASSURED

Moritz was asked whether he would be able to continue his present vacation. His Honor replied for him:

"Oh, yes, he can take a vacation. They don't do anything over here, anyhow, do they?"

Moritz then spoke his mind on the traction situation:

Sea Scout Chief Dies in Honolulu

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS.)—James Austin Wilder, founder and chief scout of the Sea Scout branch of the Boy Scouts is dead in Honolulu, according to word received at the National Headquarters of the Boy Scouts.

Wilder, 66, was born in Honolulu and maintained his headquarters in New York until 1930. His sea scouting idea supplanted the Rovers instituted by Lord Baden-Powell.

Louis N. Morgan Dies in Tube City

Louis N. Morgan, 70, for 31 years an alderman of McKeesport and former school controller and city assessor, died yesterday in his home, 121 Fifth avenue, McKeesport. He had resigned as alderman June 1 and was succeeded by his son, Walter L. Morgan.

Born on the South Side, Pittsburgh, he had resided in McKeesport for 59 years.

MOVIE-MASHER WAR OPENS

City detectives are out to smash the mashers in certain downtown theaters, Inspector Samuel E. Wheeler declared today, following the fining of five men $10 each in Morals Court.

All five admitted they took "undue liberties" with two policewomen who were detailed to sit in a downtown movie house yesterday.

As the men became familiar, they were ushered to the rear of the theater to meet a city detective. Inspector Wheeler said several complaints against such activity have been received recently and announced:

FRANCE WARNS HITLERITES

By PIERRE HUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 6.—Germany has offended France and the problem has become a serious international one.

The French embassy, which has denied the story that France was a party to the alleged plot of Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, today let it be known that if "any official quarter" should try to indorse the tale denied, it would consider further steps to impress on Germany the gravity of such tactics.

German Widows Ready To Avenge Slain Men

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(Copyright, 1934, International News Serv.)

BERLIN, July 6.—One hundred years and a few more ago Charlotte Corday, beautiful French woman, stabbed to death Jean Marat, "friend of the people," leader of the French Revolution and inspirer of the terror that had cost the lives of scores of Mlle. Corday's friends. Charlotte Corday established the reputation of women as avengers of slaughtered men.

It may sound melodramatic. It may sound overdrawn, fantastic. But the fact is that in Europe today one of the important political questions is whether or not a German Charlotte Corday will arise to avenge the deaths of the men who fell under the bullets of the terror that swept Hitler's Brown Shirts from power to perdition.

Today there are in Germany several scores of widows fresh from the graves of their men. Less than a week ago these women, most of them young, most of them childless, were riding the top of a wave of prestige and popularity and these men were hailed as No. 1 German patriots. All of them were full of pride and courage.

Today they are widows. From the pinnacle of happiness these women have been plunged into the depths of despair. Not one of these women believes her man guilty. They are bewildered, but also bitter with a bitterness so

EXECUTIONS RESUMED BY NAZIS

BULLETIN.

BRESLAU, Germany, July 6.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler, it was revealed today, barely escaped assassination Saturday at the hand of Edmund Heines, one of those whom Hitler tried to arrest at Ernst Roehm's home near Munich.

Only through determined and timely intervention of one of the Chancellor's aides, who shot and killed Heines when the latter ran up to Hitler with a revolver, was disaster to the Chancellor averted, it was revealed.

Heines was Chief of Police of Breslau and a prominent Nazi.

By TOM WILHELM
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 6.—Demand for a second revolution and the overthrow of the Hitler government was openly made today by German radicals while Nazi firing squads resumed the execution of Hitler's foes at the military academy in Lichterfelde.

In several sections of Berlin, admittedly one of the world's greatest Communist centers, men appeared distributing handbills calling for the revolution and stigmatizing Hitler as the agent of a net of reactionaries. The proclamation read:

"Our leaders are dead, but the second revolution is coming. Our leader, Ernst (Karl Ernst, Berlin Storm Troop leader, who was executed) and others were murdered.

"They were our ideals. Those living do not represent our ideals.

"Chancellor Hitler has become the tool of reaction and of the big industrialists who want to oppress the workers."

EXECUTIONS RESUME

This morning the householders of the Lichterfelde district, a residential section, were awakened by the roar of rifle fire from the military academy.

They knew what that meant. More executions.

And they shuddered at the fearful sounds of rifle fire.

They heard indirectly from the academy that the firing squads were working on "proscription

City Playgrounds To Open Monday

The city playgrounds and recreation fields will open Monday. The appointment of 69 female recreation leaders and 51 male recreation leaders has been announced by the Division of Recreation. The city has 62 playgrounds and 53 other fields used for athletics.

Birdmen Derby Winner To Vie for Prizes

The winner of the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby at South Park tomorrow afternoon will compete with the contest winners from 17 birdmen wing cities at Washington, on July 28, for three attractive prizes.

The first will be the $2,500 William Randolph Hearst Trophy and a scholarship award of $500 or a trip to Europe.

The second will be a scholarship award, not to exceed $300. The third will be a scholarship award for half that amount. Each winner also will receive a trophy cup.

Prizes for tomorrow's Junior Birdmen meet will be given in two groups—youngsters from 10 to 15, inclusive, and others from 16 to 21, inclusive. First prize will be a handsome silver trophy cup and a free trip to the National All-American Derby. Others will be gold, silver and bronze medals, each to be engraved with the name of its winner.

Twenty-six entries are in for the three classes—all-balsa glider, single-propelled and twin-pusher planes. This will be the first contest held here in which girls have participated.

The meet will start at 12:30 p. m. on the athletic field at the fair grounds. In case of rain forcing postponement, the contest will be held at the same time Sunday afternoon.

W. S. Haddock, recreation supervisor of county parks who is one of the judges, said everything is in readiness for the handling of a large crowd.

Buses will connect with the Brentwood street car loop, offering round-trip fares of 20 cents.

lists," but how they are prepared and by whom they do not know.

Hitler has ordered the end of courtmartials and directed that the remaining prisoners left over from the bloody week-end be tried by the courts.

It may be that some other tribunal is sentencing men to death against a wall.

The victims of this resumption of the work of the firing squads are thought to be the Storm Troop leaders of the Bradenburg-Berlin district, all of whom were placed under arrest.

But it is also whispered that the proscription list contains political enemies of the regime as well as brown-shirted officers accused of participating in a conspiracy for a coup d'etat.

In fact bets are made as to who is the next important victim. Two prominent members of the triumvirate of rulers are odds-on chances.

The seriousness of the economic situation was emphasized when the Ministry of Agriculture admitted a great shortage in the potato crop. Permission was given to shopkeepers to sell potatoes of 2.8 centimeter size, formerly reserved only for pigs and thought unfit for human consumption.

While it is officially denied that war-time food rationing is even contemplated, Dr. Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, has been given virtual dictatorship over all necessities of life with such sweeping authority that he could resort to rationing at any moment.

Nazis Admit Fear Of Another Revolt

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 6.—Nazi vigilance against revolt was resumed today with disquieting reports that "something more is brewing" among friends of "liquidated" Nazi leaders.

The Nazi party spokesman said the Roehm revolution had wide ramifications and was well organized, and that those delegated by Chancellor Hitler to preserve the regime are taking no chances on Roehm's sympathizers.

Storm Troopers in civilian clothes, under orders not to wear uniforms during a vacation period, were reported to have met today in the Wedding district of Berlin, former stronghold of Communists, and to have shouted "revenge."

The names and number of those killed in recent "liquidations" activities, the Nazi Press Department said, are being withheld in order to avoid exciting friends of the dead men.

HITLER STATEMENT

Hitler, the Press Department said, is preparing a long communique on the mutiny and the way he suppressed it. It was said the list of dead would be included in this communique, to appear in a few days.

An important victory for the conservative element of the Nazi government was seen today in the granting of almost autocratic commercial powers to Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics.

He is authorized to impose unlimited fines on persons and institutions who refuse to obey his orders.

Schmitt had complained that his work was being hampered by the more radical doctrines of other cabinet members and Nazi leaders. He has now obtained more or less of a free hand in directing Germany's economic program.

This development came as leaders attacked labor, financial and political problems with redoubled efforts.

The Nazi press made much of the theme of a party workers' meeting at Flensburg that the "second revolution," which broke out a week ago tomorrow, has been completed and "there is work to be done."

TROUBLE IN PROVINCES

Conditions are said to be disturbed, especially in Silesia, where Catholics and Jews are reported to be worried, and in Bavaria.

There were reverberations here over the French embassy's sharp denial that France was involved in a conspiracy against the government.

German newspapers had charged Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, former chancellor and one of many who was killed last week-end, had conspired with France.

Rumors that Michael Cardinal Faulhaber was under detention in Munich could not be verified and it was indicated a statement would be issued denying this.

An Associated Press correspondent who went to the home was unable to see him, but learned the cardinal's palace is under surveillance.

(The Jewish Telegraph Agency said police at Munich ruled no long distance telephone conversations could be made in any language except German because "the authorities must know what is going out.")

JEWS SCORE ATTACKS

The Jewish Telegraph Agency said:

"A new campaign of agitation against the Jewish population is under way in Berlin and the provinces.

"An inundation of anti-Semitic leaflets denouncing the Jews appeared in Berlin and several of the provincial centers. They urged a renewed, vigorous boycott of Jews in the Reich. The leaflet stated:

"'The Jews are boycotting German exports abroad. Yet Germans are buying from Jews and are thus supporting the fight against Germany and against Hitler.

CATHOLIC ENEMY

Discontent appears to be growing over utterances of Helmut Brueckner, provincial governor of Silesia. The strong Catholic element is especially worried over his recent speech at Ratibor in which he frankly warned priests to cease attacking the state or suffer the consequences.

Catholic apprehensions were aroused in another speech by Brueckner at Oberschreiberhau. There, according to the Catholic version, the Governor said "two ladies already have been executed."

In the same breath, Catholics said, Brueckner warned more executions would follow if his conditions were not lived up to.

STORM TROOP FATE

There Rudolf Hess, minister without portfolio and important lieutenant of Chancellor Hitler, told Victor Lutze, new chief of staff of the Storm Troops, that "in your efforts to keep the historical calling of the Storm Troops as a true and powerful instrument in the hands of Der Fuehrer (Hitler) you will find the support of us all."

But every other indication was that the power and the glory of the Storm Troops, in whose ranks the rebellion was fostered, have gone. Most of them, it was indicated, will be disbanded.

Less than 20 per cent of the 2,000,000 troopers, reliable sources said, will be retained after their July vacations.

The new commercial law enables Schmitt to deal summarily with a number of matters, including economic reprisals by other nations because of Berlin's debt moratorium.

Paul von Hindenburg 86-year-old president, remained calmly at his Neudeck estate, apparently in improved health.

The fate of his protege, Franz von Papen, vice chancellor whom Hitler reportedly tried to oust in favor of Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia, remained in doubt.

Von Hindenburg's intercession saved von Papen's job, temporarily at least, but there were indications he would be demoted or would leave the cabinet because of his health.

France issued a denial of the plot charges through her ambassador and was expected to make a formal protest.

AMERICA LINKED

The American and British ambassadors were said to have called at the foreign office on the subject.

Paul Dinichert, Swiss minister to Berlin, threatened a "newspaper war" with Germany unless the ban on Swiss newspapers is lifted. German citizens had been eagerly reading Swiss papers in an effort to get light on the situation here.

Dinichert said unless the ban is lifted he will have the German minister at Berne deprived of his newspapers and would propose that all German newspapers be excluded from Switzerland.

The body of Friz Beck, head of the Foreign Academic Bureau at Munich, was found yesterday in a forest. It had six bullet wounds and had been badly battered. Beck was executed last Saturday.

Nazi Leads Bed Bugs In Own Chicago War

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Joseph Pierron, born in Germany 38 years ago, an ardent Nazi, paced his jail cell today, defiantly shouting, "Hail Hitler," proud of having "done his bit."

For days Herr Pierron had been brooding, wishing that he could do his part to help further Hitler's anti-Semitic policies. So when he felt the nip on his leg and conceived "the idea" he was elated.

The very next morning Herr Pierron went hunting, returned with a good bag of cimices lectularii (bed bugs to you). He went into the business of propagating them. He kept them hungry and savage.

And then things began to happen in the apartment building. First the Sam Freidman's complained. Then Mrs. Rae Edelman. The Maurice Levy's moved out. The Sam Ornstein's were attacked. Manager Jack Fishman nearly lost his reason.

Meanwhile, Herr Pierron laughed a villainous laugh, sneered a hateful sneer. But he made one mistake.

He forgot that his wife, Elizabeth, was in on the plot. Angry, he struck her. Frau Pierron left her husband, and one of the first things she did after leaving him was call on Manager Fishman. Manager Fishman called on the police. The police called on Herr Pierron. And Herr Pierron was taken.

But in all the statutes of the great state of Illinois, there is none dealing with the wholesale distribution of cimices lectularii. So Herr Pierron was charged with assault and battery, disorderly conduct, and theft of a roll-away bed, which Manager Fishman said Herr Pierron had used as an incubator and training ground for his "brown shirts."

VIENNA WARS ON NAZIS

VIENNA, July 6.—(AP.)—The government's fatherland front headquarters at Knittelfeld, Styria, were dynamited today and the house of a government commissar at Kindberg, Styria, was bombed, with heavy damage in both cases.

Continuance of terrorism in Austria aroused a conference of Catholic Storm Troop leaders at Klagenfurt to demand that the government do something against the Nazis.

The conference urged particularly that Nazisan government jobs be dismissed and government commissars be installed in all business establishments and factories suspected of being pro-Nazi.

RAP AT 'SWINE' CHEERS HINDY

NEUDECK, Germany, July 6.—(AP.)—Germany's "grand old man," President Paul von Hindenburg, again has found the air of his beloved East Prussia stimulating and rejuvenating.

One of the things which seems to contribute to the health of the President here is the opportunity to see his cronies of the olden days—men like "Old Januschauer," meaning 79-year-old Elard von Oldenburg-Januschauer.

This old pal of the President is known for his drastic remarks. He hated the Republican regime and the blustering of some Storm Troop men with equal fervor. He told von Hindenburg:

"The pork barrel today is the same as it used to be, only the swine who eat from it are different."

profound, so desperate that it constitutes a serious political factor in a situation already serious enough.

Your correspondent talked today with one of the best friends of these women. She was a woman. Her eyes flashed, her tiny fists clenched, as she exclaimed:

"They never even told us why they killed them. Now they will not even publish lists of deaths. Could you blame one of these women if she got a revolver and went out to get revenge?

"A woman who wanted to could do it. She would hide a revolver in her breast and she would get through the guards. She certainly would. And she wouldn't stop until her bullet landed."

This is one reason why that ever present, ever uncertain factor of possible assassination today plays a larger role than ever in Germany's turbulent future.

TERROR IN GERMANY

The terror that darkens this country today is different from the terror in either Russia or Italy. The Russians were far bloodier. They killed incomparably more than have died in Germany. But the Bolsheviks never killed each other. Even at the height of the conflict with the Russian Communist party, when Stalin fought Trotzky with fierceness that led the outside world to believe they would end in civil war, not a single Bolshevik was killed.

Although Stalin decreed death to hundreds of thousands of class enemies of the Bolsheviks, the worst he ever did to his party enemies was to exile them to Siberia or even throw them out of the country.

Mussolini hardly killed at all. He did his terror with castor oil and beatings. When he needed to discipline his own men he simply banished them to Lipari Islands.

So neither Stalin nor Mussolini had to reckon with murderous revenge by relatives and friends of the dead men within their own parties. Today in Germany Hitler's killings of his own followers has evoked in this country a spirit that must be very like that which reigned in France over a century ago.

SYMBOL OF DISGRACE

It has evoked a feeling worse than anger. It has evoked despair. There were more than 2,000,000 Storm Troopers. Their brown shirts were objects of hatred to some or of fear to others. But to themselves their brown shirts were symbols of honor and pride. Today the brown shirt in Germany is a symbol of disgrace.

It is now hard to imagine a Storm Troop army ever again being reconstituted in the firm and proud position it had before. Two million Storm Troopers know that. Widows of their dead leaders know it, too. But they know more than that. They know they have lost all they want to live for. They know despair. Despair drove Charlotte Corday.

Schran, Ex-Templar Head, Dies at 82

RIDGWAY, July 6.—(AP.)—J. M. Schran, 82-year-old past grand commander of the Knights Templar of Pennsylvania, died early today after a lingering illness of several years.

He was secretary of the Ridgway Borough school system for more than 20 years. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon.

BLOODY REVOLT TOLL GROWS IN MUNICH

Aristocrats Murdered Or Jailed, Bodies Lie on Moor

MUNICH, Germany, July 6.—(AP.)—Although the official death list here remains unaltered at seven, it became known today that 20 were killed in Saturday's bloody revolt.

Ten men besides the seven officially announced have been identified and their deaths confirmed, according to reliable persons. The remaining three were minor followers of Ernst Boehm, late head of the Storm Troops.

It was learned that Alexander Glaser, a lawyer, was killed in the presence of his wife while being taken from his home. He was shot in the head while turning to reach for a hat.

MUSIC CRITIC DEAD

The death of Willi Schmid, music critic of the newspaper Neuster Nachrichten, was chronicled in the pages of that paper this morning as "accidental."

A persistent rumor that Hans von Seasser, aristocratic commander of the Munich State Police, was killed, was confirmed.

Excursionists told of having seen bodies on the moorland near the Dachau concentration camp north of here Sunday morning.

The Brown House, Storm Troop headquarters, minimizes the number of men in custody, declining to give an estimate.

Among those arrested, it was learned, are three scions of the aristocratic von Aretin family, nephews of Baron Erwein von Aretin, who was arrested for political reasons and released last spring after a year in jail. The baron has been in a sanatorium ever since.

MYSTERY SHOTS

Diverse items, meanwhile, such as isolated shots in the early morning from speeding motor lorries filled with Hitler's men are the only reminders of Saturday's grim events.

The Brown House emphatically denied that the shots were an indication that old scores still were being settled, as was rumored in Munich.

There is evidence of a sudden love of simplicity and repudiation of the pomp and display in vogue before June 30. Opulent motor cars have been put out of sight.

ANGLO-FRENCH PACT DENIED

LONDON, July 6.—(AP.)—Great Britain has no intention of making a defensive alliance with France, Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, bluntly told the House of Commons today.

Baldwin, acting as prime minister in the absence of Ramsay MacDonald, was questioned closely by members concerning the significance of the visit here of Gen. Maxime Weygand, French army head, and the tour of French battlefields by a party of British army officers.

LONDON, July 6.—(Universal.)—France has issued a challenge to Italy, threatening a new naval armament race regarded as likely to destroy all prospects of success for the 1935 naval conference.

France, it was learned, has declared she will build two 35,000-ton battleships if Italy persists in carrying out her plans for construction of two ships of this size.

'IT'S LIE,' CRIES MAN ON FLYING TRAPEZE

Circus Artist Never Purloined Love Of Anyone

The trouble with circus life is that it's too dull, although you do meet such interesting animals.

Take the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey show, which opened today for a two-day run at Point Breeze after showing yesterday on the North Side.

There's a young and glamorous blonde who all she has to do, as they say in Sewickley, is park herself in an elephant's mouth for a parade around the Big Top she's through for the day. Ho, hum.

And the Zacchini brothers. Heretofore one of the boys was shot out of a cannon twice daily, but this became so monotonous that this season the boys decided that two of them should be shot out of the cannon together.

So now they're leaving the cannon in pairs, so any day now you can expect the announcement that the Dionne quintuplets have been hired for the trick.

Then there's Miss Dorothy Herbert, another attractive blonde (the circus runs to them this season). Miss Herbert merely mounts a horse and, in effect, powders her nose while the horse tries his best to flip her into the Ohio River.

A word about those seals. One of them plays "America" on the pipes and juggles a ball expertly. In fact, does both of these tricks better than anybody with the Cincinnati Reds.

And two words about the gentleman on the flying trapeze, who floats through the air with the greatest of ease. In this case it's Arthur Concello, a Portuguese, and as he floats he shouts a vehement denial that the man on the flying trapeze is a heartbreaker who steals another's love.

In fact, Antoinette Concello, the missus in the case, stands right alongside him and announces proudly that her Concello nary once has so much as winked at another as he floats through the air. In fact, both Concellos agree that if Mr. Concello starts winking as he floats through that air the first wink will be permanent.

TRACTION POST TO MORITZ

panies. If I had my way I'd do away with the subsidiary companies."

McNair switched the conversation back to more interesting subjects when he noticed the name of Councilman William A. Magee, who recently resigned as counsel for the Traction Board, on a door. The Mayor wanted to know whether Magee paid his own rent, and whether he was on the board's payroll. Miss Kimberly informed him Magee took care of his own office bill, that he wasn't on the payroll.

SLAP AT MAGEE

The Mayor explained:

"Not that I'm interested. I just inquired for information."

Moritz interjected:

"I'll have to appoint another attorney to the Traction Board now. I think I'll appoint John S. Pyle, my old law partner."

The Mayor was asked what qualifications Moritz owned for this particular job. His Honor said:

"In the first place, he's a trained lawyer. He has made a long study of utility matters. He knows the local situation and approaches it from the angle of an economist."

FREE PORT STUDIED

Now Moritz, since the McNair administration, has not once been accused of shirking work, but the secretary-police magistrate-traction board chairman won new admirers when he added that he was also studying the free-port situation.

His Honor and his jobholder departed a few minutes before Chairman Finley arrived. He scanned the oath Moritz had taken and observed that it did not mention any particular job, merely pledged Moritz's support to the Constitution. Finley explained that never—not once—had he accused Moritz otherwise.

Moritz found time for other things today. Before being sworn in he negotiated with a furniture company to supply benches for hangers-on outside the City-County Building.

State Troopers Rout Mine Strikers

SCRANTON, Pa., July 6.—(INS.)—Striking miners and state police clashed at Jessup today with the troopers using tear gas bombs to rout a crowd of several hundred persons. A number of persons were reported injured and several arrests were made.

The scene of the rioting was at a private mine operation where a strike is in progress.

TROOPS GUARD DOCKS AFTER FATAL RIOT

Two Dead, Many Hurt In San Francisco Street Battle

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—(AP.)—Bayonets bristled along San Francisco's blood-stained waterfront today.

Two thousand national guardsmen patrolled the area where 34 persons were shot down, at least two of them fatally wounded, by police gunfire yesterday. Scores were gassed, beaten and trampled.

The soldiers occupied the battleground of the Pacific Coast maritime strike during the night. Embattled strikers huddled silently around picket fires and nursed wounds of yesterday's bloody riots.

Ralph Mallen, of the International Longshoremen's Association publicity committee, declared:

"We are not going to retreat from the waterfront. We are going ahead and expect to obtain plenty of help from all other unions toward a general strike."

ORDERS TO TROOPS

The national guardsmen were specifically ordered by California's acting governor, Frank F. Merriam, to protect life and property and maintain order along the five and one-half-mile waterfront. They were under orders, issued by Adjt. Gen. Seth E. Howard, to do no shooting "until there is evidence of an attack upon you or upon state property."

Howard Sperry, 49, a striking longshoreman, and George Couneourakis, 45, identified as a member of the Cooks' and Waiters' Union here and reported to be connected with the International Labor Defense League, died from bullet wounds.

Mrs. Josephine Fuentes was struck in the head by a bullet while riding through the strike zone in a street car. A number of other non-combatants were among the injured.

BATTLE SWEEPS ON

From Rincon Hill, where the whine of bullets gave the first war note, the fighting swept down the waterfront streets to the International Longshoremen's Association headquarters and to Steuart and Market streets. It was at this street intersection that a bomb exploded during a Preparedness Day parade in 1916, killing 10 persons and wounding 40 others.

Acting Gov. Merriam's formal order calling out the state troops came while the rioting was at its height and the casualty toll steadily mounting before withering volleys from police guns. Strikers and their sympathizers hurled bricks and stones and shrieked curses as the fighting raged from the ferry building south and spread into the adjoining industrial section.

N. Y. WALKOUT LOOMS

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—A strike of Atlantic Coast longshoremen, in sympathy with the Pacific Coast strike, was contemplated today by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association. He said:

"We cannot be expected to keep our men at work on the Atlantic Coast for employers who are calling out troops to shoot down men who simply want a decent system of hiring."

First Lady Rides Over Norris Dam

NORRIS, Tenn., July 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt turned to the North on her vacation today, after a visit to the $34,000,000 Norris Dam project and a ride over the site in a wooden cage.

The first lady saw the dam from a cage on a cableway 400 feet above the Clinch River. She planned to resume her motor trip today, going probably to Berea, Ky., and then to Chicago.

Roosevelt's County Elects Republican

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 6.—(INS.)—For the second time since he assumed the presidency, Franklin D. Roosevelt's home county of Dutchess has voted Republican.

In a special election held to name a successor to the late Senator Webb, Frederick Bontecou, Republican, carried the town of Poughkeepsie by 2,500 votes over his Democratic rival, Glenn Newell. Bontecou's lead in the entire county was more than 5,000 votes.

Roosevelt Tells Haiti Marines Will Leave

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ACROSS PORTO RICO, July 6.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt motored across this American possession in the Caribbean today between lines of natives waving flags after an early morning arrival at the western seaport of Mayaguez.

Gov. Blanton Winship met the President at Mayaguez and rode with him over the mountainous route to the capital, San Juan, where Roosevelt will spend the night before going to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, tomorrow.

A threatened rainfall somewhat dampened the ardor of the reception for the President, who rode in an open car and responded to greetings along the way.

In his first trip ashore since he left the United States, Mr. Roosevelt was cheered in Haiti when he promised prompt withdrawal of American Marines.

Speaking briefly at the Union Club, where he was the guest of Stenio Vincent, President of Haiti, the Chief Executive said the Marines would leave within six weeks.

ARMY POLO STAR CONVICTED IN AFFAIR WITH DIVORCEE

COURT-MARTIAL FINDS CAPTAIN KEPT TRYSTS

Officer's Wife Rides To Trial With 'Other Woman'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 6.—(AP.)—Capt. Harold K. Coulter, who elected to stand trial by courtmartial rather than accept a reprimand for alleged misconduct, was under conviction today and ordered dismissed from the United States Army.

The courtmartial, conducted at secret hearings upon the defense's request, found Capt. Coulter guilty yesterday on seven counts, including four specific charges of intimacy with Mrs. Alice Traylor Morgan, divorced wife of William F. Morgan, wealthy San Antonio oil man.

After the verdict Coulter said:

"I haven't a thing to say."

WOMAN RIDES WITH WIFE

The verdict was returned shortly after Mrs. Morgan and the captain's wife drove to the scene of the courtmartial at the staff post here in the same automobile.

The trial opened last week, after Coulter, star polo player, declared he was innocent of the charges and said he preferred to stand trial by courtmartial instead of accepting an optional reprimand.

The verdict was officially given out at the command of military authorities. It had been expected the verdict would be withheld unless Capt. Coulter chose to reveal it.

The sentence will have to be passed on by reviewing authorities and approved by President Roosevelt. Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commander of the 8th Corps area, in this instance will be the reviewing authority.

OTHER CHARGES

Charges of which Capt. Coulter was found guilty were:

Intimacies with Mrs. Morgan January 1 and April 1, 1934, at Mrs. Morgan's home.

Intimacies with Mrs. Morgan at a Campbellton ranch February 1, 1934, and November 5, 1933.

Wrongfully caused Corp. G. R. Perry and Pvt. Ben E. Creel to obtain pistols from the supply sergeant of their company and act as guards at Mrs. Morgan's home.

Failed and neglected to pay $34.80 due as house rent.

Breaking arrest after he had been restricted to the limits of San Antonio by going to Mrs. Morgan's home May 25.

Breaking arrest June 5 by going to Mrs. Morgan's home and remaining there until 2 a. m. June 6.

Capt. Coulter was acquitted of a charge of causing Corp. Josiah Barker to take the license numbers of automobiles in the quadrangle March 2, 1934, where Col. George D. Arrowsmith was conducting an investigation of conduct and acts of Capt. Coulter.

PREMIER SUED BY GIRL QUITS

International News Service.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 6.—R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer in the cabinet of Premier John E. Brownlee, will assume the office of premier of Alberta Monday or Tuesday, it was announced here today.

Reid succeeds Brownlee, who yesterday tendered his resignation to Lieut. Gov. W. L. Walsh as a result of the charges of seduction brought against him by pretty 22-year-old Vivian MacMillan, government stenographer.

The girl was awarded $10,000 damages, and her father, co-plaintiff in the trial, $5,000 by the six-man jury, but the verdict was reversed by Acting Chief Justice W. C. Ives.

N. Y. DRAMATIST HELD IN SOUTH

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 6.—(AP.)—A hearing was ordered today in Recorder's Court for John Howard Lawson, New York playwright who was arrested during a visit here in the interests of the "Scottsboro case" Negroes.

Lawson is charged with printing and distributing vile and malicious literature. His arrest came late yesterday after a lengthy discussion with Commissioner of Public Safety W. O. Downs on the rights of various organizations to distribute their literature, some of which advocates "social equality."

Plan New Search For Pirates' Gold

BIARRITZ, France, July 6.—(AP.)—Another search for a hoard of gold presumably buried by pirates on the Cocos Islands in the Indian Ocean is to be made soon by Col. John Edwards Leckie, Canadian explorer, it was announced here today.

Col. Leckie in 1932 was credited with having found the hidden treasure of ancient buccaneers on the Cocos Islands. There is a widespread belief that all of the gold has not been found.

Bare-Knuckled Grudge Fighting

The dramatic scene in an open field in Penn Township as two 18-year-olds, surrounded by a crowd of some 500, settled their vague "grudge"—with bare knuckles and to the finish, sir!

Two Boys Fight for 'Championship'

Battle to Finish Watched by 500 In East End

Many East End boys feel a little proud and talkative today; many feel a little sad and despondent.

The pleased and elated ones are the followers of Itri Grimm, 18-year-old fistic champ from 133 Carver street.

The somber and dejected group are the backers of Joe Kurtz, also 18, and fiery battler from 537 Indiana way.

Itri and Joe presented a spectacle of human combat in an open field arena at the end of Lincoln avenue in Penn Township late yesterday that drew upwards of 500 persons.

Without the niceties of ring behavior and gloved fists wadded with leather and horsehair they fought a battle "to the finish."

When several of the yelling, shouting crowd were asked the reason for the fistic display, they all gave the same answer. It was:

"This is a grudge fight."

Questioned further as to the why and wherefore of the "grudge" none of them could say. The only other light that they threw on the "Battle of the Century" was:

"It's a fight to the finish."

Blow after blow was struck and flesh met flesh. The crowd surged forward time after time, yelling for its favorite and giving encouragement.

Bare-Knuckle Days Of Ring Recalled By Combat

After 40 minutes the encounter ended as the sponsors of Kurtz rushed forward to save him from further punishment. And Grimm's joy-mad followers carried him homeward on their shoulders, shouting:

"The winnah—hooray for the winnah!"

Though both contestants went home a little cut up and bruised, they probably didn't worry much. One money-minded spectator had passed a cigar box. His sales talk was:

"Help buy the boys some bandages."

SIAMESE TWINS FIGHT FOR ONE TO WED

Refusal of License in Two States Brings Legal Battle

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—Violet Hilton, the starboard half of the Hilton sisters, Siamese twins, is going to fight it out with New York officials who yesterday refused to issue a marriage license to her and Maurice Lambert, musician.

Turned down both here and in Newark, N. J., Miss Hilton at first considered the possibility of going to Maryland to get the license. She changed her mind today, and is going to make an issue of it.

Her attorney, Irving Levy, said he would apply in Supreme Court for a mandamus writ directing the New York City Clerk to grant the license. Levy said:

"I won't permit Violet—and of course, Daisy (Daisy is the sister)—to go to Maryland. The city set an undesirable precedent in refusing to issue the license.

"We're going to have a showdown on the matter. The only way to solve it is through the mandamus proceedings."

In deciding not to grant a license to Violet and Lambert, Assistant Corporation Counsel Russell Tarbox wrote:

"Application denied on the ground that bride is a Siamese twin."

This did not seem adequate to Levy, and the matter was placed before William C. Chanler, acting corporation counsel. Chanler approved the decision, saying:

"The very idea is quite immoral and indecent."

In Newark, the applicants were turned down on similar grounds. Moral reasons, said City Clerk Harry S. Reichenstein.

DOCTORS BRAVE VACCINE TEST

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—Three physicians, one a woman, are permitting themselves to be used as "human laboratories" to test out a new infantile paralysis vaccine.

So far the experimenters have suffered no ill effects from yesterday's injections to determine whether the vaccine can safely be used by man. Previous experiments, regarded as successful, have been on monkeys. It will take a week or 10 days to establish this, said their leader, Dr. William H. Park, director of the city research laboratory and authority on infantile paralysis.

His colleagues, also in the city health service, are Dr. Josephine Neal and Dr. Henry Wirt Jackson.

MAN WITH TWO MATES HELD

John R. Barkley, 38, of 912 Ridge avenue, McKees Rocks, was in jail today facing trial on a charge of infidelity.

He was held by Magistrate J. W. McGowan yesterday in Morals Court after Ella Barkley, 23, of 1122 Western avenue, testified she was the mother of a child to Barkley under belief she was his wife. Mrs. Pearl Barkley, of the McKees Rocks address, testified she had married Barkley April 12, 1924, at Huntingdon, Pa., and that they had five children.

Barkley was arrested on a warrant sworn out by a relative of Ella Barkley. Barkley testified he had supported the girl and given her his name to protect her.

Jap Premier Defers Naming of Cabinet

TOKIO, July 6.—(AP.)—Japan was still without a cabinet today, Premier Admiral Keisuki Okada having deferred until tomorrow the filling of seven empty posts.

Kisaburo Suzuki, president of the Seiyukai party, after conferring with the new Premier, promised to reply tomorrow as to whether the party would support the cabinet and furnish the additional members.

BabyGets Revenge By Trapping 2 In Ice Box

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS.)—Viola von Lown, 18 months old, was a little annoyed when her sister, Catherine, 4, and her brother, Arthur, 2½, wouldn't allow her to play "subway car," the said subway car being an empty ice box.

So when Catherine, emulating a guard, shouted, "Grand Central, all out," Viola slammed the door of the ice box—imprisoning her brother and sister. Unmindful of their cries she played contentedly with a dustpan.

The children's mother returned 20 minutes later and found the pair almost aspyxiated. Police were called and they used inhalators to revive the children.

Weather Conditions

There is now a well defined low pressure area centered over the lake region; lowest pressure reported (29.64 inches) at Green Bay. The low produced generous rainfall over the plains states and the Mississippi Valley yesterday and last night, and the weather is cloudy over that section this morning. Local showers occurred in Western Pennsylvania yesterday afternoon, and the showery conditions also covered the Gulf states. The weather is warm over the eastern states, while over the West a high pressure area centered over South Dakota is causing unseasonable cool weather. Frost is reported at Williston, North Dakota this morning. High maximum temperatures occurred yesterday in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma, the highest reported being 104 degrees at Kansas City.

River Conditions

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is zero; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 10.5; Pittsburgh, 9.7; Dam No. 4, 9.9; No. 6, 8.5; No. 10, 9.3; No. 12, 9.6. The dams are up.

Van Loan Gets Year In Jail at $1 a Day

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—(AP.)—Unable to post $300 with the city attorney to insure monthly payments of $25 to his former wife and 17-year-old daughter, Gertrude, Herbert H. Van Loan, film scenario and short story writer, was sentenced to serve one year in the county jail on a failure to provide charge.

The court held that Van Loan was to be paid $1 a day for his jail labors, which will be given to his former wife. The writer testified he had no money and had not earned anything in more than a year.

BROTHERS DIE IN 'GAS BOX'

FLORENCE, Ariz., July 6.—(AP.)—Two brothers, Manuel, 18, and Fred Hernandez, 19, paid with their lives early today in Arizona's lethal gas chamber for the murder of Charles Washburn, aged prospector, of Needles, Cal., in which $25 was obtained.

Two minutes after they began breathing the fumes, Fred was pronounced dead. A minute later, Manuel was dead.

Forty witnesses were ordered out of the space surrounding the death chamber before either of the prisoners had taken a deep breath of the fumes. Officials said gas was leaking from the box.

"Stay away from liquor and other evil things."

Last night they feasted and said goodby to the 18 other members of their family, laughing, joking and praying with older members in the outer court while their 12 younger brothers and sisters slept on the grass.

Rockwell Kent, Son To Visit Greenland

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS.)—Rockwell Kent, famous artist and writer, and his 13-year-old son, Gordon, will sail on Wednesday on another trip to Greenland, Kent revealed today. Kent, who has visited Greenland frequently in recent years and who admits he's "in love with the country," said he had had just enough contact with civilization to want to get away again. He last visited the ice-bound continent 18 months ago.

NOOSE DECREED FOR FORMER COWGIRL

Jury Convicts Woman In Murder of Husband

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—(AP.)—For the second time in the history of California jurisprudence, a sentence of death hung over a woman today.

The prisoner was 39-year-old Nellie Madison, former Montana cowgirl. She was charged with killing her husband, Eric, 45-year-old film studio cafe manager, last March.

In sentencing her to be hanged next September 24 after a Superior Court jury had convicted her of first degree murder without recommendation for mercy, making the death penalty mandatory, Judge Charles Fricke denied a motion for a new trial. Oral notice of appeal was filed. Mrs. Madison's counsel questioned whether the man killed was Madison, saying there was evidence he was alive in Chicago.

The court re-affirmed its belief that the slain man was Madison.

If the sentence is carried out, Mrs. Madison will be the first woman to be executed in the history of the state. Once before a woman was condemned to die, but her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Doomed Mother of Three Still Hopes for Life

OSSINING, N. Y., July 6.—(AP.)—"I'm still hopeful," Mrs. Anna Antonio declared to Mrs. Lewis E. Lawes when the Sing Sing warden's wife told the condemned woman in the prison death house today that her motion for a new trial had been denied by the Albany County Court.

Warden Lawes said the mother of three children, who is under sentence to die in the electric chair chair Thursday night with two men for the murder of her husband, is "bearing up pretty well." He added that she spends most of her time in bed, her nerves frayed by two reprieves which came from the Governor's office last week just before she was to be led to the death chamber.

The condemned woman's hope, prison officials believed today, must lie in executive clemency rather than further legal moves.

LAST OF BRONX GANG EXECUTED

OSSINING, N. Y., July 6.—(AP.)—The "Bronx murder syndicate" had paid in full today for the death of "Durable Mike" Malloy.

Joseph Murphy, 27, walked calmly to the Sing Sing death house last night, looked on silently, with mild curiosity as he was strapped into the electric chair at 10:03 p. m., eastern standard time. He was pronounced dead three minutes later.

Murphy's three accomplices, Frank Pasqua, Anthony Marino and Daniel Kreisberg, were executed June 7. Two reprieves were granted Murphy to permit mental examinations, but he was adjudged sane.

The four men finally accomplished the insurance murder of Malloy with gas after the speakeasy derelict survived poison liquor, the wheels of an automobile and tainted food mixed with ground tin.

RICH EX-SLEUTH DEFENDS GIRL WIFE NAMES

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—J. Walter Longcope, whose fame began as a prohibition agent when he arrested Texas Guinan and Helen Morgan after spending about $7,000 of the government's funds in their gaudy night clubs, was indignant today when informed that his wife had named a New York heiress in a divorce complaint.

The girl named is Miss Lassie Honeyman.. Longcope said:

"I'm going to fight this thing to the end. She picked on Miss Honeyman for no reason at all. Miss Honeyman has been a family friend for years. She happened to be in Santa Barbara last summer while I was there.

"There isn't a word of truth in my wife's charges."

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—(AP.)—A petition of divorce for J. Walter Longcope from Mrs. Dorothea Longcope was filed in the state of Juarez, Mexico, two weeks ago, J. Thomas Russell, attorney, disclosed here.

Russell expressed surprise when informed Mrs. Longcope, former wife of Jesse Livermore, once wealthy Wall street speculator, had started divorce proceedings at Santa Barbara against her present husband, reputed to have amassed millions as a broker after his resignation as a prohibition agent in 1927.

Prior to starting the Mexican divorce proceedings, to which Russell said Mrs. Longcope assented, the lawyer said he drew up a property settlement between his client and the latter's wife.

Mrs. Longcope charges mental cruelty, Bucklin stated, "induced by his association with Miss Lassie Honeyman." Miss Honeyman returned last month to New York after visiting at Santa Barbara and Pasadena.

The Longcopes were married at Reno, Nev., September 16, 1932, a few minutes after she had been granted a divorce from Livermore. Mrs. Longcope was said at that time to have been given $500,000 and a valuable Long Island estate by Livermore, who also was reported to have created a $1,000,000 trust fund for his two sons, Jesse, Jr., 14, and Paul, 11.

ABDUCTION TIP TO WIN PAROLE

TOPEKA, Kan., July 6.—(AP.)—Two governors moved today to reward Francis Sharpe, a Kansas convict, with freedom for informing authorities of a plot to kidnap the daughter of one of the state executives.

Keeping his word to the prisoner, Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, made known he will parole Sharpe for "tips" last year that fellow prisoners and outside friends planned to kidnap Miss Peggy Ann Landon, 17-year-old daughter of the Kansas executive.

At the same time Gov. W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, announced that he had acceded to a request of Gov. Landon that Sharpe be paroled from a 25-year prison term pending against him in that state.

Gov. Landon said the plot to abduct his daughter was designed to force him to free "about 10 of the worst offenders in the Kansas penitentiary." The scheme was laid at the door of the desperate Wilbur Underhill gang.

WOMAN FIGHTS 'HEX' VERDICT

EBENSBURG, Pa., July 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jennie Viscount, of Johnstown, facing a possible maximum of two years in jail on fortune-telling charges, will seek a new trial in the Cambria County Court today.

Mrs. Viscount was convicted several weeks ago, after witnesses told of trips to graveyards and strange rites which Mrs. Viscount superintended. The trial drew hundreds of curious spectators, and furnished one of the most sensational cases in Cambria County history.

Attaches of the District Attorney's office said they will contest the new trial plea.

N. Braddock Man Slashed in Battle

Cut and slashed about his face and body, Joseph McDonough, of Bell street, North Braddock, was in Braddock General Hospital today, while Rankin and Braddock police searched for his antagonist in a fight last night. McDonough was wounded during a brawl in a Fleet street cafe.

SLAYER PLEADS UNWRITTEN LAW

International News Service.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 6.—Upon the "unwritten law" did Michael Maggio, 44, wealthy cheese importer of Philadelphia, rely today for exoneration in the slaying of his second wife, Anna, and his son by a previous marriage, Joseph.

Admitting, according to authorities, that he was the one who slew the 34-year-old woman and the 21-year-old youth with two revolvers when he surprised them in his summer cottage at Pillings Lake last Friday, Maggio contends the double killing was fully justified.

Silently forlorn, the food merchant sat in Camden County jail, awaiting grand jury action. He was held without bail on charges of murder after he had surrendered, ending a six-day hunt.

The prisoner's lawyer, Carl Kisselman, said:

"The surrender was his own suggestion. I understand he failed to do so earlier because he wanted to wind up some business affairs and arrange for the care of his four other children."

MEXICAN FLEES TO U. S. HAVEN

Universal Service.

LAREDO, Tex., July 6.—Antonio Villarreal, defeated Mexican presidential candidate in last Sunday's election, today was safe in the United States after a flight from Mexican secret service agents in Monterey Wednesday night.

Prof. Aurelio Manrique and J. Antonio Diaz Soto y Gama, staunch supporters of Gen. Villarreal during the presidential campaign, accompanied their chief across the Rio Grande. They are planning a lecture tour of the United States.

Villarreal, Manrique and Soto y Gama were placed under close guard in Villarreal's Monterey headquarters Wednesday shortly after the defeated candidate charged wholesale frauds in Sunday's elections.

Just before midnight, Villareal and his two companions succeeded in chopping a hole through the back of the building in which they were imprisoned.

Shoots Rival's Wife, Then Kills Himself

READING, Pa., July 6.—(AP.)—Because she married another man instead of himself, police say, Edwin L. Arnold, 32, shot Mrs. Bernard Grossberg, 22, and took his own life.

Married a year ago, Mrs. Grossberg came to stay with her parents recently to be near them at the time of the birth of a son, now two weeks old.

'Tom' Shows by Jobless Bring Joy to N.Y. Poor

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—The latchstring of a famous old dwelling—Uncle Tom's Cabin—was out today to the city's unfortunate poor.

The play sat itself down last night in Jefferson Park, in Harlem, and began the business of making life a little more interesting, a little more endurable for men, women and children to whom even crusts of bread are often times problems.

The idea is part of Mayor LaGuardia's little-publicized "New Deal" for those persons on relief rolls and others, hardly better off, to whom the theater is an unattainable luxury.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" is being done on a portable stage that travels on a truck and becomes, like storybook magic, a theater of lights and sparkling make-believe with hardly more than the tapping of a city electric wire.

The actors, like the audiences, are part of the city's poor; thespians and troupers "at liberty" too long. The men who built the portable stage and who set its scenery and operate its light effects are recruited from relief work rolls, too.

During the summer there will be five companies, using five traveling stages, presenting plays in every borough of the city. Besides "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the plays are: "Little Women," "The Taming of the Shrew," "The Late Christopher Bean" and "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

RULE ASKS JOBS FOR UNPAID TEACHERS

HARRISBURG, July 6.—(AP.)—Steady jobs for hundreds of school teachers who have worked without pay during the drear days of the depression was urged today by Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction. He said:

"The teacher is the most important single factor in the development of a dynamic program of education.

"Over a long period of time Pennsylvania has developed outstanding teachers, who are making signficant contributions to community life and to the welfare of boys and girls.

"It is these teachers who have developed an appreciation of child life, who have become important parts of the communities in which they live, who furnish the strongest bulwark of democracy.

"The security of the teacher in no little measure determines the effectiveness of her work. There should be definite assurance of security to those teachers in Pennsylvania who give the best of their life's service and who, through sacrifices, have obtained the professional preparation necessary to successful work in the field of education.

"There are many instances where teachers have been willing to co-operate to the fullest extent in aiding communities and boards of school directors in meeting budgetary problems and in solving difficult community problems.

"In thousands of cases only the interest and assistance of teachers has kept children in school during the past three or four years. Hundreds of teachers have kept on teaching without definite prospect of pay, so schools would not close.

"These and similar services must not be overlooked by those who are responsible for teachers and their future welfare."

Pennsylvania had more than 61,000 public school teachers at the end of the 1933-34 school year. The new school year opened officially last Monday.

HEART PIERCED, PINES FOR WORK

LANCASTER, Pa., July 6.—(AP.)—The heat, lack of beer, and his absence from his barber shop are bigger worries to George Hampton than the stab wound in his heart.

Sitting in a wheel chair in the hospital, where his pierced heart was lifted from its place and stitched two weeks ago, the barber impatiently predicted he'll be "back in the shop doing haircuts" in two months.

Mrs. Myrtle Norwood, Hampton's housekeeper, charged with stabbing him with a paring knife, is still in jail.

No visitors have been allowed to see Hampton, who has been under the care of special nurses while surgeons in various parts of the counttry watched with interest the outcome of the operation which Dr. John L. Atlee, Jr., performed.

Appeal to U. S. For School Cash Up to Teachers

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—A proposal to seek a half billion dollars in federal money for the public schools was laid before the National Education Association today.

Linked with the request, which the resolutions committee proposed to the convention, was a statement that such a grant should involve no federal control of the schools.

The committee also suggested that Roosevelt policies for slum clearance, housing and unemployment insurance be indorsed.

This suggestion was made a few hours after applause had greeted Robert C. Moore, of Carlinsville, Ill., when he criticized President Roosevelt for not sending a message to the gathering. Moore said:

"We have not had one word from the President, who has gone off on vacation. He appointed Mr. Johnson (NRA administrator) to speak for him, and he became ill and has also left the city.

"I really believe that a great national institution fighting for the rights of childhood in a time of crisis deserves a share of attention from the New Deal."

Speakers of the day gave encouragement to advocates of a new type of social study. Thomas E. Benner, Illinois University dean, said:

"Better social, economis and civic training than we have ever given before has become in recent years almost an emergency objective of all our schools."

2 YOUTHS HELD IN HOLDUP

Two New Alexandria youths today were held over for further investigation in connection with the holdup of the Liberty Baking Company, in Houston street, Saturday.

Frank Ferra, 19, and Raymond Tierno, 22, were given a hearing this morning by Magistrate J. W. McGowan following their arrest by city detectives near Blairsville, Pa., yesterday.

Employes at the baking company, police said, had identified pictures of the two youths as those of two of the three men who robbed the company of $2,500.

BANK DEPOSITS IN U. S. SHOW BIG GAIN

As bank statements began appearing in response to the June 30 call of the Comptroller and the Federal Reserve Board, officials predicted today that they would show an important gain in deposits over the last tabulation.

All bank deposits—including state institutions not subject to the Federal Reserve system's calls—stood at $38,646,000,000 on December 30, comp red with a 1929 peak of $55,289,000,000.

The difference of about $17,000,000,000 represents bank credit which has been liquidated. When business activity creates more bank credit, deposits will be correspondingly built up.

More actual money is in America's pockets today than during the boom years. The amount in circulation on June 27 was $5,301,000,000, whereas it was below $5,000,000,000 during most of 1928 and 1929.

Circulation rose to its highest point—more than $8,000,000,000—during the banking crisis of 1933, when business was in a sharp decline and people held on to cash.

Reserve Board officials said member banks balances with the Reserve banks, which stood at $3,537,000,000 on June 27, were sufficient to support deposits of around $80,000,000,000—nearly half as much again as existed in 1929.

Frogs' Love-Life Spoiled, He Asks $10,350

SEATTLE, July 6.—(AP.)—The love-life of Jay Warrington's bull-frogs is allegedly being wrecked by a gravel pit.

Warrington, in court here with a couple of two-pound, somewhat despondent appearing speciments of frogdom, asked $10,350 because activity in a nearby gravel pit, maintained by the City of Seattle at Juanita Beach, caused the water to withdraw from his frog beds.

Frogs, he said, just won't set up housekeeping on parched land. They like it wet, right up to their eyes.

Gentlemen frogs, he asserted, were good, dependable stay-at-home husbands, but there'll be no pollywogs wriggling about unless there's water to wiggle in.

'CHUTE' JUMPS FEATURE SHOW

The highlight of an air show at Bettis Field Sunday will be a parachute jump by Miss Mary Lang, pretty 18-year-old aviatrix, from the North Side. Her leap from a plane will be her third since she started her flying career.

The first event on the program, scheduled for 3 p. m., will be a sports plane race, limited to amateur aviators, in which four pilots will take part. Four planes are also entered in a light plane race. Capt. G. A. Garrison, well-known ex-Army flier, will give an exhibition of parachute jumping.

GORDON URGES SPEED BY BANK

If the Bank of America Trust Company is not successfully reorganized within the next few weeks, State Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon will liquidate the institution under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act which guarantees deposits up to $2,500, he said today in Harrisburg.

Explaining why he has not placed the bank in receivership since it went on a restricted basis April 20, following disclosure of alleged irregularities, Dr. Gordon told the International News Service:

"Officials of the bank have insisted they can raise sufficient money to reorganize the bank and reopen it as a safe institution.

"Pittsburgh needs one foreign bank and I would rather save this bank than liquidate it."

Woman Friend Held In Death of Man

MT. HOLLY, N. J., July 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Reba G. Horner, 33, had been held without bail today on a charge of murder as the result of a grand jury indictment Monday for the death of her friend, John Szymanski, 28, nearly two months ago. Szymanski died May 18, insisting while he lingered that he had shot himself.

DEATH REVEALS HIDDEN CORPSE

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP.)—In a somber old frame house where visitors rarely called, lived John Brandl, 54, with his mother, 90.

Neighbors had seen John leave and enter the house daily, as recently as last week. His mother, one seldom saw. She was feeble. But John was devoted to her. He had few other friends nor did he seek them. He was a recluse.

Yesterday John died from heart disease in a hospital. The police went to tell his mother. They found her dead. Medical examiners said she had been dead from natural causes for several weeks, at least.

JOBLESS, KILLS 3 AND SELF

BENJAMIN, Tex., July 6.—(AP.)—Four members of the McGuire family died today of gunshot wounds. Mrs. Odessa McGuire and her two children, aged 10 and 2, were found shot in their home in Vera community. The husband, Hollis McGuire, 32, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound shortly afterward at Seymour.

McGuire had been in ill health and was unemployed.

Investigators said he apparently had killed his family. The bodies of Mrs. McGuire and the children lay on the floor of the bedroom.

BRITTEN HAILS BORAH'S BLAST AT NEW DEAL

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—Senator Borah, Idaho's powerful campaigner, headed West today to carry on his one-man crusade against "bureaucracy and monopoly."

As Borah departed, his Democratic colleague, Senator Pope, retorted to his criticism of "bureaucracy" in the New Deal by asserting:

"Mere criticism can never take the place of a constructive program to meet the practical needs of our people."

Borah's blow at increasing control by federal bureaus and his challenge to party leaders to accept monopoly as the issue of the fall elections further emphasized the discord among Republican chieftains over the best way to conduct the approaching campaign.

It brought from Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, a formal statement saying "Borah is right." But most of those in high Republican circles held the same silence with which they had greeted the speech by Henry P. Fletcher, new chairman of the Republican national committee, accepting the New Deal as the issue of the campaign.

Britten said Borah's speech was "the first real appeal for the protection of the man who pays." He added:

"Roosevelt policies have given birth to price-fixing monopolies which in turn have sent prices up much faster than wages.

"The production of everything a man eats and wears should not be artificially suppressed when 10,000,000 adults are out of employment and 16,000,000 people are on the federal relief rolls with barely enough food to keep body and soul together."

Huey Admits He's Politician, but Adds Orchids

BATON ROUGE, La., July 6.—(AP.)—Senator Huey P. Long defined the word "politician" for the benefit of a Louisiana legislative committee and said he was one of them.

Clashing with one of his own leaders, Senator Jules Fisher, of Jefferson, over a proposed increase in sulphur mining taxes yesterday, Long commented:

Fisher snapped:

"Please define that word politician."

"A politician is one who works unceasingly for the general welfare of the country. And I'm one of 'em."

The "Kingfish" laughed as loudly as the committee.

RICHBERG SEES NO DICTATOR

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 6.—(AP.)—Striking out to right and left, Donold R. Richberg maintained today that the courses advocated by "ultra conservative" and "ultra radical" critics of President Roosevelt would destroy democracy.

Richberg, recently appointed chairman of the President's new Industrial Emergency Committee after a year as NRA general counsel, called talk of a Roosevelt dictatorship "sheer nonsense."

The demands of "the right wing reactionaries" to abandon large sections of the New Deal, Richberg told the Texas Bar Association last night, would bring a "relapse into an anarchy of unrestrained self-seeking."

On the other hand, he said, the program of the "left wing revolutionaries" would mean "universal sacrifice of that freedom for which men and women have been fighting and suffering and dying throughout uncounted centuries."

NEW DEAL WINS POLL 3 TO 2

NEW YORK, July 6.—The final returns on the Literary Digest's poll of public opinion on President Roosevelt's acts and policies, on the whole, show that three out of every five persons approve.

Of the poll taken in 48 states, Vermont was alone in registering disapproval. This opinion was held by 53 per cent of those balloting.

The total number of votes cast was 1,772,163, divided between 1,083,752 for the general policies of the New Deal and 688,411 against them.

On a ratio basis, the magazine found that President Roosevelt's popularity had increased over the popular vote of 1932 by 3.83 per cent.

Compared to their balloting in 1932, 459,338 of the poll voters indicated they had changed their minds about the President since the election. An analysis of the switching showed an average gain for the President in the 48 states of 5.39 per cent.

DARROW NRA FEUD CLOSED

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—The Darrow-NRA affair, one of the most spectacular clashes of the Roosevelt administration, has been closed by a presidential order abolishing the board.

There was no immediate comment today from members of the National Recovery Board, which tossed three hot shots at Hugh S. Johnson's recovery unit and received fiery replies.

The White House made public the order of abolition yesterday. It was dated June 30 and signed by President Roosevelt. He said the board has "substantially completed its work."

Chairman Clarence Darrow, veteran attorney, resigned about a week ago. W. O. Thompson and John F. Sinclair also withdrew from the board.

PROBE SECOND FIRE IN HOUSE

The cause of a fire, the second one since last Saturday, in a one-story frame house at 166 Van Buren street, North Side, which caused $1,000 damage yesterday afternoon, was being investigated by the bomb and arson squad today.

Yesterday's fire originated in the cellar of the house occupied by A. J. Demar, firemen said. Battalion Chief Alexander Reid said the first fire started near an electric stove in the bath room and was quickly extinguished.

CITY OFFICIALS TO TESTIFY

City officials will attend a hearing before the Public Service Commission late this month when the Zone Cab Corporation again asks permission to place 300 cabs on Pittsburgh streets and charging lower fares than now charged by the Parmelee Company. Assistant City Solicitor John J. Kennedy said today that he would call on the City Treasurer and Controller to testify at the hearing in regard to the saving that would be effected by the city under the proposed new rates. At present the city pays $12,000 yearly in taxicab fares.

M'NAIR WAGES WAR AGAINST CITY TOLLS

The Authority members, meeting here, elected Press C. Dowler, chairman to succeed Joseph C. Trees, who had resigned. E. N. Hunting, the new member, was chosen vice chairman and William McKennan Reed secretary-treasurer.

The County Commissioners were pondering an alternate plan submitted by the South Hills committee which is opposed to the Liberty Tubes toll.

The Commissioners and the Authority members yesterday heard not only the objectors from South Hills, but a second delegation which was all for the Authority's improvements, including the tolls.

OPPOSE NEW BRIDGE

The objectors offered to withdraw their protest against the toll if the plans to erect the Fort Duquesne Bridge and tunnels were dropped. These improvements would open up the Point section into the southwest district of the South Hills.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern promised to consider this suggestion—after pronouncing it impossible.

The protesting committee included James W. Bamford, representing L. T. Stevenson, South Hills real estate dealer; A. C. Purdy, attorney; James L. Adams, Elmer E. Harter and W. J. Blakely.

They maintained that the new twin tunnels and bridge were not needed.

They also asked that the city wharf improvement be dropped.

The Commissioners were urged to issue a statement explaining how much the toll would be and how long they are to be applicable.

Commissioner William D. Mansfield and Assistant County Solicitor Churchill B. Mehard questioned members of the committee as to when they thought the Fort Duquesne tunnels and bridge should be built.

Bamford replied:

"Maybe five years."

URGES WABASH TUNNEL

Purdy intimated that the Wabash tunnel and bridge should be reconsidered.

Mehard explained that this would be impossible, and Mansfield added:

"Five years from now will be much too late to get a loan. If we don't get it now, we'll never get it."

Purdy said:

"I know you gentlemen have tried to get these projects without the tolls. Is the wharf improvement self-liquidating?"

Mehard answered:

"Not quite, in the time the government wants it. The estimate is that it will pay around $30,000 a year."

The committee maintained that if the Banksville road, Saw Mill Run boulevard and Liberty Tubes plaza were improved there would be no need of the Fort Duquesne project.

Commissioner McGovern stated as his opinion that if the projects did not pay, it was talked around Washington the federal government may forgive and forget. He added:

"The bridges will be there. They can't take them. And there's talk that some day they'll wash the slate clean."

REPORTERS PRESENT

The meeting was not a public one, but reporters were allowed in when Commissioner C. M. Barr objected to sitting in a private meeting with the committee. Barr did not attend the conference.

A South Hills committee, proponents of the projects and tolls, remained upstairs. Its members addressed the Commissioners after the protest meeting, declaring they were for the tolls, if there was no other way out. Criticising the protesting committee, W. W. Wasson, spokesman for the proponents, said:

"Under what pretext did they ask for a private meeting if they are representing the public of the South Hills?"

J. C. Weller added:

"The meeting of the Hillsdale School was steam rollered and does not represent the feelings of South Hills people. There were 150 people at the meeting, some of them friendly, and a spokesman said they were speaking for 150,000. Who multiplied the 150 by 1,000 doesn't interest us."

Wasson said he represented owners of 55 apartments, 10 stores and six houses.

PROPERTY HOLDERS

Weller said he represented owners of $300,000 in Mt. Lebanon and Dormont property, asserted that a reasonable toll, say 5 cents, would be reasonable, and that he was for the projects. He said the statements of those protesting were greatly exaggerated.

Charles Geisler, Al Schmidt and others spoke in behalf of the projects.

Commissioner Barr asked them did they think the Fort Duquesne Bridge and twin tunnels were necessary.

They answered unanimously "yes." Members of the protesting committee had, at various times, expressed the opinion that the Liberty Tubes were too congested at the peak times, Weller said.

Labor Board Ends Kittanning Strike

KITTANNING, Pa., July 6.—(AP.)—Announcement of the settlement of a strike at the plant of the Continental Clay Products Company was made today after a conference attended by representatives of the Regional Labor Board.

Terms of settlement included enforcement of the NRA wage scale and the re-employment of all men engaged in the plant's operation prior to June 4.

TURNER FLAYS PITT OUSTER

a formal protest to the university and "start the ball rolling" for other liberal and civic groups throughout the city.

Dr. Turner today said:

"It was intimated to me in the informal explanation of my dismissal that during the campaign for the Cathedral drive, the chancellor encountered criticism of several men, among whom I was one."

In a statement, Dr. Turner said:

"Thursday afternoon at 2:30 Chancellor Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh, told me in an official interview: 'I believe the university can carry out its policies better without you around.'

"I am at a loss as to what this policy is. Is it the policy of a group of businessmen? A policy that has launched a gigantic building program? A policy that discharged instructors who draw large and enthusiastic classes? A policy that allows its teaching facilities, especially its library, to become almost useless?

"I asked Chancellor Bowman point blank why I was discharged. He said, 'There was discontent in the community.' I asked him, 'Discontent among whom?' The chancellor said, 'The board of trustees is a group of businessmen and among them I think you will find a great deal of discontent.'

"I object to the chancellor confining the community to a small group of businessmen, very few of whose sons and daughters attend the university. The chancellor flatly refused to state among whom else there was discontent. All he said was that it was not political. Then what was it?

"I want to explain something to the public. Perhaps it may be the answer to the policy the Chancellor speaks of. A few years ago Mr. Gow (J. Steele Gow, then dean of administration) called me into his office. He wanted to ask me how to answer a letter of general complaint against the university which merely mentioned my name. He looked up the writer of the letter in the Directory of Directors and said, 'He is small poatoes. We won't pay much attention to it.'"

Chancellor John G. Bowman after reading Dr. Turner's statement said:

"I have no comment to make.'

Dr. Turner, chosen as the most popular instructor at Pitt by the senior class two years ago, is known internationally as a leader in liberal thought, a scholar and an author. His book, "James Silk Buckingham," a social biography, was first published in England and only last spring re-published in this country.

In his letter to the chancellor, Dr. Turner asked for the "specific cause" for his dismissal. He had been told by Dr. Oliver that it was his "understanding" that an "accumulation of several complaints extending over some years has caused it."

If such is the case, Dr. Turner said, he is at a loss to understand why his contract was renewed. Of the criticisms, he declared, the circumstances which gave rise to them are "well known."

In his letter to Chancellor Bowman, he said:

"During the past year and four months I have been connected with the Pennsylvania Security League, which was then and is now working to secure the enactment of a program of social and labor legislation in this commonwealth. The opposition to this program consists largely of those political forces commonly characterized in the public press as 'the Mellon-Grundy machine,' and the economic forces identified with the several chambers of commerce of the commonwealth. In my judgment the criticisms of my political activities have had their origin among the local persons associated with these opponents of social and labor legislation."

Andrew W. Mellon, member of the university board of trustees, through his secretary, said:

"I have not attended one of those meetings for a long time and I know nothing about it."

Other trustees likewise denied knowledge of Dr. Turner's dismissal or said they had no comment.

Mayor McNair, also a member of the board, said:

"My comment is rather long about those Socialistic and Communistic professors out there. They ought to get rid of a lot more of them. It was a fine thing to fire Dr. Turner. He has been teaching the students things that are not true."

Dr. Turner was mentioned as a likely candidate for Mayor on the Democratic ticket at the time McNair ran last fall.

PENSION BOARD VOTES TO PAY $40,000

County pension employes, who have been waiting in vain for one year for their monthly checks, need wait no longer.

The Retirement Board of County Employes today voted to pay out two months' pension—approximately $40,000—to 250 pensioners. This was the board's first meeting since the Pennsylvania Supreme Court ordered the County Commissioners, in effect, to pay the fund $250,000 owed.

Commissioner C. M. Barr announced that the Commissioners didn't know where they'd get the money. Controller Robert G. Woodside said the pension fund had $204,000 of its own.

Barr was successful in having named a committee to study weaknesses in the pension system which will be referred to the Legislature for change.

RWD TO 'FIRE' 1,000 WEEKLY

Elimination of 1,000 Relief Work Division jobs weekly pending the inauguration of a new state employment drive has been predicted by RWD authorities here. The new job campaign is scheduled to start September 1, and relief work officials say the gradual completion of projects will greatly reduce the ranks of RWD workers by the time the new program starts.

Preparation for the September drive are already under way with 101 case workers established in the Duquesne Building for the classification of county relief cases according to occupation, availability for work, and technical efficiency. No details as to the nature of the prospective changes in administration have been made public.

HOW DEAD we are, when we are dead. Calvin Coolidge was born on July fourth, and on this fourth, Boy Scouts gathered at his grave on a hillside in the cemetery at Plymouth, Vt. They placed a wreath on the grave, and Major Lee, United States Army chief in Vermont, also brought a wreath, as representative of President Roosevelt. American flags were taken to the grave and taken away again.

Except for the Boy Scouts and a few others, nobody knew anything about it. The rest of the world was setting off firecrackers, pinwheels, roman candles, skyrockets and bombs.

WE ARE very dead; in America, especially, we are very dead indeed, a short time after we go. But what wonderful peace comes with a small grave on a hillside. Dinah Muloch-Craik put it very nicely in verse:

"Two hands upon the breast, and labor's done;
Two pale feet crossed in rest,
the race is won."

Or if it is not won, at least it is ended, and worry ends with it.

YOU READ that in the federal prison at Atlanta, Mr. Al Capone and other convicts were entertained this Fourth of July by "a two-hour boxing show." The prize-fighters were all convicts; bets by Capone and others were exclusively cigaret bets, money not allowed.

That scene, convicts of all kinds watching criminals in the prize-ring assaulting each other, applauding the hardest blows, should be preserved for future generations. It represents the effort of a highly intelligent, civilized government to reform criminals.

If there should be no convict prize-fighters available on another occasion, it might be arranged to amuse the convicts with a dog-fight, badger-drawing, cock-fight or rat-killing match between terriers.

RECENTLY a young lady registrar, possessing authority, refused to issue a marriage license for a man of 32 and a woman of 72. It seemed to her "not quite right."

In New York yesterday, Siamese twins, young ladies alleged to be irrevocably fastened together by nature, appeared to ask for a marriage license. Violet, the right-hand side of the twins, wanted the license, that she might marry Maurice L. Lambert. The city's legal authorities decided that "the issuance of a license under the circumstance would be illegal."

It was not said, but it was understood, that the objection was that to allow one Siamese sister to be married, with the other not married, would "not be moral."

The other sister, Daisy, announced her intention to be married in six months to Harry Mason, of England, "the welterweight champion." It is just possible, of course, that the dear little Siamese twins care about advertising more than about marriage, but that was what happened.

WOMAN BARES $45,000 LOSS IN SWINDLE

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—A federal jury heard the intricacies of the old racing game today as Mrs. Marthe Staley, a heavy loser, testified against James C. McKay and William J. Graham.

McKay and Graham, wealthy promoters and gambling czars of Reno, Nev., are on trial with John Egleston, a convict, on charges they used the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Mrs. Staley, who lives in Wheeling, W. Va., one of 42 alleged victims, testified she and her husband, Charles, lost $45,000, their life savings, on what is known as the "pocketbook swindle." Miss Kathryn Beeson, of Pittsburgh, is included among the alleged victims.

The government alleges McKay and Graham were the center of a systematic, audacious scheme through which moderately wealthy persons were lured to Reno and stripped of their affluence.

Mrs. Staley's testimony yesterday covered the details of the alleged gang's system of "pick-up" at Vancouver, B. C., where she met them, and suave machinations of the "feeler."

Through the latter, she said, she and her husband were persuaded to go to Reno and to sell $45,000 worth of stock through Roy J. Frisch, cashier of the Riverside Bank.

She and her husband, she testified, were to receive half of purported race track winnings of $208,000 provided they furnished $45,000 necessary to establish a bank credit of $100,000 for a C. F. Parker, the alleged "feeler." She identified Egleston as Parker.

After she put up the money, she said, the gang pretended to lose it, but promised to make it good. She waited in vain at Cleveland, she said, and finally returned to Reno and swore out warrants.

DAVIS TO FACE THIRD JURY

International News Service.

CARLYLE, Ill., July 6.—Thomas A. Davis, Jr., 19, of Pittsburgh, sentenced to 10 months in prison and fined $500 for shooting a deputy sheriff, is not through with the law.

He is scheduled to go on trial in Circuit Court here July 16 on charges of robbery with a gun, growing out of the wounding of Deputy Sheriff J. H. Donnewald here last September.

Davis was convicted of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon last month. At the trial, he testified the shooting was an accident, occurring while he and Donnewald, who was wounded only slightly, struggled for possession of the officer's revolver.

QUITS RUN-OFF FOR MARLAND

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 6.—(AP.)—Oklahoma, accustomed to political shocks, blinked today at the unprecedented "beau geste" of Tom Anglin. He virtually handed the governorship to Representative E. W. Marland, "New Deal" candidate.

Anglin withdrew from the Democratic run-off primary, giving the nomination to the Congressman, and a Democratic nominee for Governor of this state never has been beaten.

Anglin, the choice of Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, told the state last night:

"The first primary is over and Mr. Marland is leading by a plurality of approximately 58,000 votes. I cannot see my way clear to call upon my friends and supporters for additional sacrifices in a run-off campaign.

"I think it is best for the state and for my thousands of friends to not further continue the struggle."

'NEST' OF GOLD GOING TO U. S.

A bank's failure will force another handful of "hoarded" gold into Uncle Sam's world's biggest store today, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Greensburg.

Long before the government outlawed the private ownership of gold, James J. Rainelli, now steward at Duquesne Council, Knights of Columbus, put his little store—13 coins with a face value of $120—in a Peoples National Bank, of Latrobe, safe deposit box.

But Rainelli's Latrobe catering business failed, and his judgment note in the bank fell due. Not long ago, L. M. Dakin, receiver for the bank, attached the gold to satisfy the debt.

So tomorrow Sheriff William N. Humes will sell the gold with the purchaser warned that he must turn the coins over to the United States Treasury for whatever price in paper money the government chooses to pay.

Garden Hose Used To Extinguish Fire

South Side firemen yesterday used garden hoses to extinguish a blaze on the second floor of the home of John Winters, at 113 South Sixteenth street. The alarm was sounded just as firemen on the day shift were getting ready to go home. Winters and his son, Walter, attempted to extinguish the fire, said to have been caused by a blow torch used to remove paint, with a garden hose. The firemen borrowed the hose and several others from neighbors and doused the flames. The damage was estimated at $25.

MOVIES OFFER 'THEATER' TO CARDINAL

International News Service

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—The use of a private projection room where motion pictures can be previewed and classified in a "black and white" list was offered today to Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia.

The offer was made by Joseph Bernahrd, general manager of the Stanley-Warner Theaters, it was revealed here, in an effort to end the blanket boycott imposed by the church against all film playhouses in this diocese.

The cardinal, who is now in Rome, has "commanded" all Catholics in this area to refrain from attending the theaters until the standards of decency in film producing have been lifted.

The Stanley-Warner Company, operating 75 theaters in this region, together with an independent exhibitors' organization, controlling 450 show houses, has announced it will close on July 23, throwing some 20,000 persons out of work, unless the boycott is lifted or modified.

The private projection room proposal was made as a peace gesture. Declaring the Stanley-Warner Company "is offering every reasonable compromise," Bernhard said:

"We have offered Cardinal Dougherty the use of a suitable projection room where pictures may be viewed before they are released in our theaters."

Bernhard added he had written to the cardinal that the proposed pre-views "would enable you to prepare a 'black and white' list for the protection of your flock."

Catholic Bishop Demands Resignation of Will Hays

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 6.—(AP.)—Bishop James E. Cassidy, apostolic administrator of the Fall River Catholic diocese, today demanded the resignation of Will Hays as "movie czar." The bishop said:

"As a corrector of uncleanliness and a friend and advocite of cleanliness in the movie industry, Mr. Hays has been false to the trust imposed on him. He has been a co-betrayer with the movie industry of the sacred rights of parents to protection of the morals of their children.

"I have no hesitation in saying through the press that the instant approval of Mr. Hays would be a condition sine qua now of any understanding or agreement between the contenders for cleanliness, Christian and non-Christian and the providers and conductors and producers of past and present salaciousness. Kid gloves may cover and conceal but they do not cleanse dirty hands."

TRAFFIC DEATHS HERE GROW

Eight traffic deaths during May has once again placed the 1934 fatalities ahead of the record for 1933, City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre has reported. Until June 1, there were 44 deaths this year as compared with 43 last year. In May, 1933, there were four deaths, only half the number of fatalities for the same month this year.

Most of the fatal and non-fatal accidents during May occurred under favorable driving and weather conditions, indicating that inattention and carelessness were the leading accident causes. Accidents in which liquor was involved, while but a small percentage of the total, are considerably increased over last year, McIntyre reported.

"Under the influence of liquor" or "had been drinking" was reported of 3 per cent of drivers this May as compared with 0.8 per cent in May a year ago.

Doctor on Way To Face U. S. Trial

Dr. Russell M. Perry, 41, of Punxsutawney, was jailed here today pending his removal to Indianapolis. He is under indictment there on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. He also is charged with aiding in the misapplication of funds and credits of the Greensburg National Bank at Greensburg, Ind.

Dr. Perry's father, Daniel F. Perry, former cashier of the bank, is now serving a sentence in Indiana, according to federal agents.

GENTRY SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM

JEFFERSON, Wis., July 6.—(AP.)—A swift stroke of justice had Carl Church, 36-year-old itinerant painter, in a Waupun state prison cell today under life sentence for the murder of Earl B. Gentry.

He told the court:

Church was sentenced yesterday by Circuit Court Judge George Grimm two hours after he pleaded guilty. He was started to prison without delay—within 18 hours of his capture at nearby Fort Atkinson.

Church said he killed Gentry because the one-time bodyguard of D. C. Stephenson, imprisoned former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, abused Mrs. Carrie D. Gill, Jefferson's "Sunshine Lady," who had been kind to Church while he was sick.

The "Sunshine Lady," so called because of charitable acts, pleaded innocence to a charge of first degree murder. Gentry was found shot to death Sunday in his automobile parked near the Gill residence.

WIFE TO EASE INSULL WOES

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Samuel Insull, the former Gladys Wallis of the stage, had returned to her husband today to "soften his hardship."

Arriving in Chicago last night after a stay of 18 months in Europe, she said in an interview at her husband's hotel suite:

"I think the most effectual women are the unselfish ones. Women's greatest metier should be to soften the hardships in life their men have to meet."

Insull, the deposed utilities czar, who is facing trial on charges growing out of the collapse of his interests, was not at the station to meet her. He had been advised by a physician that the excitement might provoke ill effects.

Mrs. Insull said of her husband:

"He's just the same as he was a few years ago, when he was considered, I believe, a highly respected citizen. Naturally, I haven't changed toward him. I've been wonderfully treated, very much shielded and protected, all my life. But do you know, I don't miss money. I realize I had much too much."

Mail Man Quits As Cupid and Baby Namer

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., July 6.—Retiring after 33 years, William T. Bingham, rural mail carrier, sat down and figured out that he's (a) weighed 24 babies with the scales he carries; (b) been matchmaker in two romances; (c) traveled more than 300,000 miles; (d) wore out six horses and four automobiles, and (e) named 15 babies for patrons along his route.

DEATH CLAIMS WOMAN, 105

Mrs. Henrietta White, a Negro, who claimed to be 105 years old, and who recently underwent an operation for the amputation of a leg, was dead today at her home, 273 Kirkpatrick street.

The aged woman was able to leave Passavant Hospital after the operation, it was said. Hospital authorities believed her to be the oldest patient to ever undergo a major operation. She became ill several days ago and died Wednesday.

FIGHTS SURGERY TO AID SON

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(AP.)—A father's belief that his son's crippled leg was an "act of God," brought the parent into Municipal Court to protest efforts to give the boy surgical aid.

Leaning on the crutches he has been forced to use since his left knee was broken two years ago, the boy, John Huffman, 16, stood in silence before Judge Theodore Rosen yesterday as his father declared:

"I cannot allow him to be touched by surgeons. It would be against my religious belief. I could not have man interfere in the acts of God."

A member of a sect which clings to faith healing, the elder Hoffman refused to permit surgeons to examine the fractured leg, even though a minor operation might restore to normal a limb now crooked from the stuffening effect of the broken joint.

With now law to force medical or surgical treatment, the Judge finally persuaded the father to let his son go to a hospital for an examination, then returning home. Decision was delayed a week to permit the jurist to study the hospital report.

NATIONAL AUTO C. OF C. QUITS BIG SHOWS

DETROIT, July 6.—(AP.)—The national automobile shows, as such, have been abandoned definitely, Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Instead of the national exhibits, held annually in New York and Chicago and participated in by the entire industry, he said, smaller shows will be announced by distributors in all important cities as new models appear on the market.

Macauley said that many manufacturers felt that the expenditure involved in the national exhibitions no longer was justified. He added:

"They will co-operate, however, with the distributors in the various cities."

The national automobile shows held annually for the last 34 years have been regarded as a tradition in automobile trade circles. The national shows were sponsored by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce as representing the industry as a whole. All other presentations throughout the country have been held by local dealer organizations and shows of the latter type in Chicago and New York are contemplated to take the place of the industry-sponsored presentations.

PARTY SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM

TAWAS CITY, Mich., July 6.—(AP.)—John A. Woods, 53-year-old bricklayer, whose shotgun wiped out the lives of Sheriff Charles A. Miller and three guests at a house party at East Tawas last Sunday, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

Judge Herman Dehnke, to make sure that Woods was not released by the parole board within 12 or 15 years, yesterday imposed a second sentence of from 40 to 50 years on an additional count.

The sentencing of Woods followed by a few hours a spectacular courtroom attempt to wreak vengeance upon the slayer by the brother of one of his victims.

Roy McMurray, athletic director of the Saginaw (Mich) public schools, and brother of Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes, one of the slaying victims, leaped over a railing in the courtroom and beat Woods with his fists until he was dragged away by Michigan state troopers.

BESIEGED MAN SHOT, TAKEN

BEAVER, Pa., July 6.—(AP.)—An 82-year-old man who successfully withstood a squad of state policemen in an hour-long gun battle is in the Beaver County Jail.

More than 40 shots were fired yesterday as the troopers went to the home of Kinsey McCormick, at Smiths Ferry, to arrest him on a charge of wounding a neighbor with a shotgun.

The aged farmer's surrender came after one of the state policemen's bullets grazed his shoulder.

Frank Quinn, 24, a son of Justice of the Peace D. J. Quinn, told the state policemen McCormick shot him several days ago as he returned to the McCormick home with several bottles of beer, for which McCormick had sent him. Quinn, wounded in the arms and stomach, is recovering in a hospital at East Liverpool, O.

Special Bus Rates To South Park Meet

If you are driving to the contest in an automobile you will find the roads well marked. The athletic field is located in the heart of the fair grounds at the south end of the park.

If you do not have a car special buses will carry you to the meet at a low price fare. Take a No. 53 Carrick street car to the end of the line—the Brentwood loop. You can get the Carrick car in the downtown district on Fourth avenue.

At the loop a Brentwood bus will meet you and take you to the South Park meet. The fare to the park and back will cost 20 cents, which is but half of the regular bus fare out and back.

The buses will run from 12 noon to 1:30 p. m. The return trip will be made between 5 and 6 p. m. Don't forget the time.

Herewith is a time schedule of the three flying events:

12:30 p. m. to 1:00 p. m.—All-balsa glider trial flights.

1:00 p. m. to 2:00 p. m.—Official all-balsa glider flights.

2:00 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.—Single propelled model trial flights.

2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.—Single propelled model official flights.

3:30 p. m. to 4:00 p. m.—Double propelled model trial flights.

4:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m.—Double propelled model official flights.

Lesson No. 18 in Model Builders' Course

Now for the assembly of our Single Stick Championship Endurance Model, a little time for test flying, and we are ready to go to the field tomorrow and win one of those dandy Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby Medals being awarded, or perhaps even a bigger prize such as the Wing Championship Trophy and the privilege of going to Washington (all expenses paid) to compete in the National Junior Birdmen Meet on July 28.

The assembly of this model is much like that of our all-balsa flier. Let's start right in.

Motor Stick Assembly

First, we assemble the motor stick units and then the motor plant. Take your large wing clip and cement it to the front edge of your wing, and then the small clip and cement it to the rear edge of your wing, exactly as you did with the all-Balsa low-wing flier. However, note that we reverse the wing clips.

This time the large one goes to the front and the small one to the rear. This is because our wing is now above our motor stick instead of underneath. Be careful of this change.

Next cement your elevator to the rear of the "tail boom," being set underneath with the tissue covering facing upward. The rudder is then cemented on.

The final step in the assembly of our motor stick unit is to glue the landing gear in place. The leading strut is cemented three inches back of the nose of the motor stick and the second strut follows two and one-half inches behind the leading strut. Then insert your axles through the Balsa wheels and place a drop of glue on the tip of the axle so that the wheels won't come off when they revolve.

Motor Power Plant Next

Now we are all ready to affix our motor power that makes the model fly. There are but few changes from the motor plant of our low-wing flier.

First, the thrust bearing is cemented to and bound to the front of the motor stick underneath instead of on top. You will note this clearly in illustration of completed model published with today's column.

For assembly of your propeller unit, including the propeller, shaft and washers, refer to the diagram with Lesson 14 turning entire drawing upside down to get proper view of thrust bearing fastened underneath instead of on top of motor stick.

Next fasten your "wire can" to the motor stick about seven or eight inches from the rear of the nose. The purpose of this fitting is to keep the strand of rubber (motor) close to the motor stick. The rubber is merely passed through the ring.

Just two more steps. They are (1)—To insert the rear motor hook underneath the motor stick just where it is joined together with the tail boom; (2) then the tail skid is inserted to and under the rear edge of the elevator directly under the tail boom. Be sure that these are cemented tightly in place.

Now tie the two ends of your rubber together and make four loops, two more than you did with your motor rubber for the low-wing flier. Attach one end of the loops to your propeller shaft and other end to your rear motor hook, inserting the rubber through the "wire can." Now you are all set—finished with your championship Single Stick Endurance Model.

How to Fly It

This model is adjusted, launched and flown as the low-wing flier. In fact our model is almost identical except that it is larger and has built-up wing and tail unit instead of solid sheet balsa.

Refer back to Lesson 14 for the complete details. Don't forget to take it right out and test-fly it in order to get the proper flying position for your wings before you enter it in tomorrow's Derby—and that's what you are going to do, isn't it?

News Behind the News :-:

PAUL MALLON

Roosevelt Plays Practical Joke on 'Colton Ed'

WASHINGTON, July 6.—President Roosevelt has a streak of the practical joker in him. He has been known to plot little tricks on his secretaries. He has disguised his voice for playful impersonations over the telephone. He has even laughed at himself when Louis Howe worked the fake match trick on him with safety matches so safe they would not light.

But the greatest practical joke of his entire career was the appointment a few days ago of Claud N. Sapp as federal attorney for Eastern South Carolina.

There is one that will slay you. In fact the inside story about it had to be held back a few days to see if it did slay Senator (Cotton Ed) Smith, of South Carolina.

Latest reports from his cotton plantation, however, are to the effect that the Senator suffered only a major stroke of chagrin, and not of apoplexy as was feared. He probably will never recover, but the effects will all be political and not physiological.

FLARE-UP

To get the background, you have to go back a few months when Senator Smith was hiding the Tugwell nomination in his pocket. You may recall he kept it hidden there until the White House offered a suggestion that two and perhaps three Smith men be named to important federal positions. Then and not until then did the Tugwell nomination get through the Senate.

Only those on the inside of South Carolina politics know it, but the White House called Smith on the telephone during those patronage negotiations. A voice on the wire suggested:

"What about Sapp for the eastern district attorneyship?"

Mr. Smith's classic reply is not a matter of record, but it was to the general effect that the White House could go to some place or other, the exact location of which would be clear only to those who have studied theology. Senator Smith added:

"Furthermore, if you send Sapp's nomination to the Senate, I will oppose him on the grounds that he is personally obnoxious to me."

TRICK

Senator Smith scanned each list of nominations sent to the Senate daily thereafter, but no Sapp came.

It was a week after the Senate had adjourned, and the day after Mr. Roosevelt had started for Hawaii, that one of Mr. Roosevelt's secretaries (Marvin McIntyre) blithely announced the recess appointment of Mr. Sapp. Mr. McIntyre's face was grim, immovable. He knew nothing about the matter. He knew not who had recommended Mr. Sapp, merely that the appointment was made.

The interesting part about it is that unless Senator Smith's chagrin proves fatal, Mr. Sapp will never be confirmed for the job. Senator Smith can and will see that the next Senate rejects Mr. Sapp even if it is necessary to take refuge in personal obnoxiousness. Consequently Mr. Sapp will receive no salary from his new job. He will serve unmolested and unrewarded only until the Senate reconvenes in January.

That might worry most men, but not Mr. Sapp. His friends say he has plenty of money so that he does not care about the salary. Neither does he care much about the job.

The inside whisper is that he will serve as federal attorney until along about January, and then resign. Meanwhile he will spend seven long months laughing at Senator Smith.

REASON

The reason Mr. Roosevelt went so far for Mr. Sapp is that Mr. Sapp did him a great political favor in the handling of the South Carolina delegation at the Chicago national convention. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley believe in remembering both their friends and their enemies and they got in a blow on both sides in the Sapp appointment.

The political consequences may be important. Mr. Sapp was defeated for Democratic state chairman not long ago by a few votes. His appointment may enable him to strengthen his position along with that of the other South Carolina Senator, Byrnes, a good friend of Mr. Roosevelt, who, however, has not been getting along very well with Mr. Sapp.

Naming of Sapp Blow to Carolina Senator

One thing is certain, Senator Smith, the chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee handling all AAA legislation next session, will never forget.

POLITICS

Not exactly in this connection, a well known young Chicago banker was discussing with friends a few days ago his experience as a Washington newsman during the Harding regime.

At that time President Harding had appointed an Ohio friend to an important banking position and sent the nomination to the Senate. The then newsman went around to see Senator McLean, who was chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, to ask about the appointee.

McLean responded:

"Why, he is an incompetent, inefficient nincompoop who knows less about banking than you do."

"Then you will oppose his confirmation?"

MAKE IT A "DATE"

WHEN the children are at camp this summer — when family and friends are scattered far and wide on vacation — you'll probably want to make many an out-of-town telephone call.

Here's something worth knowing. Station to Station calls cost surprisingly little — and still less if you take advantage of the low Evening or Night Rates.

One way to use this low-cost service and be sure of reaching the persons you want is to make a "date" in advance. Set the time when you will call and they'll be waiting at the telephone.

From Pittsburgh you can make a Station to Station call to Atlantic City for $1.45 by day — $1.25 after 7:00 P. M. Standard Time — 85 cents after 8:30 P. M. Standard Time.

HOW TO MAKE A STATION TO STATION CALL

Give the number to your local operator (dial red "0"). "Information" will give you any number you do not know. Just say, for example: "I want Atlantic City, Marine 1234," and hold the line. If you ask for a specific person, hotel room or extension telephone you will be making a Person to Person call which costs more and offers no Evening or Night reductions.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

Andrew O'Donnell at the Veterans' Hospital has the kind of a mind that does not forget. Years ago he read that a certain European country once before defaulted on war debts. The creditor of that time, he says, was the Florentine government.

He wants to know the year that default occurred.

Not having that same kind of ability for remembering, I cannot recall reading or hearing anything about this default. Andy, get a catalogue from the Carnegie Library and make a list of books in which the information you seek may be found.

Send me the list and I'll try to arrange to have those books sent to the hospital for your temporary use.

If you find the answer, you tell me.

* * *

While I am on a subject of the Veterans' Hospital, I want to express my thanks to Mrs. Madge Crouch of Rural Valley, Pa., who in response to an appeal for discarded silk stockings sent a new pair of silk socks for one of the veterans at the hospital.

I want to thank her, but I want to explain that the silk stockings I am asking for are not to be used for wearing apparel, but to be used in the making of hooked rugs; and discarded ladies' silk stockings (as well as underwear) will be just as acceptable.

Joseph Jackson of North avenue, with fine irony, asked if I would favor him by asking the party who so oblingingly stole his radio to communicate with him, as Mr. Jackson would be glad to give the party the back of the radio.

Mr. Jackson says he was also very sorry that the back of the radio was being repaired when the rest of his radio was stolen, but he assures the party it won't happen again.

I suppose Mr. Jackson now hopes that as punishment the thief will not be able to hear anything on it but the Globe Trotter.

Joe Penner's Duck Gets Ax, 'Nasty Man' Gets Gate

By AIRCASTER

He gave the Aircaster a call, to say so-long, and incidentally dropped a bit of information which should bring solace to parents and teachers of the nation.

These guardians of juveniles, doubtless would, without this information, have had their summer ruined by anticipation of Joe's return on October 7, and the simultaneous outbreaks of puerile echoings of "Wanna buy a duck?" "Izzatso?" "You nasty man," and other Pennerisms.

But they need have no such fears.

"You can tell 'em for me," Joe said, "that Penner is no longer a duck salesman. The duck is dead.

Nasty man is dead. Izzatso? is out. In fact, never again will the public hear those catchlines."

"Will you," I suggested, "put that in writing?"

"You do it," he countered. "But don't reassure the public too much. There'll be new taglines and new phrases next season."

And with that threat, Joe scrammed, but not before I discovered that he was plotting also next year to bring to life, at least once, that evasive and capricious air sweetheart of his, Susabella.

Official Study of American Aviation

By James T. Williams, Jr.

AMERICAN aviation is again to be the subject of official investigation. President Roosevelt, just before beginning his Atlantic-Pacific cruise aboard the U. S. S. Houston, appointed five members of the commission authorized by the last Congress to make "an immediate study and survey" of all phases of American aviation.

It must report to Congress, not later than February 1, 1935, its recommendations of "a broad policy," whatever that means, covering all phases of aviation and the relation thereto of the United States.

Of the five members selected by Mr. Roosevelt for this commission, only two have any expert knowledge of aviation.

The other is Edward P. Warner, of Washington, whose success as a professor of aeronatuical engineering in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology won him the appointment by President Coolidge as Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics.

* * *

Many Studies During the War

THERE were many investigations of aviation before and during the Great War. Since the end of that conflict, there have been many more. The first of these post-bellum inquiries into military aviation was made by the Dickman Board—a board of eight Army officers who met in France in the early part of 1919. Maj. Gen. J. T. Dickman headed this board which reported upon the lessons learned from the war while they were still fresh in the minds of those who won the war.

About the same time, another board of Army officers was appointed and met in Washington in the summer of 1919 to study and report upon a bill to establish a department of aeronautics. This board was headed by Maj. Gen. Charles C. Manehor.

In the summer of 1920, another board of Army officers headed by Maj. Gen. Fox Conner, began an inquiry into military aviation, which resulted in an illuminating report on the subject.

Then came the well-known Lassiter board, of which Maj. Gen. William Lassiter was the president, and eight other distinguished Army officers, each selected for their efficiency, were members.

The purpose of this board, two members of which were detailed from the Army Air Service, was to determine the strength and organization in personnel and material which the Army Air Service required for the efficient performance of its peace and war-time missions.

The next investigation of aviation launched by the federal government began in the latter part of 1924 and continued until the early part of 1925. It was conducted by the so-called Lampert committee. The chairman was Congressman Lampert, of Wisconsin, and its members were eight other representatives in Congress designated to make this inquiry.

Meantime, a special board of naval officers, headed by Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, with eight admirals who had seen service in the war, completed a comprehensive report setting forth its findings regarding the organization and development of air force in the Navy.

which has yet to be proved.

* * *

The Morrow Board's Thorough Inquiry

OF all the investigations thus far made into American aviation, however, the most thorough and the most valuable was that made by the Morrow board. This board was appointed by President Coolidge in the summer of 1925. It began its meetings in September of that year in the federal city. Its chairman was Dwight W. Morrow, who was assisted by nine members of the board selected from Congress, from the Army and Navy and from civil life.

The effort of this board—the President's Aircraft Board as it was called—was to determine the best means of developing and applying aircraft in national defense. Its report is by far the most authoritative and informing public document yet produced by the many boards, commissions and committees that have investigated aviation since the Great War ended.

These total 14 since 1919 and the sum of their conclusions may well be carefully studied by the new commission just appointed by the President, the usefulness of

RITE OF ROSES FAREWELL TO MME. CURIE

SCEAUX, France, July 6.—(AP.)—Mme. Marie Curie was buried today as she had lived, in the utmost simplicity.

There was a 10-minute ceremony without a civil or religious ritual. Her frail, wasted body, which she devoted to science, was lowered in a plain oak casket into the same grave with her husband in a crowded and least expensive part of the little village cemetery.

Roses were distributed to each of the 25 laboratory associates and 150 friends and scientists.

CONDOLENCES RECEIVED

Mme. Curie's two daughters, heavily veiled and wearing black, and a son-in-law then, according to French custom, stood nearby and received condolences. They shook hands with the other mourners as all passed by and out of the cemetery.

The flower ceremony was conducted wordlessly.

Four of the family's graves are there now. Prof. Pierre Curie, husband of Mme. Curie and co-discoverer with her of radium, who was killed by a truck in 1906, and his father and mother, are buried side by side.

At the head of Prof. Curie's grave is a rambler rose bush planted 28 years ago by Mme. Curie. It is now in gorgeous bloom for the first time since it was planted, villagers said.

HONORED BY NATIONS

Beside the severely plain casket were laid wreaths from the French government, the President of Poland, the Polish ambassador, and probably all radium laboratories in the world, including those in the United States and Canada.

Mme. Curie, who died Wednesday at the age of 66, a martyr to science because her radium experiments contributed directly to her death, was a native of Poland.

The casket had a small plain silver plate bearing her name and the dates of her birth and death. Wreaths of roses were placed on the casket.

Daughter to Pursue Radio-Activity Study

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

Universal Service Science Editor

NEW YORK, July 6.—Mme. Marie Curie is dead, a martyr to scientific knowledge of radium, but her daughter, Irene Curie, expects to discover the cause of radio-activity in nature.

Two years ago I called on the famous mother and daughter and found both of them studying this problem deeply. The frail mother was even then in precarious health, but the daughter, young, brilliant and alert, talked to me for nearly an hour about her research.

Irene showed a remarkable gift for describing clearly and briefly the behavior of neutrons, the newly discovered.

But what interested her particularly, she told me, was: What causes radio-activity?

That is, why does a radio-active element like radium, uranium or actinium explode and produce gamma rays with a definite time-rate of explosion? Why do they produce beams of electrons and helium atomic cores with clock-like regularity?

This problem is in Irene Curie's hands now, and others in the scientific world predict she will produce the answer.

Accused Man Eats His Own Words

MONTREAL, Quebec, July 6.—(AP.)—Timothy I. Burdick in Superior Court was alleged to have eaten his words. Testimony showed that Burdick, called on to pay a $300 note to M. D. Ivanoff, a baker, obtained the document, tore it to bits and swallowed the scraps. Burdick denied this and said he had paid Ivanoff. But Ivanoff won.

Crow That Talks Mothers Chickens

WOODSTOCK, Ontario, July 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. M. P. McGachie's talking crow is mothering three small chickens, snapping at strangers who come near the little brood. The McGachie family had substituted bantam's eggs for those laid by the crow. The bird, able to speak several words, is 12 years old.

RIVER TRAFFIC TO HALT FOR REGATTA

Traffic will be practically at a standstill on the Allegheny River July 14-15 as the two-day Sun-Telegraph motorboat regatta is being held.

Navigation heads of leading Pittsburgh corporations whose boats and barges use the rivers for industrial traffic have issued orders to keep boat movements to the minimum to assure safety to the drivers competing for the Hearst Gold Cup.

Among companies taking steps to keep the river clear for the water carnival are the Carnegie Steel Company and the Jones and Laughlin Steel Company.

Commander A. O. Ackard, in charge of the Carnegie Steel fleet, is attempting to arrange that none of the company's boats pass the point of the races, opposite the Oakmont Boat Club, between 2 and 6 p. m. on July 14 and between 1 and 5 p. m. on July 15, it was announced.

Permission to hold the races has been obtained from the State Department of Fisheries and from the United States engineers' office, responsible for navigable streams.

Crowds of more than 100,000 are expected if the weather is favorable. Banks of the river will be lined for long distances. The oval course of a mile and a quarter, making possible a five-mile race in four laps, will be equipped with judges' and other official barges, as well as loudspeakers, so that every part of the races will be audible as well as visible to the huge crowd.

Special parking arrangements are being made, as well as arrangements to handle traffic to Oakmont and policing of the river.

Entries in the series of motorboat classics are both amateur and professional. Entries have been made from eight states, with scores more expected before the end of the week. Eight five-mile heats are to be run daily so that each day will give spectators the same racing thrills.

Cat Locked Week In 'Hot-Box,' Lives

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., July 6.—(AP.)—A dry kiln which maintains a temperature of 180 degrees was closed a week ago at the West Box and Lumber Company. Six days later it was opened. Crouched in the motor box was Thomas York's cat, weak and wobbly.

Today she ran about gaily as ever.

M'NAIR SIGNS ORDINANCES FOR CITY GARBAGE PLANTS

INCINERATORS ASSURED BY DECISION

Purchase of North Side Site Also Approved; Protests in Vain

Municipal-owned incinerator plants for rubbish and garbage disposal were assured Pittsburgh today with the signing by Mayor William N. McNair of two ordinances for the erection of incinerators and a resolution authorizing the purchase of an incinerator site on the North Side.

The three measures were signed by the Mayor without comment. It was the last day which the Chief Executive had to make a decision on the matter.

The resolution approved by the Mayor was for the purchase of the property of the Pittsburgh Forgings Company beneath north approach to the new West End-North Side Bridge, at Reedsdale and Chateau streets. The site will cost $70,000. Recently Mayor McNair had condemned the purchase and hinted in a statement that there must be graft for someone in connection with the deal.

PROTESTS IGNORED

The Mayor also signed the ordinance authorizing the construction of an incinerator plant, 600-ton daily capacity, on the North Side property and another plant having a 300-ton daily capacity on the city property at Brilliant Pumping Station near Highland Park.

The signing of the measures was done over the protests of hundreds of residents of the North Side and East End sections. Several delegations visited the office of the Mayor and also called upon Council and the individual Councilmen, protesting against the sites selected.

The City Bureau of Sanitation already has plans completed for the erection of the two incinerators and it is likely that bids will be asked for within 10 days or two weeks. At present the city is disposing of its garbage and rubbish by contracts which expire the end of this year.

Before garbage can be disposed of in the incinerator plants it will be necessary for the city to get permission from the County Commissioners. Rubbish can be disposed of without any approval from the county authorities.

WARNS OF POLLUTION

Meanwhile, a statement by John A. Dalzell, member of a citizens' committee, renewed the barrage against the proposal to erect an incinerator at the Brilliant pumping site.

Dalzell, in a statement, warned that the Highland Park reservoirs from which Shadyside residents receive their water supply, may become polluted from ashes from the proposed incinator.

The statement added that when the wind blows from a southerly direction the filtration plants located on the Aspinwall side of the Allegheny River might similarly become polluted.

BAPTIST RAPS ARGUMENTS OVER DEITY

B. Y. P. U. Told to Do 'Things You Ought To Do'

Three highways lead into real Christianity, Dr. Luther W. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Syracuse, N. Y., told this morning's session of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, in William Penn Hotel.

Dr. Smith listed them as desire, action and sacred quietude. He said:

"If what we want is not God and what He can give, but the world and what it can give—low self-indulgence — then what we want we will get.

"Don't argue about God if you want more light. Go do the thing you know you ought to do."

Condemning the practice of "giving as little as you can," the Rev. Frederick A. Agar, financial expert of the Northern Baptist Convention, told a conference group:

"Some people steal from God week days by spending what they should put into the collection; then they wonder why their prayers are not answered.

"We give God the nickels and pennies—as little as we can get away with."

Dr. Agar averred that churches should not and need not depend upon large contributions from persons who make such contributions simply as a form of advertising and not as Christianity.

Richard Holland, director of the young people's division, American Baptist Publication Society, told a devotional group that the church today needs action. He said:

"Why is the church in Germany today stilled by a dictatorship? Because they did not act; they didn't do anything before the dictatorship came.

"It was the same thing in the war. We talked against war, but when it happened we all went off to fight."

CHANGE IN MAIL FEES CITED

Under an amendment to postal regulations, delivery of registered, insured, or C. O. D. mail matter, restricted to "the addressee only," will require an additional fee of 10 cents, effective Monday. The ruling was announced by Postmaster W. M. Turner.

He said that if the sender restricts delivery, the extra fee must be paid at the time of mailing, but if the addressee restricts delivery, it will be necessary to pay the fee at the time of delivery.

It also was announced that the postage rate on international parcel post packages, at 14 cents a pound or fraction thereof, is now the same to all foreign countries, except in instances where there are transit charges.

BELLEVUE CHIEF DIES CHASING RUNAWAY

'Smiling Dan' Collapses Seeking to Return Boy to Mother

Smiling Daniel Rosemeier, Bellevue's chief of police, died today as he was chasing a runaway youth along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks between Bellevue and Emsworth stations.

Mr. Rosemeier

Death apparently was caused by a heart attack, according to Drs. W. J. K. Snyder and G. H. Wallace.

And the boy he pursued—Jack Lovett, 19, of 4040 Canborne street, helped Patrolman William Darling to carry the stricken man into the offices of the Tejan Coal Company, where he was pronounced dead.

Lovitt's mother had called Police Station No. 13 this morning to halt her son who was leaving home on a freight train. Bellevue police were asked to head him off, according to Patrolman Darling.

Rosemeier, who was 57, was one of the county's most popular police heads. He had served as the borough's chief for approximately 15 years and had lived in Bellevue for 40 years.

In his early years he was a teamster contractor and before the World War was employed by Bellevue as driver of its fire apparatus. During the war, he served as a fireman for the government in Neville Island.

After the war he became a patrolman in Bellevue and three years later was made chief.

WIFE INJURED, GETS DIVORCE

Pretty Lillian B. Lusk, 33, of 5420 Ellsworth avenue, who testified her husband, Grover M. Lusk, lumber salesman, broke her nose and cut her head, has been granted a divorce by Judge George V. Moore.

Lusk, his wife said, drank too much and on one occasion stood by her bed, razor in hand, while intoxicated and said:

"Your throat ought to be cut from ear to ear."

Attorney Louis Little represents Mrs. Lusk.

Baer Tells What To Do on Your European Trip

We have just figured out an arm salute that is positively neutral. Wave your finger three times around your head and then bite it off.

This salute is for use on your European vacation when you are taking pictures of the Rhine fortifications.

France and Japan are offering loving cups to the school teacher who takes the best snapshot of its secret ambuscades.

On your tour over there take along a replica of Joseph's coat of many colors. Then you will be a member of the brown, black, green and purple shirts.

The color of your pants seems to make no difference in the new brand of old world politics. That's where they shoot you.

Boy's Flight Saves Dog From Execution

UNIONTOWN, July 6.—His pet dog, Tom, condemned to die for digging up a few cabbage plants, Elmer Danch, 14, deserted his parents and five brothers and sisters to save the animal.

Tom hid away while the family ire was at its height, following the discovery that the cabbage patch had been ruined. Orders had been given to shoot Tom in the morning rather than risk further destruction.

That night the boy obtained a stout rope and kept it handy. Before the hour of execution, he slipped away with Tom at the end of the rope. Elmer took nothing to eat; nothing extra to wear. After two days and nights Elmer and Tom were picked up in Uniontown and held for Alex Danch, the father. The boy declared:

"I'll never go back, Pap, until you promise no harm will come to Tom."

Alma Gluck's Heir, 11 Weeks Old, Naps in Plane

The young woman—young lady, in fact—was Cornelia Whipple Davenport, granddaughter of Alma Gluck, the singer.

Cornelia, who is all of 11 weeks old, was bundled into her basket, dropped onto a seat in a cabin monoplane at Rodgers Field, and whisked off to her parents, hundreds of miles away.

For a brief moment she opened her blue eyes, looked nowhere in particular, decided to shut them and renew her slumbers; she simply wasn't interested in all this fuss.

Not every baby takes a four-hour plane ride in her first year, but Cornelia is air-minded—was, in fact, almost born in a plane.

They were on hand to greet the young lady when the ship landed safely in Vermont this afternoon.

Cornelia was accompanied on her air journey by her personal physician, Dr. Charles J. Barone; a nurse, Miss Mary Zimmerer, Pilot Jack Morris—and four hot water bottles.

Dr. Barone predicted that Cornelia would ignore the bumps of the air and the drone of the motor for a long beauty sleep.

Cornelia's health, which was a topic of worry in her incubator weeks, is excellent, the doctor said. And when she was weighed an hour before taking off, the scales announced 9 pounds 3 ounces.

Cornelia was born in Magee Hospital a few hours after her mother and Dr. Barone flew hurriedly here from New York 11 weeks ago.

Relief Heads Planning New Appeal to McNair

New Jobless Group Joins in Fight For Funds

Unemployed organizations and relief officials are preparing further protests to Mayor McNair on his veto of the use of $500,000 out of the city's $3,000,000 direct relief bond issue for relief purposes.

Although the Mayor treated a delegation from the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board rather brusquely yesterday, walking out in order to address a crowd from the Unemployed Citizens' League, the relief executives hope to get in touch with him again today.

The Mayor's argument was that the federal government is not furnishing adequate relief funds in Pittsburgh, and was deaf to statements that the government had been pouring more than one million dollars a month into Pittsburgh.

The Mayor is being asked to withdraw his veto message before Council acts on it. He says he will not do it.

The Unemployed Citizens' League yesterday demanded that he withdraw his veto, and after arguing the land tax with them, the Mayor left in a chorus of hisses and boos.

The Unemployed Councils of Allegheny County, another group, are also rallying the unemployed to bring pressure on the Mayor.

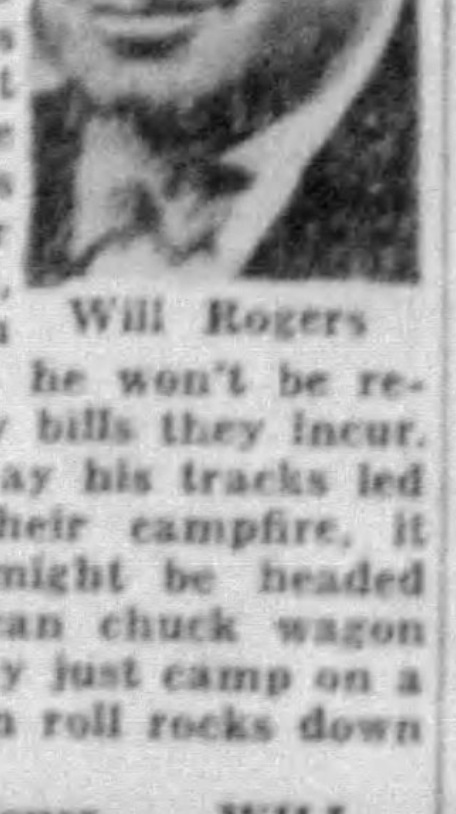
WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 6.

Senator Borah I think is a mighty able and a self-thinking statesman. (You notice I said statesman). A statesman is a man that can do what the politician would like to do, but can't, because he is afraid of not being elected.



Will Rogers

Well, Senator Borah, who has spent the past winter with the Democrats, is leaving their bed and board, and has given instructions that he won't be responsible for any bills they incur. Now from the way his tracks led when he left their campfire, it looked like he might be headed for the Republican chuck wagon again. Or he may just camp on a hill where he can roll rocks down on both of em.

Yours, WILL.

MAYVIEW STORE DEFIES COUNCIL

Defying the wishes of City Council, Welfare Director Southard Hay has opened a co-operative store for the benefit of patients at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview.

Director Hay has persuaded Mayor McNair to veto an ordinance passed by Council authorizing a five-year lease of the Mayview store to Mrs. Margaret J. Harvey.

The new store is being managed by officials of the institution, Director Hay announced, and the profits will be used entirely for recreational work among patients.

New explosions in the battle between Director Hay and Councilman P. J. McArdle, who introduced the lease ordinance, are expected momentarily.

William H. McArdle, a son of the Councilman, was ousted from his position as clerk and laboratory assistant at Mayview, but was restored by a Civil Service ruling.

COURT OUSTS TOWNSHIP HEAD

Judge Harry H. Rowand has handed down an opinion refusing a new trial to William Joyce, who took office January 3, as a commissioner of North Versailles Township, and directing he be ousted from office, because he is not a citizen of the United States.

Joyce asked for a new trial, because Judge Rowand refused to let him testify as to his age, on which his right to hold office hinged. Judge Rowand said every opportunity was given Joyce to produce corroboration as to his age and when he failed to do so, he was not permitted to testify.

Joyce was born in Galway, Ireland, April 5, 1888. His father was not naturalized until June 10, 1909, or after Joyce was 21. Had Joyce's father been naturalized before April 5 1909, Joyce would have become a citizen by reason of that fact.

Borough Fireworks Ban Sought by Garland

An ordinance which would completly ban fireworks from the city will be introduced in Council as soon as that body reconvenes, by President Robert Garland.

Garland, who led several unsuccessful fights against fireworks in the old Council, believes that his new effort will be successful.

A campaign will also be carried on seeking similar action in surrounding boroughs, he stated.

The proposed ordinance would outlaw the sale or use of fireworks in the city, with the exception of public displays by properly qualified groups.

The only fireworks ordinance in effect at the present time is a rather loose regulation which prohibits the discharge of very large cannon crackers or the use of blank cartridges.

There is also a provision in effect for licensing dealers and prohibitions concerning storage of the explosives in public buildings.

The ordinance proposed by Garland prohibits not only firecrackers, but sparklers and pyrotechnics of all descriptions.

The penalty proposed for shooting firecrackers is a fine of $50 or 30 days in jail for each offense. The same applies to sales.

NOTEBOOK LEAF FILED AS WILL

A short note which Mrs. Goldie C. Lautz, widow, of 1541 Fallowfield avenue, Beechview, scribbled in her notebook is an unusual will, distributing an estate valued at $5,000.

Filed for probate today, the note reads:

Louise is a sister-in-law, Louise K. Lautz. Bill is a brother, William Barnes, and the father, T. H. Barnes.

The will of Mrs. Mary Michalski, widow, of Brereton avenue, distributes an estate of $8,800 to four children with a few minor bequests.

CABANA ENSEMBLES OF DASH AND MERIT

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EVEN THE most ardent swimmers like to have a smart cabana or sand outfit ready to hand for the dull day when the water is not so hot but the outdoors appeals, or for the cocktail party that follows or precedes a plunge in the briny. Many sea clubs have restaurants, too, where some such conventional change from a bathing suit is easier and more fun than getting into town clothes immediately.

There seems to be special emphasis laid on the costume which combines a shirt with slacks of some sort, and the slacks of the moment are a happy compromise between the pajama flapper and the very mannish trou which few women have the figure for, to put it bluntly. Heavy silk jersey of novel weave, light wool jersey, and good wash silk crepe are some of the favored slacks fabrics.

* * *

COTTON SLACKS just don't get off to the right start for sophisticated cabana wear, though cotton beach dresses with halter back and a detachable flaunting skirt over shorts get by very nicely. It is just one of those things. Sail cloth slacks of mannish cut are something separate, however, and for the girl who is plenty active even when she is supposedly lounging on the cabana terrace no swanker ensemble than ox blood canvas slacks, a yellow string pullover and a bright purple neckerchief, say, could be thought up. The effect is quite dude-ranchy, perhaps, but sandals and a beach hat or Basque beret in place of boots and a 10-gallon sombrero will save the sartorial situation.

* * *

GREAT BIG rubber-lined bags, capacious models that will hold dark glasses, a magazine, smokes, flask, makeup, sun oil, and maybe a piece of knitting, are useful, smart accessories. Sandals are swell this year, aping espadrilles from any old country, clogs from the Orient, and even boudoir mules. St. Tropes never turned out any sillier, more effective hats than we have over here now, and there is a wide choice in wraps of cape or coat persuasion.

Gardeners Win Penn-Hebron Debate

The judges at the Penn-Hebron Garden Club's debate last night decided that 36 holes in the garden are more beneficial than 36 holes of golf. Mrs. S. G. Dunning and Mrs. Wallace Alberts, on the garden side of the debate, contended that not only does gardening bring exercise and pleasure but it is productive of nourishment for the body and cheer for the spirit. Dr. N. L. Morrow and C. H. Long lost the decision for the golfing. Judges were Mrs. Philip Newman, Charles Wilson and Dr. C. E. McAdams.

The meeting, which was attended by 100 persons, many of them men, was the one evening meeting of the season. There was music on the program, too, the club quartet making its first public appearance. Its members are Mrs. Olga Morrow, Mrs. E. S. Henry, Mrs. B. E. Kimmell and Miss Frances Beswarick, with Thomas Elliott accompanying. Mr. Elliott and Miss Beswarick also sang a duet, accompanied by Mrs. Morrow.

On Wednesday of next week the clubwomen will visit 14 gardens belonging to their own members. Tea will be served somewhere along the garden route.

Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

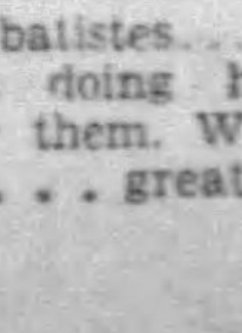
"Jumbo" is not an elephant! In this instance, it is the name of the eyelets that make these frocks so air-cooled . . . so smart . . . so beloved of limp and lagging feminine torsos these days!

After having escaped the "Fourth's" celebrations with all our requisite number of arms and legs . . . we went rooting 'round looking for something interesting . . . if not new! And these are our current contributions to the world . . . beautifully styled wash frocks to sell for $2.98.

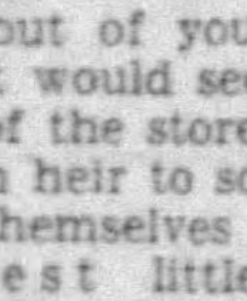


They're batistes . . . with myriads of eyelets doing hop-skip-and-jump over them. With flattering necklines . . . greater amount of embroidery . . . generous sweep and line to their skirts . . . in pastels . . . navy or brown for town wear . . . and with all trimmings from frills to flounces . . . buttons to belts! Sizes 14 to 44 . . . take them with our blessing. (NO! They are NOT "house-dressy!")

* * *

When turning up your toes to the daisies this season . . . do it in white washable kid sandals that are holding sway at this little shop in town! The kind of shoes that you have doubtless searched for in vain (too often!) . . . with bits of stripping enclosing their toes, a hand-braided strap across their vamp . . . and your choice of a high or low heel. All sizes 2½ to 8 . . . AAA to C. And prices . . . this being the best part . . . priced at $2.85!

* * *



A cedar chest . . . to keep the moths out of your bath powder! Or so it would seem!

One of the stores has apparently fallen heir to some lumber, and built themselves some of the sweetest little cedar chests (REALLY nice aromatic ones) you ever saw . . . then filled them up with bath powder just to fool you. The idea being that when you use up the powder . . . behold a grand trinket or a handkerchief box. With a little place for a tiny padlock if you feel secretive about your belongings! 69c.

VIEWING THE NEW

The buyer of these porch gliders told us . . . "if I wanted to be REALLY nice to my friends . . . I'd advise them to buy these gliders that have been reduced!"

And we could see that "his heart was in the right place" when he said it! For these have been priced $19.50 to $29.50 . . . and are now going to be sold at $17.50. Large, comfortable ones with moving arms . . . ball bearings . . . coil springs . . . 6 cushions (most of them) . . . and waterproof coverings. In many shades. The ideal thing for front porches and lawns on moonlight nights.

ON BROADWAY

Scar Dust

Last night a song reminded me of you,
And ghosts came trouping back around my bed;
The spirit of a lad that once you knew,
His vanished dreams, and hopes that are long dead.
Remember all those verses that he thought
Would set the world afire? And the plays
That seemed to sparkle? All have come to naught
And years are just a blur . . . drab, endless days.

Last night I read the letter you had sent
In fond remembrance when that friendship died.
Why treasure heartache when all love is spent,
And fate is certain as the ocean tide?

Last night . . . Oh, some could write it out much better,
I burned my bridges, dreams, and your last letter.

MacPherson.

The Retort Delightful

Nothing pleases me so much as a nimble retort when a heckler has it coming to him. The other night, frinstance, at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco, a lovely room, featuring a grand crew piloted by Griffith Williams and Jimmy Walsh, a slightly blotto patron interrupted Mack Gordon. Mack was warbling some of his and H. Revel's songs.

"Got any better songs?" hiccoughed the stew.

"When better songs are written," replied Gordon tactfully, "Irving Berlin will write 'em!"

Izzy Elinsonism

Why Authors Die Young

Far be it from us to make faces at some of the Hollywood dopes but an agent was talking to a movie producer about hiring some good writers. The producer's secretary walked in and announced that Nina Wilcox Putnam was outside.

Observation

If the fad for large postage stamps continues, we may soon have to paste the envelope in the corner of the stamp!

Mis-Caste

Freddie Berrens, the orchestra leader, was notified that he was to be made a Kentucky Colonel. He sent back word that he didn't want it. Because, he added, he understood this country was a democracy—that the revolution was fought to be rid of the caste system, and he certainly wasn't going to be any part of a scheme that is purely based on caste.

The Kentucky colonelcy as we have said already is something that (plus a nickel) gets you a ride in the subway.

Old, But Comical

Ray Hendricks of New Jersey likes that one about two men who went into a beanery. The first said:

"I'll have a steak."

"That's a good idea," said the other, "I'll have the same and make sure it's tender!"

"Okay," said the waiter, as he called the chef, "two steaks, one tender!"

Off-Stage Drama

A big scene was being shot, with 50 extras, mostly middle-aged and older men milling around the scene. The setting was a large business office, exaggerated as they do on the screen. The director stopped the cameras, and pointing to a gray-haired man of dignified appearance, told his assistant to place the man at a desk and have him sort over some papers.

The white-haired man obeyed the direction, and took his seat. The papers for the desk had been scraped up from waste material in the studio's old files.

The gray-haired man began smiling, and beckoning to the director, called the latter to his side. The director saw that among the papers were numerous cancelled checks, ranging in amounts from $500 to $2,000. The checks bore the signature of King Baggot.

Merciless Truth

Another waste of time and energy, advises Olin Miller, is getting mad at the kind of people who make you mad.

New American Tragedy

My typewriter's been shocking
It's causing me to frown,
The carriage has been knocking
My beer bottles down!

J. L. Wright.

As If We Didn't Know

A. Murray suggests that imitators and plagiarists be called "Parrotsites" instead of parasites.

Sure Winner

Hugh De Marche was in Moore's with a group of pals the other night and fell to babbling about the ponies, as one chap read a racing sheet aloud.

"'Fair Lady' looks good," replied Hugh.

And so it went all the way down to the sixth race.

And then, turning to a tout who wasn't listening, but who was reading his favorite sports writer, the speaker said:

"Who do you like, Joe?"

"Who, me?" was the retort, "oh, I like Nancy Carroll."

In Fewer Words

And Tony Wons says some of the Broadway shows should be called: "Smelodramas."

By Way of Report

The ex-wife of a lad, who reminds you of Harry Richman (when he canaries) left him for a screen career. She recently split with her manager, thus ruining a brilliant opportunity, which he had been readying. Because, it appears, the manager interfered with the strange love-making of her new sweetie, a Jersey planter (undertaker to you!).

The "planter" had the habit of beating her up and abusing her against the manager's wishes.

So what happened? Did she stick by the manager, fighting in her behalf—or her caveman? You guessed correctly.

Oop!

Of course, you've heard Arthur Boran's nifty. It's about the actor who wanted to retire from show business, so he joined Ben Bernie's act.

Big Top Wet But Inside All Gay

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

With a downpour of wet water and a symphony of storm just before the chameleons got ready to be sold, it was quite in tune that the band should strike up "Mandalay" when the elephants came galloping in, for the audience had performed like the flying fishes as the thunder came up the bay. But all was speedily forgotten as the "Biggest Show on Earth" began to unfold its myriad marvels in Exposition Park last night. Everybody was in good humor, especially the seals, who played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" with enough false notes to get their citizenship papers as real Americans.

An effort has been made to live up to the "bigger and better" tradition, although that is hard. Two men are fired out of the giant cannon now—Victor and his brother Huga—and Aimee, the human fly of a generation ago, has inspired the Merkels to walk feet upward against the ceiling. Genuine shrieks are also invited when Mlle. Gillette has a narrow shave from death as her trapeze breaks. But Mlle. Gillette turns the shrieks into applause when she doesn't break her neck, and the audience is glad to be disappointed.

The clowns, also, are there in droves. It must take a private chalk pit to supply them all with talcum for their facial geography. Along with the comic stunts that no circus would be without, like the house on fire, there are some novelties—among them the Three Little Pigs and the B. B. W. There are dachshunds longer than Hitler would allow; there is an ostrich with a revolving barber pole neck; there is a chicken hitched to a cart, and there is a Falstaff who is deflated by an operation with a sword. Official census figures say there are 150 clowns, and it really looked like more. But Col. Fellows, chief of the census bureau, surely would not dexaggerate.

NO BROKEN NECKS

The most breakneck feat in the program of whirls and dizzy gambols would seem to be that bicycle parade of the Wallendas on an aerial wire, with a chair balanced between them and one fair Wallenda balanced on the shoulders of the chair's occupant. But then the Otaris came along, 10 of them, and criss-crossed one another in the stratosphere as if they were human shooting stars. At the same time Antoinette Concello, one of the Flying Concello tribe, turned a pinwheel from one trapeze to another.

Acrobats and contortionists fairly got into one another's way. While the Yakopis were turning tandem somersaults, the Danwills, newcomers, indulged in three-shoulder somersaults. And the show would not be complete unless Con Colleano achieved his extraordinary somersaults on the wire. One feels that he could never do them without the entrance music from "Carmen."

There are three or four troupes of Chinese and Japanese acrobats—the Wongs, the Tongees and the Yom Kams, who are nimble as squirrels and seemingly break no bones because they have no bones to break.

VERY BEAUTIFUL ACTS

But for grace and beauty the horsemanship of the Loyal-Repenski Family even outclassed the golden statues grouped around the rainbow fountain. This equestrian octette with their beautiful horses make the Valkyries look like a merry-go-round. As for Dorothy Herbert, if there are any lady centaurs, she is it. With an equine ballet to do her bidding, she is the most daring and graceful rider of this show.

And she's young. That is one of the remarkable things about this year's exhibition. More young performers do thrilling things than have been on the program for years. The procession began with the Mitzirose Sisters, riding all the way from the Ural Mountains—and adjectives like chic, petite, dainty, etc., would fit many others. With the Biggest Show on Earth such diminutive adjectives will not do, it seems, so the audience will have to count the teeth of the stars to ascertain their age. But youth is everywhere in evidence—and they were even expecting a baby giraffe to be an added attraction before the night was over. The expectant mother thought the environment of an East Liberty week-end would be more auspicious.

The half has not been told, for with three rings and four stages the half cannot be seen. To say nothing of the sideshows, where you can be amazed and horrified for two bits. To say nothing of the menagerie, where all the animals that ever got into crossword puzzles are proved to be true. But they all felt out of place except the seals. The lion was heard to remark to the Bengal tiger that he hoped Point Breeze today would not be so damp. And the giraffe was trying to borrow a baby raincoat.

Versatile

Paul Pendarvis, besides swinging his baton over his orchestra in the Urban Room, Hotel William Penn, also plays the sax and violin. The band features include specialty entertainers.

M. Howard Studies Japanese

Moe Howard, one of the Columbia's three stooges, is undertaking the study of the Japanese language. He's already memorized the alphabet of 76 letters, and has learned to say "Good morning" and "Good evening," or whatever it is the Orientals use as salutations.

Torn Script Reclaimed And Sold

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 6.—Hello! The scene is the Players' Club, a gay place operated by the dry wit artist, Solly Violinsky, aided in entertainment by those who drop in—such as Jay C. Flippen, Bill Frawley, Skins Miller, Eddie Welch, Frances White, Jack Osterman, Frank Fay and many others.

Arthur Caesar is making a speech. Arthur is always making a speech. As Arthur waxes eloquent, using long and important words, an argument arises, as only arguments can arise on such an occasion.

Arthur spouts forth on the stupidity of movie producers and the like. To further demonstrate his hatred for them, he tears his latest manuscript into many pieces and flings it behind the bar, explaining:

"I was offered the mere sum of $8,700 for that—real art—this afternoon. That is nothing!"

The scene changes. It is morning. The telephone rings. Ah, a producer awakens Arthur. He asks for the manuscript. The studio cashier is ready, pen poised, to make out a nice check for the story. Arthur remembers the tearing-up episode. Horrors! Curses!

Arthur dresses and hurries to the Players' Club. The janitor knows nothing of a torn epic, a masterpiece of the great Caesar that was tossed behind the bar. Dumbfounded, befuddled and upset, Arthur sits and waits—or the bartender. Arthur mentions the script. The watchman of the giggle-water laughs. From his white jacket pocket he extracts the carefully pasted-together manuscript. He had saved the pieces!

Arthur sold the story!

More boat gossip—James Gagney, Lewis Stone, the Mike Boylans and Bill Seiter were a-yachting it over Catalina Island way last week-end and were actually accosted by autograph-hounds who swam out for the signatures! . . . Ann Stone is the name of the gal who enacts Mlle. Fifi on the Jimmy Durante radio hour . . . Ethel and Charley Butterworth paid off a fight wager and sent a note reading: "We're now selecting a horse for you to bet on!" . . . Mary Carlisle attributes her tan to fog burn . . . Fashion Note—Garbo is now wearing a leghorn straw topper, and that should start another fad.

He has appeared in at least 30 legitimate productions, his first being with Mary Ryan in "Only 38."

Wheeler and Woolsey Fun Clicks in Warner

By KARL KRUG

It's taken Wheeler and Woolsey a long time to do it, but they've finally come through with a screen comedy that resembles something other than the kids playing show in the backyard. Their "Cockeyed Cavaliers," which arrived in the Warner yesterday, along with Clive Brook and Diana Wynyard in "Let's Try Again," is a wild-brained comedy, timed in keeping with the Wheeler-Woolsey style of humor and a sure-fire hit with their fans unless I am greatly mistaken.

Not since the days of "Rio Rita," both on stage and screen, have Bert and Bob done so well. Laid in rural England in the Fifteenth Century, "Cockeyed Cavaliers" is played with a rare blend of medieval and modern dialogue, and the stars are not only at home in their roles, but they have been given plenty of help by the gagmen, song writers and the studio in general.

Among the pleasant surprises of "Cockeyed Cavaliers" is the bursting into song of Noah Beery, who brings to life again a splendid singing voice that has lain dormant for far too long. Mr. Beery leads a rousing roundelay in a tavern scene with excellent effect, and among the other numbers in the catchy "Dilly-Dally," which the Messrs. Wheeler and Woolsey and the Misses Dorothy Lee and Thelma Todd render very nicely.

While "Cockeyed Cavaliers" is slapdash, slambang fun, it offers a certain change from the routine screen fare that is quite welcome. Certain of the gags, while tinged with sophistication, are not offensive, and Wheeler throws the best of them around with lusty abandon. Robustly satirical on the swashbuckling days of old, it is my opinion that the latest Wheeler-Woolsey opus is good for what ails you during these torrid July days.

As for "Let's Try Again" it has superb work by both Brook and Miss Wynyard, and is a leisurely-paced domestic comedy-drama that takes on an unexpected exuberance near the end that helps it considerably. Had some of this livelier spirit been manifest during its early and middle stages, I am sure "Let's Try Again" would have been a better picture.

Much of its telling is in the long stretches of dialogue between the two leading players, and while this is easy on the ears most of the time, a little more action and one or two dramatic situations of real power would have given the film the impetus it seems to need. From a triangle plot, the story develops into a quadrangle, and it is at its best when Brook decides that a reconcilation with his wife, played by Miss Wynyard, is the way out for all concerned.

Odds and Ends

THE OTHER night, when all sorts of things were happening in Germany, I read that there was no communication between that country and the outside world. That dispatch had come over during the afternoon, however. And on the chance that communications had been re-established I hustled to my radio and tuned in on Berlin.

There is no trick in getting Berlin on a good short-wave set. Hitler maintains what is probably the most powerful short-wave broadcasting station in the world, and I get it as clearly as any local program. The station is strictly a propaganda outfit, and everything that comes over is a boost for Hitler and an implied knock for France and Russia. German is spoken, of course, but all important propaganda is translated first into English and then into Spanish.

At any rate, I tuned in at the opportune moment on this particular night. An announcer was just giving out—in English—the official statement of the day's doings. Without attempting to imitate his slight German dialect, I give you herewith the words that he spoke.

"And so," he said, "Chancellor Hitler is now stronger than ever in the hearts and minds of the German people. When he arrived in Berlin this afternoon, he was greeted by cheering throngs that applauded him mightily and swore their complete allegiance.

"It must be said at this point that the reports in the foreign press have been greatly exaggerated. Stories of death and bloodshed are absolutely ridiculous. Right now, the German people are preparing for their week-end holiday in a joyous manner. Nothing has happened to disturb htme in any way.

"Germany is peaceful and quiet tonight. The foreign press, eager to alarm, has made a great something out of a little nothing. Chancellor Hitler is greater than ever in the eyes of the German people and there was nothing in the day's events to cause any alarm whatsoever."

He stopped. I could hear the papers rustle and it was evident that the announcer had finished reading. Then he spoke again.

"That concludes the special news bulletin for tonight," he said. "A list of all those killed and wounded today will be announced later!" . . .

* * *

"LET them gag all they want about Kate Smith," advises Sid Garfinkel. "She's one artist who will never know lean days." . . .

* * *

AMONG the day's contributions is Richard Himber's tale of the wise guy who was pacing the floor of his room in a shady Broadway hotel. Finally he grabbed the receiver and called the desk.

"My wife went out an hour ago," he said, "and she hasn't come back yet. She didn't take the key and maybe she's forgotten the room number. She hasn't been to the desk, inquiring for me, has she?"

"Nobody's asked for you," replied the clerk. "But there's a dame sitting in the lobby who's forgotten the number of her room and also her husband's name!" . . .

* * *

THE little boy whose voice was just changing, reports Billy Glason, walked into the grocery store. In a childish high-pitched voice he said:

"Gimme a loaf of bread."

He coughed slightly and his voice changed.

"Just a minutes, please," was all he said. "One customer at a time." . . .

* * *

"I just got a Scotch owl from South America."

"What's a Scotch owl?"

"Doesn't give a hoot." . . .

* * *

"DID you hear about the Nudist golfer," inquires Bert Wheeler, "who achieved the perfect score?

"He went around in nothing!" . . .

Age No Bar In Films

There's no age limit for Hollywood. Baby LeRoy made his bow at 9 months. Charlotte Granville makes her first screen appearance at 71. Shirley Temple, newest infant sensation, is just short of 5. Pauline Lord, over 40, is starting a screen career. Mae West isn't giving out any figures (statistical, at least), but was at least beyond the ingenue stage when "She Done Him Wrong" was made.

Youth and beauty count for something, but producers are looking for personality above all else. The old axiom that marriage hurts a star definitely has been disproven by Gary Cooper, whose fan mail has actually increased since his marriage. Cooper has a quality the fans like, age, appearance and marriage have nothing to do with the case.

The public, in Hollywood's opinion, no longer "falls in love" with its screen heroes and heroines. It appreciates a good performance and asks for nothing more.

VARIETY CLUB SENTIMENT

Meetings of the Pittsburgh Variety Club will soon be called to order with a gavel that will contain more memories than Col. Dexter Fellow's scrapbooks. The gavel is made of flooring from the stages of the Nixon, Alvin, Pitt, Gayety (now the Fulton), Lyceum (now the Variety), Grand (now the Warner), Stanley and Empire theaters.

On the outside of the gavel and on the inside, which is hollow, has been painted the names of all the stars, old and new, who have trod the boards of the historic playhouses listed above. Some of them have long since been gathered to their fathers, some are still working when they can find it, and some have trekked west to the movie studios. At any rate, the multitude of memories in cold paint on this gavel would fill columns for a month.

I salute the sentiment of the Variety Club for its foresight in gathering them together, and I take pleasure in listing many of the names. Some of them, to me, are simply names I have read about, but the majority bring pleasant recollections. Fritzi Scheff, for instance, singing "Kiss Me Again."

Thanksgiving Edict of 1902 Needed for Film

By LLOYD PANTAGES

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 6.—THE "MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH" company are having their troubles. FIRST of all, they MUST have the President's Thanksgiving proclamation read in one of the scenes, exactly as given forth in 1902 by THEODORE ROOSEVELT and for THAT a hurried call was sent to the Congressional Library. Furthermore, their location is but FOUR miles from a forest fire that made the surroundings look NOT like "MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH, but like "Mrs. Wiggs of the ASH Patch."

When BUSTER KEATON was but a sprout of three or four and was being tossed about as an acrobat on the stage by his parents, the Keaton family, he was passed off as a midget just so's the Little Kiddies Protective Association would not SNATCH him away and put him into kindergarten. Pals of W. C. FIELDS are beginning to feel that the CRUTCHES he has been sporting ever since the tennis accident, are nothing so much as a MYTH, seeing as how from time to time he forgets they are under his arms and WALKS along perfectly normal like. As a further prop for his ailment MR. FIELDS has at his Toluca Lake mansion, a canoe, Leviathan Second," which CANOODLES him across the lake to the golf course.

JOSEPHINE HUTCHINSON now finds herself the proud possessor of the LONGEST name of any artist in pictures (19 letters to be exact). Up to her movie debut RICHARD BARTHELMESS held down the title.

Tip to the ladies on how to keep in good with some of our famous males: GENE RAYMOND cannot TOLERATE a damsel whose stockings are wrinkled. PHILLIP HOLMES will give you back to the Indians if your hands are unattractive. LYLE TALBOT does CONNIPTIONS over smuged lipstock. RALPH BELLAMY will go home IMMEDIATELY if your fingers are nicotine-stained. ALAN HALE doesn't like the SIGHT of uncurled and stringy hair. And JOHNNY MACK BROWN always gives the SEAMS of a ladies' leg coverings the once-over to make sure THEY ARE NOT crooked.

EDMUND LOWE will replace SPENCER TRACY as Ketti Gallian's leading man in "Marie Gallant." Speaking of MR. TRACY, his romance with LORETTA YOUNG is COMPLETELY in the frigid stage.

DOLORES DEL RIO wishes it to be known that although MOST ladies insist on ORCHIDS for their corsages, she will have NAUGHT but MAGNOLIAS for ornamentation. MERVYN LEROY is coming forth with an innovation in musical numbers in his new opera "Gentlemen Are Born," said innovation being a WHOLE number devoted to CHINESE tap dancers and blues singers. IDA LUPINO has just learned that when the English newspapers carried headlines about her infantile paralysis, her father, STANLEY LUPINO, became so hysterical when he went out on the stage of a variety house to do his turn, he fell down and SPRAINED his ankle.

Little DAVID HOLT, at the moment appearing in a Paramount picture, ACTUALLY lost a FRONT TOOTH, which delayed production until a dentist could bridge the gap and match him up to his ORIGINAL expression. LILLIAN BOND is sailing to Merrie Olde ENGLAND, where she will visit for a month. ALICE WHITE squawked SO heavily about the SMALLNESS of her role in "The Gift of Gab" for Universal, that it has now been built up to be one of the most IMPORTANT parts in the picture.

McLaglen and Lowe Teamed Again

Columbia plans to team Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in at least one picture during the coming season, in a sort of Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt combination which McLaglen and Lowe scored in their hits together. McLaglen is now working in "The Captain Hates the Sea" in a role of Schulte, a detective. Lupe Velez will also appear in a picture at Columbia during the coming month. She has been cast in "The Girl Friend," another musical. Ann Sothern will be in the cast.

Civic Players Cast Headed by Gill

The cast for the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse production, "The Green Bay Tree," by Mordaunt Shairp, in the Arnold School next week will be headed by Robert Gill. Mr. Gill also acted in the Playhouse's last offering, "The Curtain Rises." Betty Psyche, who was seen in "The Second Man" by the Playhouse, has the only feminine role in the play. Others in the cast are DeLisle Crawford, Norman Parker and Robert Fraker.

:-: RECIPES BY PRUDENCE PENNY :-:

"Vitamins," said the little boy in health class, "are something that's good for you. So they probably don't taste very good." That's the idea lots of us have. So perhaps it's high time to show the friendlier side of vitamins. They do taste good. Every last one of them. And generally the more vitamins a food has, the more delicious it tastes. Tomatoes, for instance, when they are at their delicious best, have vitamin C. Yellow, juicy, canned corn has vitamin A. So why not combine these two foods with another delicious food that is rich in vitamin B, has good vitamin E, and also that most elusive of all vitamins, vitamin D? Irradiated oatmeal. The following recipes give you an easy and a delicious way to do this:

ESCALLOPED CORN AND TOMATO—2 cups corn, 2 cups tomatoes, ¾ cup rolled oats (dry), ¾ teaspoon salt.

Combine ingredients and pour into greased baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. One teaspoon grated onion may be added.

* * *

OATMEAL MUFFINS—2-3 cup rolled oats (dry), 1½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Pour scalded milk on oats and let stand five minutes; add sugar and salt, sift in flour and baking powder; mix thoroughly. Add well beaten egg and melted butter. Bake in buttered gem pan in hot oven for 20 minutes.

* * *

QUICK SALMON LOAF—2 cups salmon, 1 cup rolled oats (dry), 1 teaspoon salt, 1 onion, minced, bread crumbs, ¼ cup water.

Mix thoroughly salmon, including liquid, oats, salt, water and onion. Form into loaf in buttered pan, cover with bread crumbs and bake 25 minutes in moderate oven. Chopped pickle or piccalilli may be added to the mixture.

* * *

VEAL BIRDS—½ pound veal round steak, ½ cup dry bread crumbs, ¼ cup milk, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, pepper, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Cut veal cutlets into pieces 3x4 inches wide, and flatten with a potato masher. Roll up and tie into shape with strings. Brown in bacon drippings with a sliced carrot and a chopped onion. Add 1 cup of thin white sauce or sour cream, cover and cook slowly for 40 minutes. This may be prepared in a casserole. Serves 2.

* * *

BRAISED LAMB NECK CHOPS—¾ pound neck chops of lamb, ½ cup tomato, ½ slice onion, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon bacon drippings, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Brown the meat on both sides, add the vegetables, seasoning and make a gravy with the hot water and a little fat. Place the meat in a covered baking dish, cover lightly and bake slowly until the meat is tender. Serves 2.

* * *

MEAT LOAF—2 pounds hamburg steak, 1 egg, ½ onion, chopped; 1 green pepper, chopped; ¼ cup evaporated milk, ¼ cup water, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper.

Have the meat chopped fine, mix it thoroughly with the unbeaten egg, bread crumbs, seasonings and liquid. Form into a flat loaf and fry in hot drippings until well browned, about 15 minutes. Remove to a well greased baking plate or baking pan, and lay strips of bacon over the meat. Place in a moderate oven 350° F. and complete cooking, allowing 45 minutes. Serves 6.

* * *

HAM DELIGHT—1 pound ham slice ¾ inch thick, 4 slices canned pineapple, 2 marshmallows, ½ cup pineapple juice.

Place ham slice in a baking pan, pour over the pineapple juice and bake in a 275-degree F. oven ¾ hour, basting with the juice. Then remove from the oven. Place the pineapple slices on top of the ham, and return to the oven. When delicately brown place marshmallows on the pineapple slices and bake until marshmallows puff and brown. Serve on heated platter. Serves 2.

Krafts Whipt
CHIFFON BUTTER

They knew the secret of improving butter flavor

More than a century ago, when the nobles of France were in exile, many of these connoisseurs of good living gathered at the Silver Lion at Lausanne, Switzerland. There they found a chef who was truly a master of the culinary art. Carefully, before each meal, he whipt the butter. And when it was served, this butter gained from the assembled epicures their highest praise. Such delicate flavor! Such fresh and marvelous flavor!

It's yours!

● Taste this new butter—Chiffon Butter, created by Kraft. The instant it touches your tongue you realize that you never really tasted butter before. You enjoy all the delicate flavor of freshly churned creamery butter, and enjoy it instantly.

Notice this new butter's unusual creamy color and texture. See how easily it spreads, how easily and quickly it creams. Such texture and such delicious flavor have a reason: this butter is different. In the past, a few skillful chefs whipt butter for their patrons; but not until the great resources of the Kraft organization were put to work on the problem was this superior butter made available to the public.

Starting with the finest selected and pasteurized cream, the great Kraft creameries add to the customary churning operation a further step—scientifically developed by Kraft dairy experts. In this additional operation the butter is carefully whipt. Its flavor and aroma elements are distributed more completely and uniformly through every bit of the butter. They are instantly released when the butter reaches the taste buds on the tongue.

Now it is yours to enjoy—the epicurean secret of true and instant butter flavor. Get a pound . . . two pounds . . . of Chiffon Butter today and give your family their first real taste of butter!

Today's Youths Backbone Of a Nation

A boy comes to my door. He is dark and has such round earnest eyes, and his skin is like the high lights on a chestnut. He is slim and fleet footed, and he sells me strawberries and cantaloupes and bunches of asparagus tied in red strings. He also has early plums which he insists are sweet as honey.

Miss Brunot

He stands and talks to me. He likes the arts. He longs to be a painter of pictures. Or a writer. It was he who informed me that Lawrence Tibbett was in town, with his wife and two boys, and driving a high-powered car.

"I saw him eating steamed clams," he explained.

And he looked as if he were disappointed. That such a great voice could sink to the level of steamed clams!

"I heard him sing in the movies," he went on. "Gee, it was like hearing angels. I wish I could do it."

And then he asked me if I were a movie star. "I always have taken you for one," he explained. And I was all puffed up. Me, a movie star. Me, in my morning dress and my hair all zig-zag and my smile on crooked.

WAS FLATTERED

Yet I liked him for it. I was flattered. He'll go a long way. That boy. At least with the ladies.

Just a young fruit vendor at my door, with a dark skin, and eyes round and wondering. But the earth's real dirt for him. The sky has stars in it. There is a tune deep in the throat of the lark, and it's singing, singing into his ears.

Whither going, little man? which way does the wind blow? Which way do the flowers bloom for you? What awaits around the corner? Will it some day rain, rain for you? Instead of sending down violets?

The chances are you'll marry and raise a family of children, and forget all about Lawrence Tibbett eating clams. Some day if I live long enough and stay put, I'll see you hoeing in your own back yard and there won't be such a round, wondering look in your eyes. And some of the richness will have gone out of your skin.

BACKBONE OF NATION

You won't be looking at the passe blondes and you won't be peddling red, ripe berries just in order that you SEE THINGS.

Here is a nice boy, though. And there are many like him. You know them, sisters. They fill your front porches. They come down the streets whistling that song about love your neighbor. They tell you the circus is coming, and who's playing at the movies, and what big fellows are on the local baseball team.

They call out "nerts" when they're displeased, and say you are "spoofing" when you jolly them.

But they're husbands in the making. Today, yesterday and forever.

They're the backbone of a nation. They're what Hitler asks for. They're what Mussolini wants. They're why the United States advertises for marines. They're your opportunity, they're the great future in the making.

Dear Miss Brunot:

We are two young girls. One of us is in love with a very popular boy. He seemed to care for her, but she was never sure. Now another girl has come into the picture. He takes her out frequently. His friends say he still likes one of us. But we think actions speak louder than words.

FACES COMPETITION

The other one of us also is fond of a very popular boy. I realize there is competition. But a sorority sister began asking this fellow to parties and through friends we hear he is beginning to care for her.

We would like to know if we should ask these fellows to a dance some of us girls are giving? We want to win them back. BLUE AND BLUER.

By all means, ask these boys to the dance. They haven't declared themselves for any one girl in particular, and you are still in the running. Competition is the life of trade, we are told. So go about it in your own way, and you are both likely to get the young men. I doubt, though, if either one is thinking seriously of any special girl. They are merely having their fling. But then, all birds are caught on the wing. So, here's luck to you.

GIRL PUZZLED

Dear Miss Brunot:

Last summer I met a fellow of another nationality, and I care very much for him. I am 19 and he is 22. I have gone out with him quite often last summer. But then he stopped coming. I know many of his boy friends and some of them I went with. Do you think they had anything to do with his stopping?

Another boy friend to whom I confided my liking for him, fixed a date for him and me and himself and another girl. It was then this fellow acted differently. He lives in my town, and every time I see him I feel like talking. Please tell me what to do?

SENIOR.

Maybe the fact that he is another nationality has something to do with his not coming to see you. His people may want him to marry one of his own kind.

You will have to be patient and let matters take their own course. You scarcely can do any more than you have. In the meanwhile, go out with the other boys, and maybe you will learn to care for one of them.

I scarcely think your being friendly with his chums harmed you. That is if you behaved yourself and did not talk too earnestly about him. A fellow does not like to be discussed by his girl and with the other fellows.

Katie 'Detective' in Hunt for Boys

If I had not taken myself in hand with such grim determination but a few minutes before, resolved, in Marion's parlance, not to "pull the baby act" again, I should once more have been the prey of wild, frenzied imaginings.

For there was something in Hugh's voice and manner, as he bade Katie get up on the running board, and said that we must go a little faster than we had traveled so far upon our short journey from the farm house, which sent a series of cold tremors down my spine.

I silently reviewed the trifles which bolstered my conviction that Hugh's mind held certain apprehensions which he had not yet communicated to me.

First, he had said he had a "hunch" that Jim and Katie would turn down this particular road to Bridgehampton. Second, when they had turned the corner, he had indicated, with an expressive exclamation, his satisfaction at his correct prediction. Third, he had said that we must go faster.

In another second I am sure I should have demanded that he tell me what he feared, if anything, to find upon this road, but Katie was answering his mandate, and when Katie begins talking it is a brave soul indeed that interrupts the mountain cataract of her words.

KATIE DETECTIVE

"Sure, I get me oop on rooning board," she was saying. "I kin detecatuff dose bicycle tracks from dere almost same as eef I were walking long road. Und I von't have to stoop ofer. I kin lie down almost like dose pictures in history books about dose old Romands having sooper."

She giggled hysterically, as Katie always does in time of stress, and I knew that tears and sobs of apprehension for Junior and Roderick were just as near the surface as her laughter, and were far more likely to break out.

Just now, however, she was insulated by her delight in her job, and she jumped up on the running board with gusto and proceeded to stretch herself upon it, with her face turned downward toward the road and one hand clinging precariously to the fender.

"Me, I no need nobody," she said with decision. "Jeem, you go und sit in dot car. Me, I kin hold mineself on."

"We know that you can, Katie," Hugh said kindly, then his voice took on a grim note of determination as he added, "but we're not taking any chances. Jim, take off your belt and put it around Katie's waist to the last notch, then climb in the car and lean over the side above her. Pick up the end of the belt and hold on to it like grim death. If you see her start to slip, call 'Stop!' I won't be going so fast that I won't be able to stop in time."

Dicky often says that Jim is a living illustration of the definition of a pessimist as a man who wears both belt and braces, and his bright blue "galluses" were distinctly in evidence as he obediently unfastened his belt and put it around his wife's slender waist.

Katie giggled again as he fastened it "to the last notch," as Hugh had commanded.

"Me, I tink I kin slip right troo dot belt," she said. "Dot too loose to hold me."

TRACKS BRANCH OFF

"Perhaps," Hugh replied, "but it is the best we can do. So be very careful. Call out, if you see any change in the track of the tires. Ready, Jim? Hold tight! Here we go!"

He started down the road, as slowly as before at first, then gradually increased his speed as he judged Katie was becoming used to her precarious position. He did not strike a dangerous pace, but we proceeded smartly down the road, one of the few comparatively straight ones in the eastern end of Long Island, until we came to a curve, beyond which I knew was a little stretch so closely penned on either side by trees, bushes and undergrowth that I always felt a little eerie thrill upon going through it at night. There was no road through this copse, but many berry pickers going to the woods beyond had worn a path through the thick undergrowth, a path which, I remembered suddenly with quickened imagination, was wide enough to hold a bicycle. Indeed, I had seen cyclers come out of it.

Hugh slowed down almost to stopping as he took the curve, and did not increase his speed beyond it. I realized why when Katie suddenly shrieked:

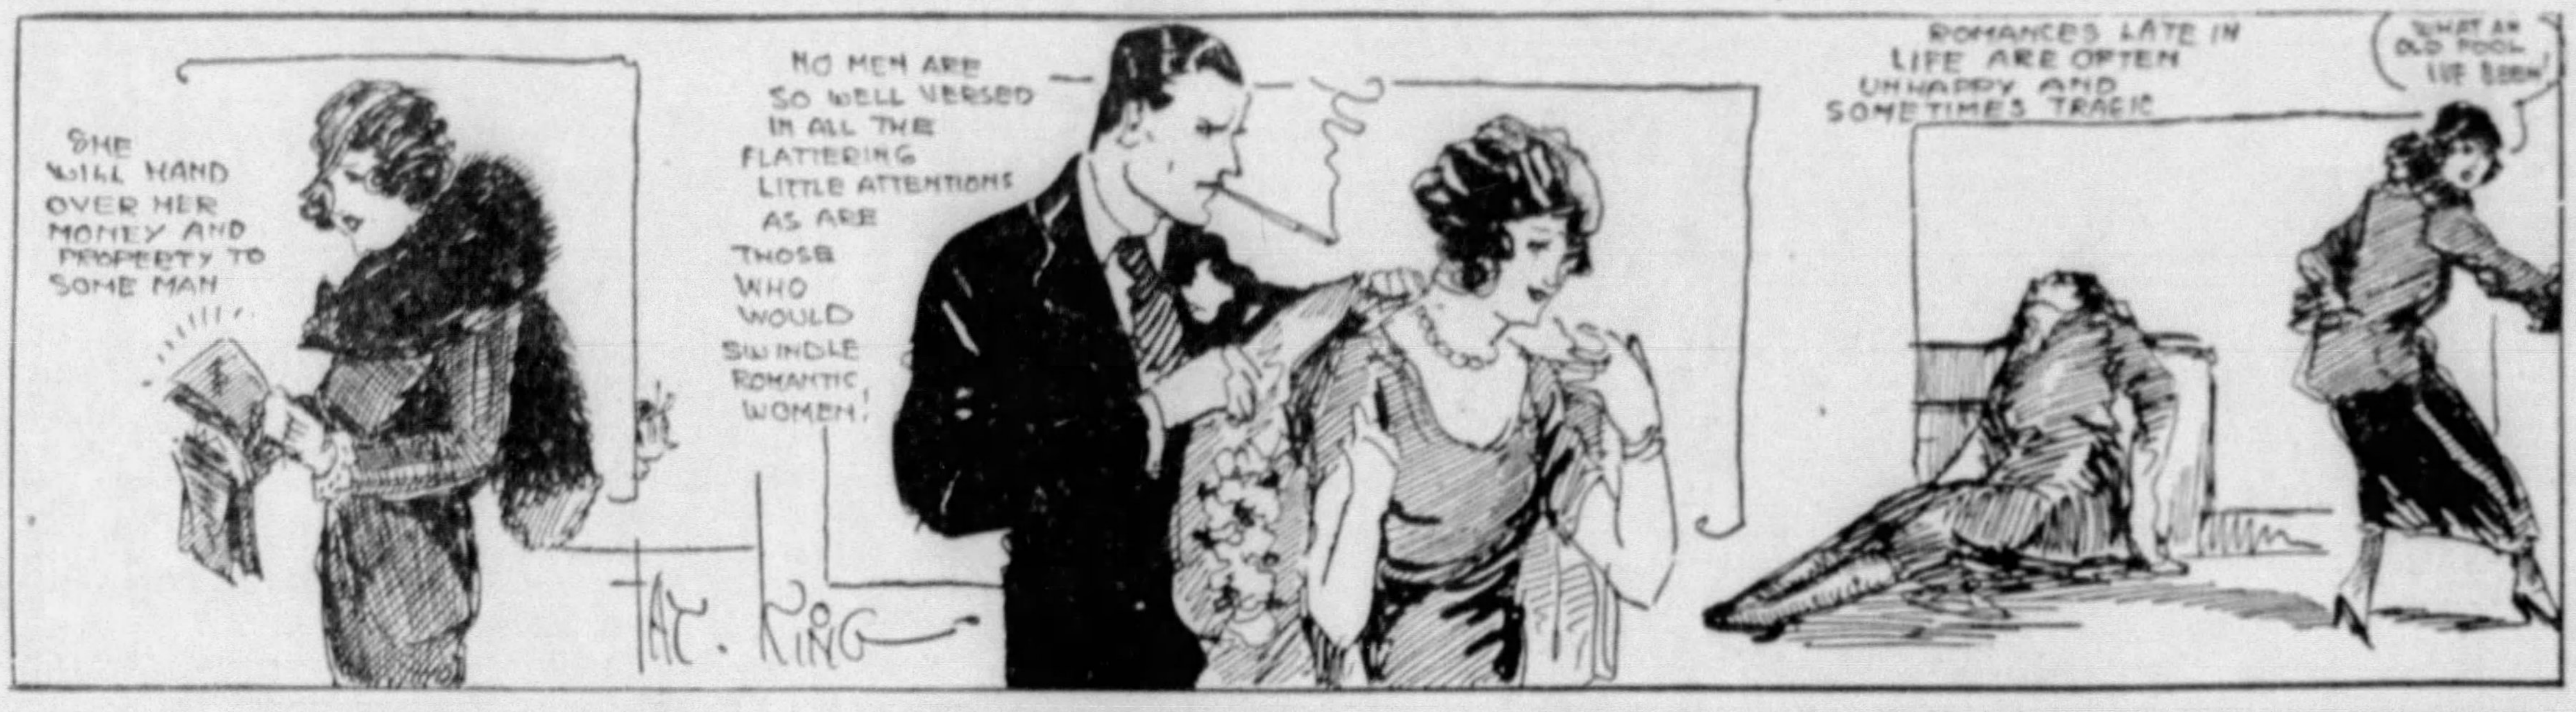
BELATED ROMANCES OFTEN VICTIMIZE WOMEN, SAYS FAY KING



SHE WILL HAND OVER HER MONEY AND PROPERTY TO SOME MAN
NO MEN ARE SO WELL VERSED IN ALL THE FLATTERING LITTLE ATTENTIONS AS ARE THOSE WHO WOULD SWINDLE ROMANTIC WOMEN!
ROMANCES LATE IN LIFE ARE OFTEN UNHAPPY AND SOMETIMES TRAGIC
WHAT AN OLD FOOL I'VE BEEN!
FAY. KING

By FAY KING

Many a clever woman has devoted most of her life to a successful business career and then looked for romance too late.

A middle-aged woman of means and position who begins to travel about in search of romance for which she did not have time when she was young and attractive, too often becomes the easy victim of those men who make it their business to enchant and swindle elderly Juliets.

It is amazing how women who have outsmarted men contemporaries in the business world will become as children in the hands of unscrupulous men who are after their money and property.

Their faith seems to be boundless in pretty manners and flowery speeches. Romances late in life often end unhappily or tragically.

:-: :-: Hints for the Household :-: :-:

If brass is treated in the following way it will not be necessary to clean it for six months. First clean and polish it thoroughly in the ordinary way, then paint on a coat of copal varnish, applying it smoothly with a fine, soft brush. The brass will look as if it has always been freshly polished, and will not be affected by damp.

Always boil new clothes lines and pegs in soapy water for a quarter of an hour before using.

A little borax added to the starch when mixing will prevent the iron from sticking.

When mint for sauce is washed and on the board ready for chopping, sprinkle it well with castor sugar. This makes chopping easier, as the slight grittiness of the sugar gives resistance to the knife and prevents the mint adhering to it.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Common Disaster

In a recent men's individual tournament in New York, there was one board on which every North-South team had a rather large minus score, despite the fact that the North-South players held most of the honor strength. Although only experts participated in the tournament, the penalty scores ranged from 250 to 2,000. Admittedly this was due in part to the fact that the adverse cards were most unfavorably located, but it was also due in part to bad bidding, or bad play on the part of the North-South participants.

North, Dealer.

Naturally, every North player opened the bidding with one heart and every South player responded with two diamonds. At no table did West make any effort to interrupt the progress of North and South to an unmakable contract. In responding to South's two-diamond bid all the North players but two made a big mistake. With a near minimum Opening bid and a doubleton in partner's suit, it is far better to rebid one's original suit, even though it is a weak one, than to show a new suit at the level of three-odd. The North players should have been reluctant to take the bidding up to the level of three by calling three clubs. Strictly speaking, the heart suit is not rebiddable, but with the knowledge that the hands probably do not fit very well, the two heart bid is the lesser of evils. A warning signal in the form of a two-heart bid should be given rather than the very encouraging bid of three clubs.

Of course, over three clubs every South player bid three notrump. In some instances West doubled and in one instance West passed and East made a very daring Double, just to get the Opening lead of a heart. Incidentally, it was at this particular table, where East made the Double and West opened a heart, that the contract was set five tricks or 2000 points. Admittedly, the Declarer could have saved a trick or two, but he played to cut down the set to one trick and eventually went down five. One pair got out with a two-trick set by perfect play on the part of the Declarer, and at the other tables the sets ranged from 900 to 1400 depending on how badly South played it and how well East and West defended.

At the two tables where North made the correct Rebid of two hearts, South, of course, with a strong hand, bid two notrump rather than three diamonds. Over two notrump North could now bid three clubs—having already shown the comparative weakness of his hand. Over three clubs there is an ideal bid available to any discerning South player—three diamonds. South would respect his partner's warning that the hand is unfitted to notrump play, and since South cannot pass to three clubs, he should bid three diamonds, showing the as yet undisclosed Rebid values in that suit. North should, of course, pass to three diamonds, and although this contract can be defeated one or two tricks by good defense, it produces the best possible result for North and South on the hand. However, I am sorry to have to report that even at those tables where North bid the hand correctly, the South players blindly went to three notrump and were accordingly severely penalized.

The Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly let me know about a shower? Should it be given as soon as a couple are engaged, when no date for the wedding has been set, or is it given after the date is set? Is it right for the mother of the bride-to-be or groom-to-be to give it? M.

The shower is usally given about a month or three weeks before the wedding, sometimes even two weeks before the wedding.

It is not considered good form for close relatives of the bride or the groom to plan the shower . . . looks too much like a promotion-for-gifts-for-the-new home.

The So-Called 'Barber's Itch' Highly Contagious

Recently I received a letter from a worried young man. An infection of his face alarmed him by the severity of the symptoms. He referred to the trouble as "barber's itch" and asked whether the disease is "catching," and if it takes long to cure.

Dr. Copeland

Barber's itch, as the layman calls it, is an infectious disease attacking the bearded region of the face. Medically, it is known as "impetigo contagiosa." "Sycosis" is another name for it.

The disease is highly contagious. It can readily be seen how the infection might be spread in a barber shop, not in the usual clean one, but in a place where inadequate hygienic measures are observed.

The disease is characterized by small blisters which arise from the skin. These blisters soon break, discharge pus and leave a thin crust. This seems to stick on the skin, with the edges slightly turned up.

Since the disease is highly infectious and rapidly spreads from one portion of the skin to another, it is essential that prompt and proper treatment be given. It is important that shaving be omitted during the course of the disease. The hair may be clipped, but a razor should not be used.

A good plan is to cleanse the healthy part of the face first and treat the infected area last. Make sure that the hands, towels and scissors are carefully cleaned after touching the infected sores.

Antiseptic ointments, such as an ointment of ammoniated mercury, can be applied to the infected blisters. In the more stubborn cases a 2 per cent solution of silver nitrate may be painted on the top layer of the infection. Of course, this treatment should be undertaken only under the direction of a physician.

The infection may also extend to other parts of the face, as well as to the hands, scalp and various hairy surfaces of the body. Too often the disease is overlooked or improperly treated. As a result of this carelessness, the infection may be spread by means of hand-shaking, or the use of infected towels or razors.

Since impetigo contagiosa is readily transmitted from one individual to another, it is imperative to guard against this by taking the necessary hygienic measures capable of preventing its spread. This is best accomplished by the use of individual towels, tableware and glassware. The sufferer should avoid personal contact with another member of the family. I need not remind you that kissing is out of the question.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Form fitting frocks are beautiful but exasperating. They make conspicuous every defect of the silhouette and reveal ungainly movement. It is high time for the sisters to cultivate rhythm, charming gestures, pretty stepping, and all that sort of thing.

Cut a dash when on a cruise by wearing one of the new light plaid topcoats. A grand model is in black and beige plaid on a white ground. It has raglan sleeves, but no pockets or lining. Although it is loose and comfortable in appearance, the waist is slightly fitted.

BUCS, CUBS OPEN FOUR-GAME SERIES IN CHICAGO

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

The real test of the Pirates under new management comes in the stretch of eight straight games against the Cubs and Giants starting today, in which the Traynors will be up against powerful pennant contenders in enemy territory and will have to cope with pitchers of the caliber of Lonnie Warneke, Guy Bush, Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher and others. So far, the Bucs have made a poorer showing against first division opposition than any other club among the leading four. Against the Giants, Cubs and Cards, the locals have won only 12 games, while losing 16, a percentage of .429. Against the second division outfits, they have won 25 and lost 14, a mark of .641.

Lonnie Warneke

The Giants owe their pennant lead to cleaning up against the second division clubs. In competition with the three other teams in the upper tier, the Terrymen have won only 14 games against 15 defeats, a .483 clip, but they have taken 33 out of 44 from the four trailers, a percentage of .750, or three wins in every four games. The Cubs won the peculiar record of having done better against the strong clubs than against the weak ones. They have, strangely, made a better showing than any other flag contender against the first division teams, and yet made the poorest showing of them all against the clubs in the lower group. The Bruins have won 18 and lost 11 against first-division rivals, a gait of .621, while winning 25 and losing 18 against the second-flight teams, a percentage of only .581. The Cardinals have won 16 and lost 18 against first division opponents, a stride of .471, and have won 25 and lost 11 against the second division clubs, a percentage of .694.

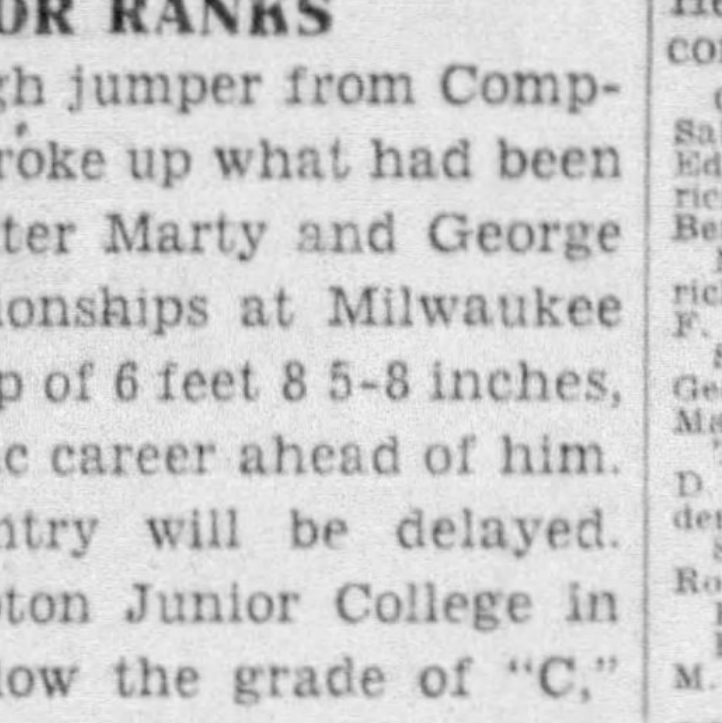
LOSING PITCHERS BLAME GLOSSY BALL

A number of the major league pitchers who have failed to make impressive records this season are blaming their poor showings on the standardized ball. They complain that it is too glossy, that the gloss stays on longer than it did on the spheres of other years, and that the ball takes unexpected twists and slides after it leaves their hands.

Nobody offers to explain how the uniform ball can make such a difference in American League pitching, inasmuch as it is the same type of rocket used in that loop last year, according to an official admission by President William Harridge. Nor do the complaints of the losing flingers fit in with the fact that slabmen like Gomez, Ruffing, Broaca, Marberry, Bridges, Rowe, Auker, Weaver, Hudlin, Pearson and others in the American League, and Frankhouse, the Deans, Bush, Warneke, Mungo, Hubbell and more in the National are doing consistently good work.

ALL BASEBALLS LOOK ALIKE TO GOMEZ

Consider the record of Lefty Gomez, the American League's No. 1 pitcher, for example. No matter what other hurlers may say about the ball, Gomez is having the best season of his career. He won 13 of his first 15 games, and one of his defeats was a 1-to-0 affair in which the Yankees were held to a single hit by Earl Whitehill. Gomez remarks that he hasn't noticed much difference in the ball, and that if there is a difference it hasn't affected him. The Yankee star says the smoothness of the ball has given him no trouble and he doesn't use the stitching to get a grip on the sphere.



Lefty Gomez

If you'll believe Rogers Hornsby, many of the complaints are mere alibis. The manager of the Browns thinks that when a man can pitch, he pitches. It is the throwers who are having trouble, Hornsby asserts, and he adds that he would go a long way to get a pitcher like Grover Alexander, Phil Douglas, Babe Adams, Bill Doak or some others of the old guard who were not afraid to bend that third strike over the plate. That is the answer to pitching today, in the opinion of the Rajah, who charges that the hurlers lack the courage and control to risk a curve when the count is three and two. The batter knows exactly what the pitcher is going to throw, sets himself for a fast ball and murders it.

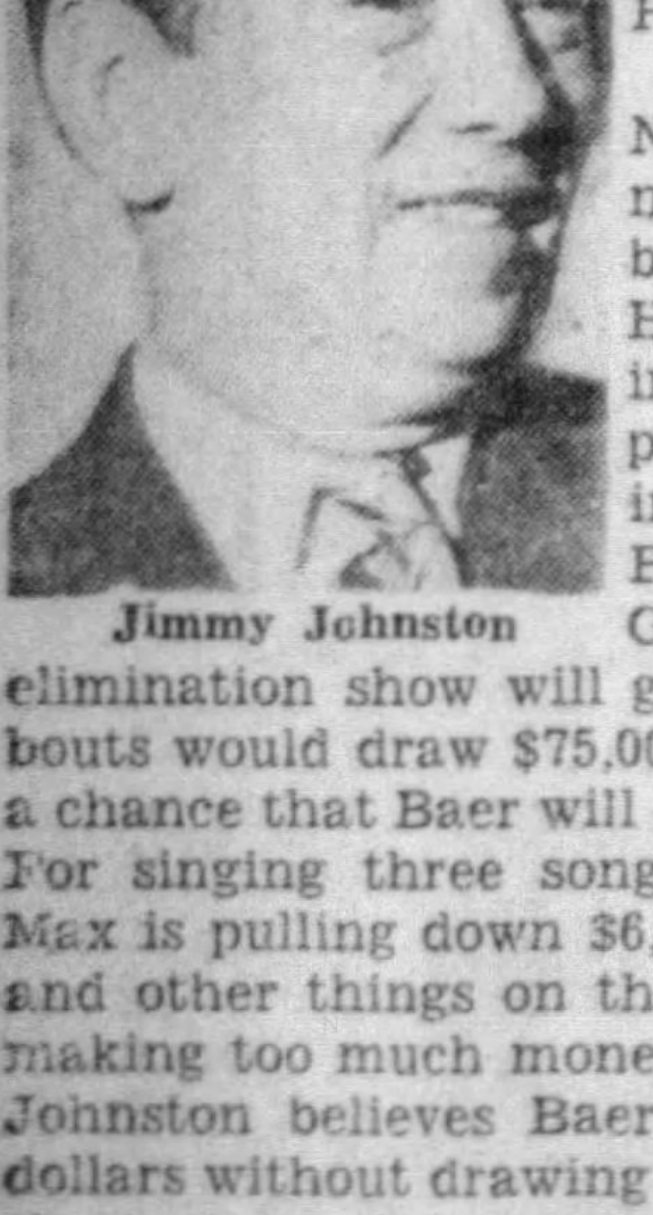
NEGRO STAR DELAYED IN JUNIOR RANKS

Cornelius Johnson, lanky Negro high jumper from Compton Junior College in California, who broke up what had been expected to prove a duel between Walter Marty and George Spitz in the A. A. U. national championships at Milwaukee and tied Marty for first place with a leap of 6 feet 8 5-8 inches, clearly has a brilliant university athletic career ahead of him.

But the new star's university entry will be delayed. Though he has been a wow at Compton Junior College in athletics, his scholastic average is below the grade of "C," which grade is necessary before he can transfer to a coast university, so it appears that he must spend at least another semester in junior college.

FOUR HEAVIES ON ELIMINATION PROGRAM

The reported signing of Steve Hamas for a fight in California is not being permitted by Jimmy Johnston to interfere with Madison Square Garden's plans for a heavyweight elimination show, in which the outstanding four candidates for a championship match will appear on the same card in the Long Island Bowl. If Max Baer declines to fight in September or October, Johnston aims to put on a double windup with Steve Hamas meeting Walter Neusel in one of the bouts, and the other bringing together Primo Carnera and Art Lasky.



Jimmy Johnston

Should Max Schmeling defeat Neusel when they clash in Germany next month, the former titleholder will be substituted for Neusel against Hamas. The winners of the two fights in the Bowl, according to Johnston's program, will be matched to meet during the winter for the right to engage Baer for the title next June. The Garden matchmaker estimates that his elimination show will gross $200,000, whereas neither of the bouts would draw $75,000 singly. Johnston thinks there isn't a chance that Baer will defend his crown before next summer. For singing three songs per show at a New York theater, Max is pulling down $6,000 a week, and with radio contracts and other things on the side, the champion is figured to be making too much money to bother about defending his title. Johnston believes Baer is good for at least half a million dollars without drawing on a glove. And besides, Max escapes the training grind, for which he has no fondness.

PARKER, BRYAN IN NET MATCH

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP.)—Donald Budge, of Oakland, California's latest contender for a Davis Cup berth, and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, took the day off today to watch a pair of their foremost rivals battle to join them in the semi-finals of the national clay court tennis championship.

The two rivals were Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee, defending titleholder, who faced Lefty Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, who was matched against Henry Prusoff, of Seattle.

Rain halted all matches except those involving Budge and Grant yesterday. Grant lost his first set in three successive tournaments, but came back to win in hardy fashion from Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2. Budge defeated Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, former national collegiate champion, 6-2, 1-6, 10-8, 6-1.

Kilcullen Sure Of Well-Oiled Grid Machine

MEXICO, D. F., July 6.—(AP.)—John M. Kilcullen, Jr., tackle on the Yale football team for the past three years, will coach the University of Mexico team during the fall season.

Kilcullen's salary will be paid by Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, who for several years has given financial support to the Mexican football team.

SWIM CHAMPS MEET TODAY

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP.)—Jack Medica, sensational young star from the Washington A. C., Seattle, Wash., and Ralph Flanagan, of the Miami (Fla.) Beach Club, warmed up for their duel in the National A. A. U. swimming championship mile race today by easily dominating the qualifying trials in the World Fair lagoon yesterday.

The other four qualifiers, selected on comparative time basis, and their marks, were: Barthels, 22:44.3; Boals, 23:20.8; Donald Woodford, Columbus, O., competing unattached, 23:25.6, and Donald Goulding, Detroit A. C., 23:29.6.

U. S. Oarsmen Win In Races Abroad

HENLEY-ON-THEMES, Eng., July 6.—(AP.)—Princeton's varsity eight-oared crew and its amateur coach, Winthrop Rutherford, a former Tiger varsity oarsman himself, today won their way to the finals of their events—the Grand Challenge Cup and the Diamond Sculls respectively—as records fell wholesale in the morning events of the Henley regatta.

PERRY DEFEATS CRAWFORD IN THREE SETS

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6.—(AP.)—Frederick John Perry, 25-year-old English tennis star, today defeated Jack Crawford, of Australia, the defending champion, 6-3, 6-0, 7-5, in the men's singles final of the all-England tennis championships to keep the title in England for the first time in 25 years.

It was the year Perry was born that A. W. Gore, one of the immortals of the English courts, won the Wimbledon championship.

The tall, dark-haired Englishman was not to be denied today as he unlossed one of the most blazing games the famous center court has witnessed in years to literally blast the Australian ace off the courts.

It was the third championship meeting between the two within the year, and every time Perry has won. He first defeated Crawford in the United States championships last September, then went to Australia and stripped Jack of his Antipodean crown.

Bunny Austin and Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron defeated John Olliff and Joan Ingram, 6-4, 6-1, in the semi-final round of mixed doubles.

Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, veteran French defenders of the doubles title, advanced to the final round with a 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 victory over the highly-touted young English combination of Ian G. Collins and F. D. D. Wilde. Lester Stoefen and George M. Lott, Jr., United States Davis Cup doubles combination, won their semi-final match from the Australian-German combination of Harry Hopman and Daniel Prenn, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, and will meet Brugnon and Borotra for the title tomorrow.

FRITZIE STIFEL WINS TITLE

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 6.—(AP.)—Miss Fritzie Stifel, of Wheeling, captured her fifth consecutive West Virginia women's golf championship today by defeating Mrs. H. G. Everett, of Charleston, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Everett, who held the championship herself in 1929, a year that Miss Stifel did not compete, made a strong bid in the early holes and managed to halve several, but the steady and brilliant play of the Wheeling titlist could not be overcome.

In the men's state amateur golf final, Som Bloch, of Wheeling, was 3 up on Fred Bannerot, Jr., after 12 holes.

CHICAGO, July 6.—The Pirates of Pie Traynor and Lefty Grimm's Cubs were all set to jump off in the first clash of a four-game series this afternoon. The new pilot of the Buccos brought his club over from the home port during the night, and although the Pirates miss the ailing Freddie Lindstrom, they did not appear to be unduly worried over the outcome of the impending clashes.

Single games are slated for this afternoon and tomorrow, the series to come to a close in a blaze of excitement Sunday when the flag contenders fight it out in a doubleheader.

Lindstrom beat his clubmates to Chicago, the injured outfielder coming here by plane after it developed his broken finger would keep him out of action indefinitely. The Pirates' star is a resident of this city and he secured permission to come home to visit with his family. But he will be present with his moral support in the four games.

WAITE WINS ACCLAIM

Manager Traynor announced he would start Waite Hoyt on the slab this afternoon. The move is sure to be popular in Pittsburgh, for the veteran of American League fame is one of Pittsburgh's outstanding pitchers, despite the fact that Waite has been used exclusively in relief roles.

Hoyt's last performance was against the Cubs and he secured a brilliant triumph after entering the battle in the early frames. The success was made possible for the righthander as a result of a stirring hit with the bases filled off the bat of Tommy Thevenow.

Hoyt, nevertheless, seems to have a big task in front of him if he is to take the measure of the Bruins this afternoon, for he is likely to be called upon to face one of the game's greatest hurlers. Lonnie Warneke is ready to go to the mound for Boss Grimm.

But the Pirates have developed a strong penchant for treating Warneke roughly. It was this same crew that smacked Lonnie down for his first defeat of the season, and only a few days ago in Pittsburgh they shelled the super-star off the slab when Lonnie went to the relief of a weakening mate.

SEVEN GAMES BEHIND

The Buccos were seven full games behind the pace-setting Giants as the local series got under way, yet Traynor's players were sure they were still in the thick of the National League fight. They point out that the season has not yet reached the half-way mark and that a lot of things can happen in the remaining part of the schedule.

The Cubs, in second place in the hot race, were three and one-half games below Memphis Bill Terry and his world champions. The Cardinals were sandwiched in between the Pirates and the Cubs.

The Buccos will move to Flint, Mich., for a Monday exhibition game after they finish the series with the Cubs.

Britons Hail Cotton's Golf Victory

GALLERY AT SANDWICH LIFTS HENRY COTTON TO SHOULDERS, CELEBRATES END OF U. S. DOMINATION

When Henry Cotton, young professional, won the British open golf title at Sandwich, England, with a fine 283 for the 72 holes, he ended a run of 10 years in which no British player had been able to win his own national open title, and the crowd went wild, carrying the victor as shown in International News Photograph Service picture above to the platform to receive his reward.

SENATORS SLIPPING OUT OF AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE

ACES' INJURIES SEVERE BLOW TO CRONIN

Associated Press.

If it's still too early to count them entirely out of the running, the Washington Senators' chances of retaining the American League pennant nevertheless grow slimmer and slimmer each day.

The partial collapse of what was an all-star pitching staff a year ago and injuries to keymen, notably Joe Kuhel and Luke Sewell, have contributed to the champions' poor showing in the last three weeks.

Their third successive setback and their eleventh defeat in 18 games, an 8-3 trouncing from the New York Yankees yesterday, left the Senators in fifth place, eight extremely large games out of first place.

Washington solved Johnny Broaca's slants to the extent of 12 hits, including home runs by Buddy Myer and Jonathan Stone, but the Senators never were really in the ball game after the third when Lou Gehrig's twenty-second home run came with the bases filled. The big Yankee first baseman hit No. 23 with one on in the fifth and also contributed two singles to the good cause, driving in a total of seven runs.

The victory stretched the Yankees' lead over Detroit's Tigers, who were idle, to a game and a half. Cleveland took possession of third place, a few points ahead of the Boston Red Sox, by blanking the Chicago White Sox, 8-0, behind Oral Hildebrand's effective pitching.

A two-game National League program presented the New York Giants with a fine opportunity to increase their lead over the three western clubs, all of whom were idle, and the world's champions didn't fail. They clouted Ray Benge, Bill Clark and Walter Beck for 15 hits, including Jim Moore's pinch hit home run with the bases clogged in the sixth, and won 13-7.

Legion Nines Await Second Series Game

The South Hills American Legion junior baseball team, victor over Curtisville yesterday, 4 to 3, in the first game of the Allegheny County elimination series, will go after its second victory tomorrow when the finalists tangle at Russelton. If a third game is necessary, it will be played at Aspinwall on Monday.

Tommy Trebar had the edge in a mound duel with Nick Lukago as South Hills took the opener at Dormont. Curtisville was held to five hits, while South Hills connected for seven. Taylor hit a home run for the winners.

Curley Operated On in New York

The operation was performed by Dr. Stanley Eiss.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: FINANCIER OF FREEDOM—Haym Salomon was born in Leszno, Poland, in 1740, and came to America in 1772, following the partition of his native country. He became a staunch supporter of his adopted country and loaned the proceeds of his extensive commercial and banking operations to the Revolutionary cause. The British authorities imprisoned him as an American patriot, but he escaped eventually. He died in 1785, leaving in loan office certificates, treasury certificates, community certificates, Virginia State loans and promissory notes to Robert Morris a total number of debit vouchers amounting to more than $640,000 in principal alone, which was never repaid. At rate of 6 percent compounded annually, this indebtedness would now equal $3,997,696,000. In the darkest hour of the American Revolution, he also made it possible for many American patriots to continue in office by supporting them financially. Among these were Jefferson, Madison, Lee, Steuben, Monroe and others. No settlement of this debt was ever made by Congress, although Congressional Committees have been occupied with this matter repeatedly.

THREE BOXING SHOWS SET

Professional boxing will undergo a big boom in Western Pennsylvania next week, when three shows will be held in as many arenas within five nights.

Hickey Park, Millvale, will have its weekly show on Monday night, Greenlee Field will open its season on Thursday and Mayor J. C. Gold, of Monessen, is putting on his benefit show, with Jack Dempsey refereeing the last two bouts, at Tinplate Field the following night.

The Hickey Park card has been completed and will consist of three 10-round bouts and two five-rounders, as follows:

Dominic Mancini vs. Harry Weekly, Charley Burns vs. Johnny Durso and Mike Barto vs. Joey Wilson, of Cleveland, 10 rounds each, and Sunny Jim McVey vs. Lloyd Clements and Jack Dalcherone vs. Jimmy Young, of Johnstown, five rounds each. McVey and Clements, light-heavies, are former stablemates.

Joey Costa and Eddie Zivic are rematched for the feature bout at Greenlee Field and Tiger Joe Randall and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe are the headliners at Monessen.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Ray Eberle, the demon announcer of Aliquippa, will work at both Greenlee Field and Monessen. He Fourth-of-Julied at Conneaut Park to rest up for the busy schedule.

Knetzer On Mound In City League Game

When the Immaculate Heart nine clashes with Homewood in a City League game this evening at the Playgrounds, Elmer Knetzer, the veteran pitcher, will be on the mount for the Dalzell team.

Dalzell will have Ray Bond, classy first baseman, back in the game this evening. Ray has been out with an injury, and there is no utility player on the Homewood team capable of filling Ray's place.

Dormont will present a revamped lineup when Mt. Oliver visits the South Hills this evening. The Dormont management cleaned house after that first-half race, and many new faces will be in the South Hills lineup. This also goes for the Mt. Oliver club.

The third game in the circuit finds the Book nine, defending champion, traveling to Frick Park to meet Parmelee.

Max Baer Considers Bout in Bermuda

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—Max Baer and his advisors are toying with the idea of a 10-round no-decision bout in Bermuda next April.

Ancil Hoffman, the heavyweight champion's manager, said he had been offered a big guarantee by Frank Wilson, Bermuda sportsman, for a bout against an unspecified opponent at Hamilton.

SUMMIT MEET TO LURE MANY LOCAL PROS

By TOM BIRKS

The first annual open tournament at the Summit Golf Club, Uniontown, next Monday will attract a number of the outstanding stars of the tri-state district. Vincent Eldred, West Penn open champion, and secretary of the tournament committee of the Tri-State Golf Professionals' Associations, announced today that all of the leading pros in the district will compete for the $200 prize money.

When Sam Parks, Jr., now professional at the South Hills Country Club, was pro at Summit, his best round was 67.

The Summit course, laid on the mountain top, has its fairways cut from the woods, and perfectly straight tee shots must be hit. The fairways and greens are in wonderful shape but as Bob Graham, the pro, says, players with a hook or a slice may break a hundred.

Ted Luther, Sam Parks, Eldred, Dave McKay, Toots Erath and Bob Graham will have to carry the lead for this district, against Rader Jewett and Jules Blanton, of West Virginia, and the cream of the pros from Ohio.

All of the locals are going up Sunday to get a little practice over the layout. This tournament will serve as a warm-up for the Pennsylvania state open, scheduled at Oakmont, July 19 and 20.

There will be a mixed foursome tourney at Schenley Park, July 25. The women's committee of the Wosango Club is sponsoring the affair, with the proceeds going to the national public links championship fund. This Scotch foursome affair is expected to attract nearly 200 players to the municipal links.

The Bedford Springs Hotel again will sponsor pro-amateur and open golf tournaments, with dates tentatively set for Sunday and Monday, July 29 and 30.

Dave McKay, secretary of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association, announced last night that the dates submitted were agreeable to the majority of local players.

BECKLEY STILL IN RACE

The runnerup Beckley team, of the Mid-Atlantic League, was still in the first-half pennant fight today as a result of a Beckley victory over Charleston last night, while Springfield was defeating the Dayton pacesetters. The gain of a full game kept the Beckley boys in the race.

The Baby Bucs, of McKeesport, scored a double victory over the Monessen club in the Pennsylvania State League. The Washington team tightened its hold on first place through a defeat of Charleroi.

NORTH PARK ADDED TO SUN-TELEGRAPH TENNIS SITES

SPARE COURTS CAUSE CHANGE IN NET PLANS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A shift in tentative plans for the handling of the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh Parks tennis championships holds good news for North Side and north boroughs racqueters.

Following conference with city park authorities and with Athletic Director William S. Haddock of County Parks, it was determined late yesterday to substitute North Park for Riverview Park on the list of localities selected for regular competition prior to the special inter-park elimination series, the winners of which will wear the local municipal crowns and merit trips to the national public parks championships at Minneapolis next month as Sun-Telegraph guests.

CONGESTION RELIEVED

Director Haddock urged the advisability of including North Park among the tourney sites and when it was pointed out by him that the county preserve boasts six courts in excellent shape as against the two Riverview rectangles, the decision to sponsor hostilities in the county domain was forthwith arrived at. Thus Riverview congestion will be relieved and tournament contestants will enjoy better and in many cases more convenient facilities for jousting in the hills beyond the Allegheny River.

West Park, of course, remains a battleground and from early indications will gather a large entry list from the hither sections of the North Side. This means that there will be hostilities in the following parks: Frick, Schenley, Highland, Olympia, West, North and South. The inter-park eliminations will be reeled off mainly at Frick, though a number of quarter-final and semi-final tilts will be awarded South, if current ideas are adhered to.

In response to an inquiry the tournament chairman has announced that every effort will be made to arrange matches at hours suitable to the convenience of the racqueters. This, however, must be understood: The Parks classic is a sanctioned affair and must be conducted strictly in accordance with the regulations governing championship play. Barring bad weather, it must progress at the rate of a round a day and this result will be accomplished even at the cost of rigid enforcement of the default rule.

MUST HAVE BLANKS

Aspirants to honors have until next Friday to file entries. There is no fee required, but it is necessary that names be submitted in writing on the special blanks published daily on the sports page of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Positively no entries will be taken by telephone. All amateur net performers, except those having access as of right to club or privately owned courts, are eligible for the milling.

The East End Twilight Tennis League has taken advantage of an off week in its schedule to bring its program up to date through playoff of two postponed fracases. In one of these, Frank Abrams and Gene Holbert kept the Amber Street club slate clean by trimming Larry O'Leary and John Conley of Center-Negley Club, 6-2, 6-3, while in the other Jess Hiller and Ralph Snively maintained Fifth-Shady hot on the trail through default of Don Borland and Jack Baugher of Edgewood.

To the Sports Editor:

I was sure glad to hear the President say in his speech that people ought to get away for a vacation every year. I usually go hunting after the baseball season is over. Been doing it for years. Of course, the hunting isn't what it used to be 30 or 35 years ago. I think maybe I should have been a fisherman. The fish never seem to run out. Maybe it's because the fellows who go fishing don't catch as many as they say they do. The way they tell you about it would dry up the streams in no time.

FANS' CHOICE GUIDES TERRY

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—Much as he would like to give the fans what they are looking for in the all-star game between the National and American Leagues next Tuesday, Bill Terry, National League pilot, says he cannot decide whether he will nominate Carl Hubbell, crack southpaw, for starting duty. Said Terry:

"My selection will depend upon what pitchers have had sufficient rest before Tuesday. I do not want to work any pitcher out of turn even if it is only for three innings.

"I will follow the choice of the fans as to position as closely as I can, but of course the different combinations must be dictated by the pitching, whether right-handed or left."

M'KECHNIE TO AID TERRY

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—Bill Terry, manager of the National League All-Stars who will play the American League's picked squad here next Tuesday, announced yesterday his assistants would be Bill McKechnie and Casey Stengel, pilots of the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers. McKechnie is the oldest manager in the league in point of service; Stengel the youngest.

MACKIE LEADS JOHNSTOWN

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 6.—(AP.) — Hard-hitting Vernon Mackie, a catcher, has been named temporary manager of the Johnstown club of the Mid-Atlantic League to fill the gap left by the talented Guy Sturdy. The latter was named manager of the Baltimore Orioles of the International League.

Mackie, who played with the Charleston, W. Va., Senators in the Mid-Atlantic loop for the past three years, will hold the post pending action by the club directors next week. He is one of several candidates for the berth.

WHOOPEE HOUSE LINKS HIGH OFFICIALS

DENVER, July 6.—(AP.)—The alleged resort in the exclusive Capital Hill section of Denver, where high school girls were induced to associate with prominent men, "seems to have been a playhouse for public officials," Ray Humphries, chief investigator for the District Attorney, said today.

"Every lead I start on seems to bring a public official into it sooner or later," he said, adding that his investigation had disclosed three judges were known at the house, in addition to two members of the City Council.

Although some Councilmen had indicated they would demand the names of the two members involved be made public to clear their own, the City Council stood pat today in its refusal to name the two. The Councilmen's names were found on "account books" of the house, District Attorney Earl Wettingill said, but he did not disclose the names. Neither were the names of the three judges made public.

Humphries said he had been told by residents living in the neighborhood of the alleged resort they had seen so many uniformed policemen entering the house they thought it was a police sub-station.

The District Attorney said married women had gone to the house while their husband were at work.

Mrs. Vera Brinkerhoff, alleged proprietress of the resort, said she was "being made the goat for a political fight."

Four businessmen pleaded not guilty to charges involving the girl. The cases were set for a hearing in October. Those arraigned were George Simson, Jr., 40, vice president of a building materials firm; Carl Meyer, 55, a mortician; John Richardson, a garage owner, and Don W. Mayne, 40, salesman.

SOVIET COURTS TACKLE GANGS

LENINGRAD, July 6.—(AP.)—Russian courts will grapple with a newly developed gangster problem tomorrow, the date set for trial of 57 men led by Peter Lupanoff and Ilya Igoroff.

The men are charged with terrorizing, killing and robbing workers in the Neva quarter of the Leningrad factory section. They are mostly workers thrown out of factories for failure to observe disciplinary measures.

Red corners and factory club houses, where Bolshevist literature and pictures are displayed and Communist speeches delivered, have been repeatedly attacked and meetings broken up by assailants armed with knives.

A young Communist named Pankoff was killed in such a riot last November, and many others have been injured in subsequent disorders.

Max Baer's Own Story of His Life and Loves

Maxie, Dorothy Quarrel Often, Are Divorced

MY LIFE AND LOVES
—By MAX BAER
World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

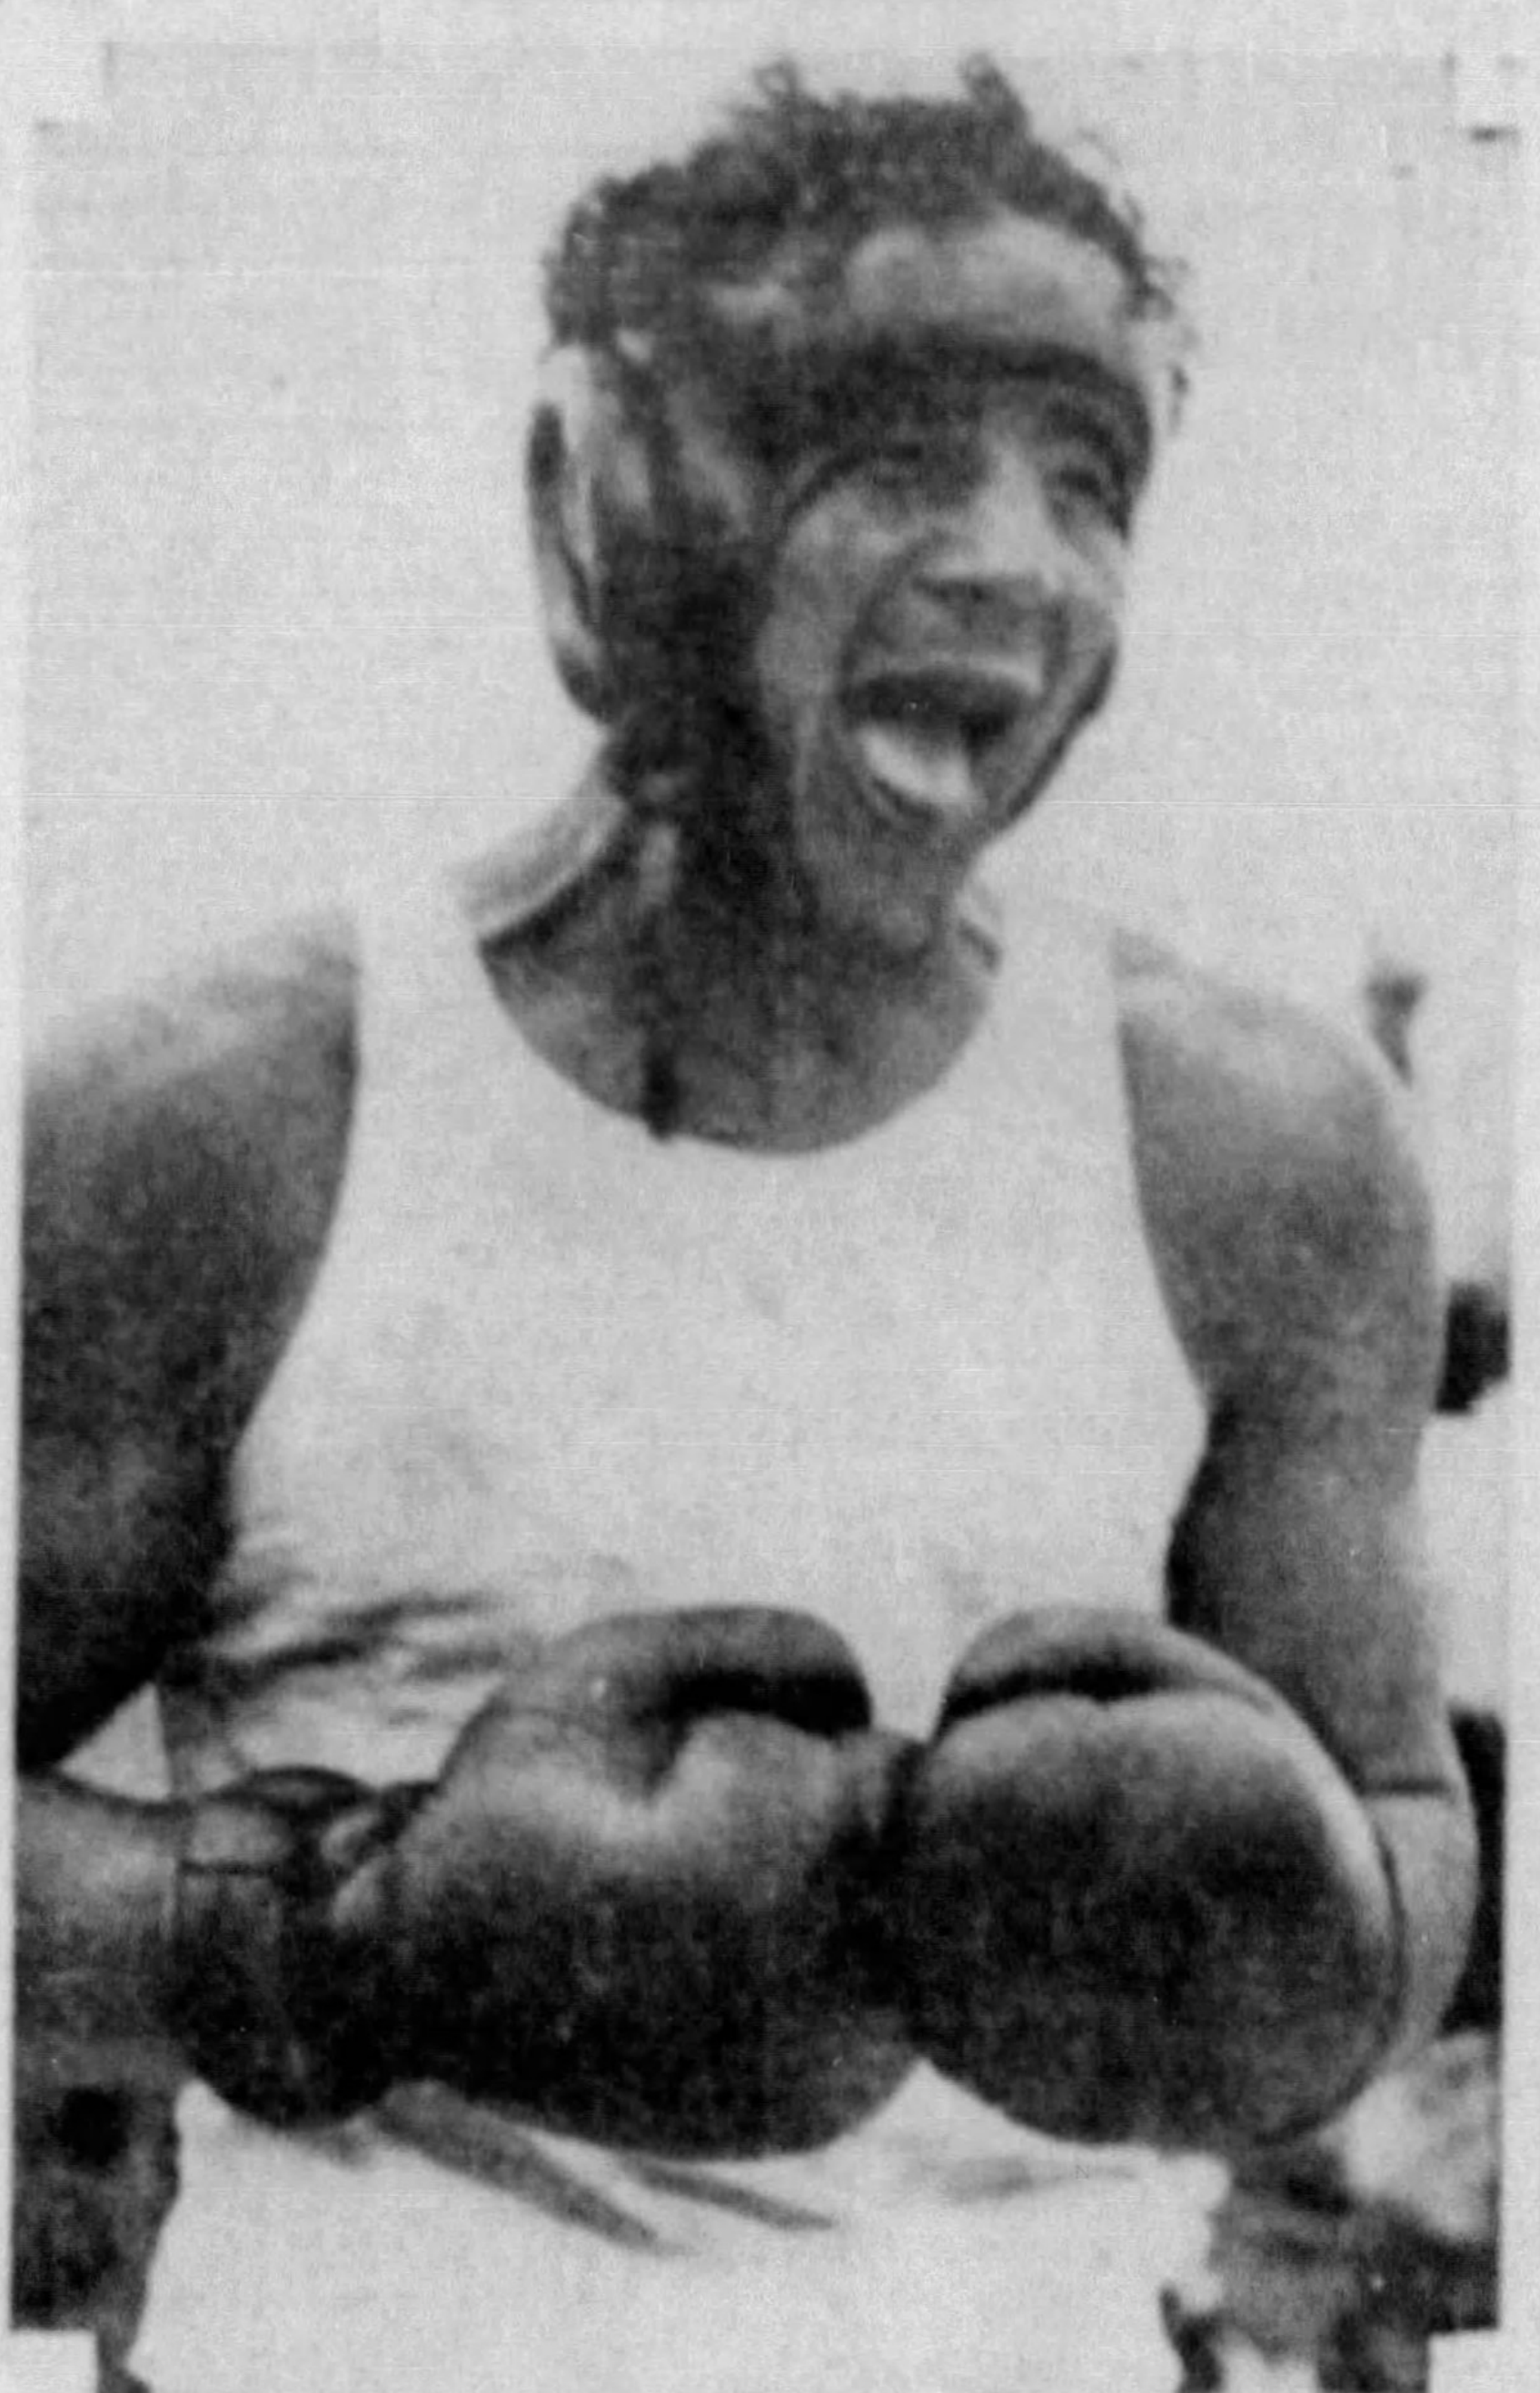
CHAPTER XVII

If my wooing of Dorothy Dunbar, my marriage to her, our frequent separations and, finally, her divorcing of me, hadn't been splashed in newspaper ink from coast to coast, I wouldn't have elaborated upon it so much in these articles.

But it has become common knowledge, like a Lindbergh flight or a World Series ball game, so I'll just pass out some details that will correct some inaccuracies in the other stories.

Dorothy and I had quite a few arguments before we were married because I was jealous of her men friends. When we ended up, it was because she was jealous of me. So we took turns—see? 50-50.

Could I help it if some girls were giving me the "come-hither-dearie" look? Dorothy thought I could—that I was old enough, big enough and strong enough to resist them. But I'm weak that way. I just can't slap down girls because they telephone me or write me nice little notes.



MAX BAER AT PLAY—HORSEPLAY AT HIS TRAINING CAMP

Headed for Divorce Court

I got one note too many; that was from a blonde lady of the flickers. Not a red-hot mamma note, understand—but it wasn't the "Dear Mr. Baer" kind, either. I became absent-minded—which I find is the very worst thing a husband can do—and left it in a pocket of a suit. Dorothy found it—and that began the parade to the divorce court.

Dorothy thought it was okay for her to go out with other men while I was courting her, and I guess it was. But I couldn't see it that way. When I spoke about it, she would get independent, and that would burn me up, and then we'd be on our way to argument No. 57, 58, and so on.

The time I loaded a lot of New York society girls in an automobile, waggled a police escort and we went scuttling up and down the streets of New York—well, that was about the first time during our courtship that I jumped the reservation. She sizzled over that, but cooled down, and then all was okay again.

'Swell' to Kiss, Make Up

I never worried about our quarrels. We'd always kiss and make up—and that was swell. Boys, how we could forgive each other when we finally got in the mood! We were the champion forgivers and makers-up. We should have been. We had a lot of practice—a few thousand

I was crazy about Dorothy from the first day I saw her, but she wasn't so wild about me. In fact, she wasn't for quite a few months after we were married. I was the jealous one. Any time she would so much as look at a man I'd burn up, and want to burn down the building. Dorothy would merely laugh, or, if the going got rough, she would threaten to quit me forever.

Then I'd wilt. We'd kiss and make up, and stay that way until I saw another guy looking at her. Then the same old act would be acted again.

Tells Her to "Scram"

But after Dorothy kept right on threatening to quit me, I got a little weary about it and said something about "All right, scram!" And that was the night a strange look come into her eyes and she demanded, "What do you mean by ordering me out?"

That called forth a comeback something like "Who ordered you out? You said you." I soon learned that you? And I'm agreeing with you.' I soon learned that what a husband SHOULD NOT DO is to be agreeable to wifely statements like that.

When I met Dorothy Dunbar in Reno, in 1930, I was a hick kid from Livermore, Cal. When we were married, in July, 1931, it was a little different. The books Dorothy had given me on etiquette and parlor tricks and so on, I had read—and reread. I got others, and absorbed them. I met more and more people, traveled around, and some of those edges were smoothed off.

Jealousy Aroused

I was trying just as hard to stop making social "boners" in speech and in conduct as I was to improve myself as a fighter. And throughout our courtship days and for about six months after our marriage Dorothy helped me.

Then I, think she became what we call "professionally jealous." When I met her I was the "ham fighter" and she a former moving picture star. About six months after we were married, Dorothy seemed to realize that she was an ex-actress married to a fighter who might get somewhere.

I don't think she liked the idea. I was getting more of the spotlight than she was; people were seeking me out—not Dorothy—and you know how it is with girls who have been stars and aren't any more.

Dorothy began to get a little upset because the girls looked at me. She'd speak to me about it, and I'd speak back; argument No. 747 would start; it would end, and then we'd kiss and make up and start all over again, and be a couple of buddies for as long as four or five days.

I can't recall the exact number of our actual separations and her threas to divorce me. What difference how many imes? We were buddies again when I hit Hollywood to make that "Prizefighter and the Lady" picture. But not for long.

Could I help it if some nice, affectionate girls came along and said to me, "How-de-do, Mister Baer?" I couldn'. But Dorothy said I could. I said, "Say, you're just jealous, like I used to be. I got over it, so will you."

Quits Him for Movies

That would start argument No. 1,982 and after we were worn out vocally we'd kiss and make up, and then get ready for No. 1,983.

All was going along okay—we weren't averaging any higher on arguments than usual—when Dorothy found that note. Zowie! Evidence! So she announced she was going to sue for divorce and name a certain lady in an alienation of affections suit—and out she lit.

It seems that somebody had been wanting her to do some acting for the screens at about that time, and a woman who writes about movies for newspapers took Dorothy in charge and told her suing me for divorce was okay, but naming the note-writing lady might injure Dorothy's future in the pictures.

It was agreed accordingly that Dorothy would just sue me and not name anybody. So the fellow gave her a contract, and she divorced me, and after that she couldn't find the fellow she was supposed to be doing pictures for—and I don't know if she's found him yet.

Paralysis Cases Mild, Says U. S. Health Chief

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—Although the danger of paralysis was described as "numerically slight," surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming warned the public today that "nowhere in the United States is there freedom from danger of infantile paralysis infection during the summer months."

The Public Health Service head said:

"With the exception of protecting children from this risk so far as practicable, the circumstances do not justify any interference with or discouragement to normal business and recreation."

Describing the outbreak in California as "not so dangerous as might be thought from the number of cases reported," Dr. Cumming said protection of children against undue exertion "is wise in the presence of infantile paralysis in any community."

The surgeon general added, regarding California, that never before "has such a large proportion of mild non-paralytic cases been brought to attention in metropolitan centers" and except for this predominance of non-paralytic symptoms, the California outbreak "is typical." He went on:

"There is no evidence of encephalitis or other disease than infantile paralysis being present in epidemic form. The difference from other series of cases is apparently due in part to general mildness of the infection and in part to more complete recognition of the milder forms."

Dr. Cumming said persons contemplating travel to California would, therefore, have "much less reason for revising their intinerary than if a similar number of cases had been reported in another year."

HAVANA BOMBS LAID TO BOYS

HAVANA, July 6.—(AP.)—A number of bombs were tossed in Havana today, apparently by radicals in their 'teens, leading to redoubled police vigilance.

Fourteen bombs were distributed last night and early this morning. Six exploded, causing considerable damage to business property. Flaming bottles of gasoline also were thrown in several stores, starting small fires that were quickly extinguished.

Twenty-six students and Communist leaders, including four women, were arrested with six other men who were traveling in an automobile belonging to Alejandro Vergara, former mayor of Havana. The latter were suspected by police of using the car to distribute bombs.

'Fourth' Celebrator Fined $25 for Gun

Harry Beck, 35, of Collins avenue, explained in East End Police Court today that he was firing a revolver on July 4 simply to show some children how to shoot. He was fined $25.

Use the Harris Tubes . . .

NO TOLL

Out beyond the Liberty Tubes they's some tall talkin' these days—account the way the county commissioners are 'tendin' to add a little toll on you fellers with automobiles fer short-cuttin' downtown and back through the Tunnels. The commissioners' idee is to give back a right smart sum to the goverment, which is all for lendin' the county $25,000,000 to do improvin' with. Now why not cut all the argument—skip it entirely—and do your tradin' at Harris', where they ain't a toll in a storeful? When you signify your intention of using a Budget Charge Account here at good old Harris', we don't add on no tax at all—nary a penny. In fack, it's same as buyin' here fer cash—and still you git all kinda o' time to pay fer what you buy. Makes no nevermind whether it's a dress for Mumsy, a tropical cooler fer Dad or sipper shirt-and-slack-outfits fer the kids—the one price is the only price—no extries no how! Why not avoid complications by using the Harris Tubes fer everything you an' your family wear—from father's sox to sister's scanties? You'll find it PAYS.

Big Banker Criticizes Wall St.

By B. C. FORBES

"WALL STREET is the last place in America to learn anything new, the rest of the country is convinced. Wall street's mind simply is not open to new ideas."

Mr. Forbes

"You must have a leader. President Roosevelt is the country's leader. He has proved a good leader; we should follow his leadership."

"Of course, some of the things that have been done are not palatable to entrenched capital. But half-a-loaf is better than none. Compromise is better than chaos."

These declarations were shot at me, as from a cannon, by the herculean westerner, A. P. Giannini, one of the very few men who ever successfully threw down the gauntlet to the monied forces of high finance; also one of the few men who, having once retired from active leadership in affairs, re-entered the ring and staged an impressive comeback.

ALTHOUGH WELCOMED to the sacred precincts of high finance in New York half-a-dozen years ago, at a time when a courageous leader was needed to clean up a parlous banking situation, and although Giannini did the job, he shortly discovered that he was expected to be obedient and subservient to the powers-that-be in the financial metropolis of the United States.

But Giannini, physical giant and animated by manly western ideas—he made his mark in California—didn't relish being dictated to by anybody or any firm or institution or clique.

He went his own way, won out, and then sought to retire from the daily hurly-burly of business.

HOWEVER, WHEN he saw unmistakable signs that high finance was bent upon tearing down the national structure he had raised, his indignation and independent spirit arose. Singlehandedly, he entered the lists against the financial might of Wall street, waged fierce warfare, thumbed his nose at all cautionings and threats—and won out handsomely.

SINCE GIANNINI resumed the helm of Transamerica and the Bank of America (formerly Bank of Italy) in California, deposits have increased 50 per cent, the Giannini institution has passed in resources every bank in America outside of New York and, if the same rate of progress be continued, next year Giannini's institution promises to rank second only to the Chase Bank, the largest in this country.

"A. P." does his own thinking. He is not wedded to precedent. He was originally the foremost proponent and practitioner of branch-banking.

He observed to me the other day:

"I said to myself if branch-banking was successful in Britain and in Canada, it should be successful here also. So our institution went ahead and established in California 425 branches in 250 communities, which is more than any bank in America had ever established. We knew it was sound business because in California we have a wide diversity of products and resources."

He added:

"It was a good thing for California and for the country that our bank had absorbed a great many small banks. Doubtless many of them would have gone under just as small banks went under all over the country when the crisis came."

"Business, in my judgment, will begin to flourish this fall. Business has persisted in making a good showing during recent months, notwithstanding the pessimism which emanated from the stock exchange, especially over the bill to bring exchanges under control. And remember, governmental expeditures meanwhile have not reached the proportions which they are scheduled to reach by and by.

"Does it mean nothing to them that the Literary Digest poll shows that every community except a few inhabited by the rich voted to uphold the New Deal? And have you noticed that the universities and colleges are predominantly for President Roosevelt and his policies?"

MR. GIANNINI'S final comment touched on a matter which, though widely recognized, was not even whispered publicly. He said:

"This country was on the verge of revolution before Mr. Roosevelt took hold. He has saved us from any such catastrophe. Instead of criticizing him, all of us should get behind him . . . If he should fail, what would be the upshot?"

N. Y. Reserve Bank's Discount Unchanged

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced no change in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent.

OIL INDUSTRY GOES AGAINST NATURAL LAWS

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, July 6—Why is "hot oil" being run in Texas? Why is the Oklahoma production in excess of the federal "allowable?" Why are the big refiners forced to buy and store excess gasoline in order to hold up the wholesale market?

Why is there money in it for the producer? Because the attempt is being made to maintain artificially high markets for crude oil and for gasoline and fuel oils. Because the oil interests, with the backing of the government, are bucking the law of supply and demand.

And a point to be emphasized is that the attempt is being made to maintain an artificial adjustment among oil prices. For example, they are trying to maintain service station prices for gasoline out of line with refinery prices.

I am inclined to think that the root of the almost chronic trouble in the oil industry lies in the long continued effort to adjust production to a so-called "market demand." They figure a certain quantity of gasoline as being the "market demand," regardless of the price. They seem to think that the price makes no difference, and that as much will be consumed at one price as another.

That is all wrong. The way to equalize supply and demand is to let the price be whatever is required. The real market demand will rise when the price is low.

BRINGS BOOTLEGGING

To hold prices up, and then attempt to restrict production and "prorate" the output among all producers, is sure to bring "hot oil" and bootlegging.

But more immediately, there is trouble in the oil industry because of the almost constant attempt to keep prices up for the big fellows, and at the same time to freeze out the little ones.

The little "independent" refiner of petroleum has to buy most of his crude oil. He actually has to pay the "posted price" for his oil. Practically all of the larger companies, however, are "integrated," which means that they produce their own crude oil, as well as refine it. To them, the posted price is merely a nominal charge, and their producing subsidiaries profit by high crude oil prices.

Again, the big fellows are the ones who import foreign crude oil and who carry large stocks of crude in storage tanks. They are interested in (1) bringing in oil from South American subsidiaries, and (2) drawing on their stored oil.

Now the "allowable" production set for the industry is based on domestic production only, and does not include imports and withdrawals from storage. It therefore tends to restrict the operations of the independent refiners more than the big ones. It tends to bottle up the little, non-integrated companies.

WANT CHEAP OIL

They want cheap domestic crude oil, but under the restrictions they cannot get what we may call "Blue Eagle crude" in sufficient quantity or at low enough prices to enable them to produce and sell their gasoline in the wholesale market. And many of them do not maintain service stations to get the high retail prices.

So we find them seeking cheap "hot oil," and cutting prices in the refinery and wholesale markets for gasoline. This eventually weakens the retail or service station market.

It seems to me that we will have to do one of two things: (1) Either let the law of supply and demand work and clean out any excess production and refinery capacity by low prices, or (2) let the federal government run the oil industry, overriding the states and rigidly controling production and prices.

Oil is a valuable asset and eventually will increase in value. Under present conditions, however, the oil industry is not out of the woods. If oil companies can't compete, they must expect Tugwell's "social management" to get them.

Board Bans Speculation By Its Employes

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—President Roosevelt's new exchange regulatory commission today laid down safeguards against any possible infringement of the commission's own rules and regulations by those in its employ.

No employe of the commission, it was announced, "shall participate directly or indirectly" in stock market speculation. To effect compliance with this order, employes will be forbidden from purchasing stocks on margin. In addition, every employe must report every transaction in which he engages within 48 hours after consummation of the transaction.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy explained that there was no desire or intention to restrict commission employes in legitimate investments, and that investments of this character may be freely made. However, these investments come within the scope of the 48-hour reporting period.

Kennedy was to leave today for Cape Cod to spend the week-end with his family and to study a mass of data already submitted to him. Ferdinand Pecora, a member of the commission, was expected to arrive here Monday with his family and take up his residence in Washington.

BANKER SEES OPPORTUNITY IN NEW DEAL

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 6.—A progressive young banker, who has bucked the trend in attracting new business during the depression, expressed the opinion that social change, brought on by the "New Deal" administration, will heighten business opportunities for the alert. He said:

Mr. Rukeyser

"Character will pay the biggest dividends in the next 10 years. The large rewards will go to men who have a real understanding of the function of business and a sense of restraint. The public respects men for what they abstain from doing, as well as for what they actually do. The public is tired of looters in positions of trust, and is ready to throw its business to men of high integrity with a genuine sense of trusteeship."

RAPS LACK OF VISION

And in somewhat the same vein, a large scale industrialist, berating fellow business men for their lack of broad vision, said:

"What's best for the country is best for business. Improving living standards mean better customers. Moreover, broadly speaking, producers are the same people as consumers. They get the right to consume by diligence in production.

"Business flourishes when there is an even flow of goods and services from maker to user. Business is hurt when any interruption in such flow occurs.

"Accordingly, improved sociology and greater economic stability, which are helpful to the masses, are also in the best interests of the profit system.

"Too many business men, failing to take this large view, overconcentrate on their own immediate selfish interest, instead of taking leadership in the bigger problem of attaining a balanced economy under which general prosperity is assured."

ISMS NOW TOPIC

Whisperings about Communism and Fascism give those systems a mystic glamor. And men secretly wonder about their hidden magic.

Yet countries, with these fancy isms, still lag far behind us in average living standards. In tangible benefits they are shooting at the mark which we have already attained, and, from a long-term viewpoint, we have just started to go.

To be specific about living standards, take the matter of the distribution of automobiles. In the United States we have an automobile for every 5¼ persons; in Germany, one for 95; in Italy, one for 119; in Russia, one for 1,578 persons, and in China, outside of Hong Kong, one for every 15,979 persons.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City increased $52,000,000 during the week ended July 3, to $1,069,000,000 from $1,017,000,000 in the preceding week.

The high record of $6,804,000,000 was made on October 2, 1929, and the record low of $331,000,000 was established July 27, 1932.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Total borrowings by members of the New York Stock Exchange against collateral on July 2 were 3.14 per cent of market value of all shares listed, compared with 3.00 per cent on June 1, an increase of 0.14 per cent.

Average market value of all shares listed on July 2 was $26.60, against $26.13 on June 1 and $28.29 on July 1, 1933.

On July 2 there were 1,203 stock issues aggregating 1,294,762,403 shares, with total market value of $34,439,735,843 comparing with 1,202 stock issues aggregating 1,294,379,415 shares with market value of $3,816,513,632 June 1, 1934.

Germany Reduces Base Metal Quotas

BERLIN, July 6.—The base metals control office has reduced the manufacturing quota allowed rolling mills for the third quarter to 100 per cent uniformly, comparing with second quarter's copper quota of 115 per cent, lead 120 per cent and tin 150 per cent.

The reduction is intended to stretch present metal stocks because of scarcity of available devisen (foreign exchange).

Market Seat Brings $96,000, Unchanged

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock Exchange for $96,000 unchanged from the last transaction, which was announced on May 23, and represented a decline of $9,000 from the transaction before that.

WEATHER AIDS RETAIL TRADE

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—The warm weather of the last week stimulated various lines of retail trade, said the Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Trade Review today. As against this gain, the agency pointed out that wholesale markets turned suddenly quieter "and because of the holiday shutdowns and seasonal factors the sharpest reduction of the year was recorded for industrial operations."

The review said:

"While the course of production during the third quarter may strike full seasonal recessions in a number of instances, particularly where sizeable stocks have been accumulated during the last four months, progress being made on new financing proposals may change the outlook in the next few weeks.

"The record-breaking heat wave and the preparations for the Fourth of July holidays gave retailers one of the best weeks they have had in nearly a month, resulting in a gain ranging from 5 to 25 per cent over the total of the corresponding week last year."

COLUMBIA UNIT TO CUT GAS

CINCINNATI, July 6.—The Union Gas and Electric Company, subsidiary of Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation, has offered to give Cincinnati electricity consumers a new rate contract that would save them about $9,000,000 in the next four years, and the new contract has been recommended to the City Council by its utilities committee.

City Council last fall passed an ordinance fixing the electric rate at about 37 per cent under the existing rate. United Gas and Electric secured an injunction against enforcement of the ordinance and the case is now before the Ohio Utilities Commission.

The proposed reduction agreed upon by Council's utilities committee and officials of the company amounts to about 20 per cent. Details of the new rate contract are still to be worked out by the utility and city officials.

BANKS WRITE OFF STOCK IN FDIC

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—The federal reserve banks were disclosed today by the Federal Reserve Board statement of July 3 to have written off their investment in stock of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. This had been carried previously at $139,000,000.

Net assets of the banks are not affected, as reserves to the investment in the FDIC had been carried on the liabilities side of the ledger, along with self-insurance and other reserves.

The board's statement said:

"As the federal reserve banks have heretofore set aside reserves with respect to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation stock held by them equal to the full par amount thereof, the amounts of such stock and of the reserves thereon are not included in the condition statement figures for the current week."

The board's weekly satement shows that on July 3 total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,488,000,000, an increase of $23,000,000 for the week. This increase corresponds with increases of $96,000,000 in money in circulation and $36,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks, offset in part by a decrease of $91,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and an increase of $20,000,000 in monetary gold stock.

Bills discounted increased $5,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and $2,000,000 at all Federal Reserve banks. Holdings of United States Treasury notes increased $3,000,000, while holdings of United States bonds declined $1,000,000.

NEW YORK CLOSE WITH NET CHANGES

STOCKS BRACE IN FEEBLE TRADING

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP.)—The slow-motion stock market displayed further signs of firmness today although much of the feeble buying was highly selective and prices, as a whole, held to a restricted groove.

The majority of traders, while inclined to be a trifle more bullish than for some time past, showed little disposition to take aboard large share cargoes. Extreme dullness prevailed during the greater part of the session. At the same time, despite the lightness of dealings, a few issues climbed into new high territory for the year. It was noted that sellers were quite timid.

Commodities proved no help to the equities list. Corn reacted more than 1 cent a bushel on reports of more rains in the drought districts. The other cereals were moderately lower. Cotton dropped around $1 a bale at one time and silver futures were heavy. Rubber pointed downward. Bonds fluctuated narrowly, as did leading foreign exchanges.

Reports that important interests had been buying leading stocks recently brought a little cheer to the gloomy commission houses that have been running in the "red" for many weeks because of the low trading volumes.

The action of the market, despite the dull and generally recessionary days, was viewed by some hopeful analysts as impressive. These pointed out that the underlying trend, however obscure it may seem at times, appears to be working toward higher levels. It was also recalled that stocks have virtually ignored "bad news."

Financial observers were inclined to watch bonds more closely than usual. The thought was advanced by some that many prime investment loans are selling on such a low-yield basis that institutional purchasing, in a number of instances, has been suspended. In the light of this reasoning, there was an expectancy that idle money will soon begin to hunt for high-grade shares.

COTTON PRICES RULE EASY

NEW YORK, July 6.—Cotton futures opened easy, 10 to 18 points decline on lower Liverpool cables, reports of rains in Oklahoma, foreign selling, and liquidation. July, 11.97; October, 12.12; December, 12.26; January, 12.30; March, 12.42; May, 12.48.

Selling was active at the start with the market easing off to 12.07 for October during the first few minutes and with other months generally selling 17 to 20 points below yesterday's closing.

This evidently showed less rain than anticipated in Oklahoma, while the decline seemed to attract some Liverpool buying here on the differences and there was considerable covering. October rallied to 12.14 with the general list showing net losses of 13 to 16 points at the end of the first half hour.

Fluctuations were irregular later. The talk of possible showers in the Southwest brought in selling on slight bulges, while the buying from the trade was mostly on setbacks with October ranging from 12.07 to 12.14 during the morning and holding around 12.12 at midday. The general list at that time showed net declines of about 15 to 18 points.

LIVERPOOL, July 6.—Cotton, 28,000 bales, including 11,900 American. Spot quiet; Prices 15 points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.26; good middling, 6.96; strict middling, 6.81; middling, 6.66; strict low middling, 6.51; low middling, 6.26; strict good ordinary, 6.06; good ordinary, 5.76. Futures closed quiet and steady. July, 6.43; October, 6.34; December, 6.29; January, 6.29; March, 6.30; May, 6.29.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN 22,700

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Loading of revenue freight during the week ended June 30 totaled 644,572 cars, an increase of 22,700 cars over the previous week, an increase of 2,842 over the like 1933 week and 156,291 over the similar 1932 period, the American Railway Association announced.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—The Pennsylvania Railroad system during the week ended June 30 handled 96,901 revenue cars, compared with 94,604 in the week preceding and 102,018 in the similar period in 1933. From the period from January 1 to June 30, loadings totaled 2,312,628 cars, as against 2,018,197 in the like 1933 period and 2,242,349 in the like 1932 period.

Topics in Wall Street

Street Not Expecting Any Immediate Rulings From New Market Control Board

While the new Securities Exchange Commission handed down its first regulation today, banning speculation by its employes, Wall street was not expecting any important rulings affecting trading practices for some time. In fact, some brokers profess an inability to see how the stock exchange control bill really can be administered effectively until the security exchanges have been registered under it. And the registration clause does not become effective until September 1. Meanwhile, however, the commssion probably could afford to move slowly unless speculation should revive abruptly, and signs of that hardly can be discerned in the present dullness of the markets.

Despite the stagnant pulse of speculation and timidity of traders under federal rule, the stock market has not lost its old habits of peering ahead in fulfillment of its traditional role of "discounting the future." With the thermometer hovering around 90 and Wall street praying for a shower to break the heat spell, Holland Furnace and Philadelphia and Reading Coal were among a half dozen of the most active stocks in the forenoon. The only real hot weather stock buyers have shown interest in lately has been Coca Cola, which sold at a new high for the year today.

Despite the edict of the new securities commission against speculation by its employes, it probably will draw a good many applicants for jobs from Wall street. For the ranks of the unemployed in the brokerage field have increased considerably since the current dull spell in trading began some weeks ago. Wall street employes have been eyeing other fields of endeavor ever since the New Deal began to function or, in fact, since the 1929 crash made the first inroads into the employment ranks in the street.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has decided not to hold automobile shows in New York and Chicago next year, according to Alvan Macauley, president. The decision applies only to next year. Macauley said local distributors, however, would probably hold shows under their own sponsorship in New York and Chicago next year as has been customary in other large cities. While declining to discuss reasons for the national chamber's decision, Macauley did say it would probably reduce manufacturers' costs in bringing out new models.

The stock exchange, equipped to handle a daily turnover of 5,000,000 or more shares with ease, at present is in the position of a muscular Hercules condemned to fiddling tasks. The big speculation machine built up in the past decade barely has been moving for weeks. A stock exchange spokesman, asked what was foremost among the problems of the brokerage section of Wall street now, said it was "finding business." But the exchange, he added, had no plans for drumming up business. He pointed out that it had waited through several extremely lean periods during its existence and left the impression that the exchange was confident the present dearth of business would end in another phase of expansion, just as past famines gave way to new periods of plenty.

The stock exchange is still waiting to make contacts with the new securities commission. After they have been established a fruitful exchange of ideas may be expected. For the exchange authorities make no secret of their desire to show the commissioners all the eddies and swirls of the turbulent marketplace in hope that they will not hand down decisions which will prevent safe navigation there. Considering how much they will have to do with one another in the future, a broker suggested it would be a good idea for the commission and the exchange to swap representatives, with the exchange sending a man to Washington to keep in contact with the commission and the commission doing the same at the New York end.

HOLC AVERAGE LOAN $3,013

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—Reviewing its first year's work, the Home Owners Loan Corporation said today it had disbursed more than $1,000,000,000 for the relief of 341,162 home owners.

Although the corporation has only $3,000,000,000 to loan its statement said 1,510,750 applications totaling $4,856,269,830 had been received. It added:

"A large proportion of these are ineligible, largely because many of the applicants are not in genuine distress and such applications will be rejected as rapidly as investigation discloses the facts."

A total of 17,510 loans amounting to $51,911,690 was closed last week bringing the aggregate to date to $1,027,991,565. The average loan was $3,013.

More than 99 per cent of the transactions were said to have been effected by exchange of fully guaranteed home owners loan bonds for past-due mortgages, the balance representing cash loans to take up arrearage of taxes and reconditioning.

SILVER EXPORT BAN EASED

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP.)—Opening up legal loopholes in the federal ban on the exportation of silver, the Treasury has laid down regulations for licensing of white metal exports when deemed "legitimate" and nonspeculative transactions.

Federal Reserve banks are authorized to accept applications for licenses necessary to fulfill contracts entered into prior to June 28. A second exemption would include metal owned since June 28 by a foreign government, foreign central bank, or the bank of international settlements.

Under the third, mints and assay offices may receive similar applications for export of metal which was imported in a raw state for the purpose of refining and reshipment abroad. A fourth exemption covers silver of a fineness of not more than 800 parts silver in 1,000.

Other special exemptions will require presidential approval.

ARMOUR PLAN APPROVED

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP.)—The financial reorganization of Armour & Co. (Illinois) by a stringent capital shake up won the sanction of the company's stockholders today.

The plan, put forward by the management, received 3,420,235 votes in a stockholders' meeting at the Chicago plant. The company had 4,572,313 shares of stock eligible for voting.

It was the management's second attempt to rearrange the giant packing company's affairs since it stopped paying dividends in January, 1931. Accepting new stock for old, the stockholders who approved were promised that this would allow the company to resume dividends soon.

The plan will let the management lighten the Armour books by $55,370,000. That much in obsolete or non-profitable plants will be written off, making a saving, it was estimated, of about $2,150,000 a year in depreciation and other charges. The huge write-off was the chief goal of the plan.

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"I haven't had any dinner," Allen said. "I think there's a restaurant a couple of blocks away."

There was. It was a small hole-in-the-wall sort of place, as white and shining as snowy enamel and polished nickel could make it. Steam came hissing from the gleaming coffee urn on the white counter and on the wall above the high stools were placards that read: "Oyster Stew, 25 cents"—"Swiss Steak with Onions, 25 cents"—"Coffee With Real Cream, 5 cents."

"I'll drink some coffee with you," Susan said, glad that it was only a nickel. She felt vaguely unhappy when Allen spent money on her, knowing how little he had for extras like tea at the St. Vincent or even a fifty-cent bunch of violets.

"I thought I ought to tell John about you and me before he went away, so I did," she said, taking out her vanity case and powdering her nose and chin. "He told me that he knew about us."

Allen was looking at the wall placards as she spoke. "I'll have some fried ham and celery and a baked potato," he said to the dark-haired waiter behind the counter. "And bring two cups of coffee."

"What did John have to say to you about it?" He turned again to Susan.

"He thought I ought to tell the family about breaking everything off with Wallace. He wanted me to do it before he left. He said he was afraid if I didn't tell them then, I wouldn't do it at all. You know he thinks that they run me."

Allen took two tissue paper napkins from a little stand on the edge of the counter, unfolded one and gave it to her.

"It isn't your family that's important right now," he said. "It's your friend, Steffen, and what you've said to him."

Wallace 'Impossible'

"Did you give him back his ring, Susie?"

"Oh, yes." She had done that much, at any rate, and the thought that she had comforted her. "And his watch bracelet, too."

"Tell him everything was over?"

"He was simply impossible, Allen," she said, shifting in her chair. "I spent a whole hour trying to make him understand that I'm really through with him—and he sat eating lunch just as calmly as if he'd been discussing the weather—"

"You had lunch with him, Susan?"

"Why, yes. I couldn't get out of it. You see, I went to the bank at noon and after we'd talked for a minute or two he decided to go out somewhere to talk over things— But we didn't get anything settled at all. No matter what I said it didn't seem to have much effect on him—" Her voice trailed off.

"You mean you aren't through with that guy, yet?" he asked after a long silence.

Susan nodded. "That's what I mean. I'm sorry," she said. "Allen, you just don't understand what Wallace is like! He's one of these people who really won't take 'No' for an answer—and so I've decided that every time I see him I'll just have to go on telling him that I'm through with him—like 'letting the old cat die,' when you're stopping a swing. You can see that's the sensible thing to do, can't you?"

"No." The word came, sudden and short and heavy. "You could have said everything you had to say to that fellow in 10 minutes. You promised me you would. Instead of that you had lunch with him—and you're talking now about every time you see him. It looks to me as if you haven't changed anything very much. You're still engaged to him, aren't you?"

Still Engaged

"Not in my own mind, Allen."

"Why, of course, you're still engaged to him." Allen got up from the table and walked across to the cash register to pay his bill. They went out, leaving their coffee and Allen's plate of food untouched.

In silence they left the street car, and neither of them spoke until they stood before the little Shoe Fixery with its shadowed doorway.? Then Allen said, "You'd better go on ahead now so that your people won't know you've been out with me." And there was extreme bitterness in his tone.

This was the place, just out of sight of the house, where he always stopped to give her a last kiss. But tonight, although the street stretched dark and deserted on both sides of them, he did not try to detain her.

"Good night," he said, and that was all.

"Good night." Susan started away and then came back to him. "Wallace said he'd be out to see me soon," she said, raising her face to his, longing to have him stoop suddenly and kiss her, tell her that he knew she really meant to end her engagement and just didn't know how to manage the thing. "And I've made up my mind not to be at home when he comes. That will convince him that I'm through with him better than anything I can say will do it . . . . I'll go over to Cullens for dinner that night. We'll both go. You and I."

Allen made an impatient movement with his shoulders. "Why go to all that trouble? Why don't you simply tell him how you feel about him? That is, if you want to—I'm not sure that you really do want to." He sounded almost indifferent.

Allen Sneaks Down

"You know I want to." She left him then and ran across the snowy yard to the front door. The family had gone to bed and the dinner dishes were still piled on the sink in the kitchen just as she had left them . . . Trust Aunt Edna and Lutie not to touch them!

Presently, as the water began to run hot from the faucet, she heard Allen come in at the side door. The floor of the rear hall creaked under his feet. There came the tiny faraway sound of his bedroom door opening and closing.

The house seemed very still after that, and Susan had a feeling that it must be the dead of night, although the kitchen clock said that it was not quite half-past nine. She put the pans away, hung up the dishpan and loaded a tray with the dishes she had washed and wiped. As she put them away in the china cabinet in the dining room she glanced uneasily over her shoulder at the black doorway of Uncle Worthy's den and the parlor doorway across the wide hall.

Above her head a board cracked and she glanced nervously into the hall once more. Someone was coming very quietly down the stairs. She could hear soft, slow footfalls—and then, in another second, she saw Allen come around the turn from the landing.

"Susie!" All the anger was gone out of his face now. He was the smiling, confident young man who had stood in his dripping clothes before the parlor fire a week before and told her that she was in love with him. "Susie, come here and kiss me goodnight," he said.

But it was he who crossed the room and stood beside her, and the instant he was near her everything in the world was all right once more for Susan. She thought, "We're mad about each other, and that's all that counts. Everything else is just piffle." She wondered, as he laid his hands on her shoulders and bent his face down to hers, why she had been so weak, so unconvincing that day with Wallace. . . . Ah, that was the difference between Allen and everyone else on earth: when she was with him he could make everything seem clear and simple. The world was heaven, and there were no real problems after all—

"Even when you're disgusted with me I'd rather be with you than with any one else anywhere," she whispered to him, her face buried in his shoulder.

"But, Susan, we can't go on like this, trying to keep everything secret for months. Let's get out of this mess." His voice was urgent, and one of his hands made a sudden thrusting movement as if he were trying to push his way out of a place where he did not want to be. "Let's get married tomorrow and live like coolies on what I'm making. I'll soon be making more—" He went on, talking about himself as he never had talked to her before. Boasting a little as a man boasts only to the woman he loves. . . .

Caught by Lutie

He wasn't going to stay poor all his life! Not by a long shot! As soon as he became a full-fledged lawyer he was going to tie up with one of the biggest law firms in town—Haggerty, Hedges & Harmon. He and Judge Harmon's son, Ellsworth, had gone to school together out West and they were very good friends. Two or three Sundays ago he had gone to their house out in Bellmore Park, and Judge Harmon had told him that when he was through law school he would give him a position with his firm.

"I won't be much more than an office boy at first, I suppose," he said, "but in a firm like that I'm bound to get along fast. Your husband won't be an ambulance chaser all his life, darling."

"Listen!" whispered Susan, her forefinger at her lips. "I thought I heard someone!"

They stood without making a sound for two or three minutes, only their fingers touching, but neither of them heard anything more than the drip-drip of a faucet in the kitchen and the tapping of a twig against the dining room windows.

"It must have been a mouse in the wall," Susan whispered. "This old house always has a mouse somewhere in it no matter how many traps we set—Oh, Allen, wouldn't it be wonderful if we could be married—" She smiled up at him and he kissed her again.

Neither of them heard Lutie as she came down the last flight of the stairs, her hot water bottle in one hand and the other one clutching together the folds of her red and white flannel bathrobe. Her feet, stuck into straw Chinese "go-aheads," made no sound as she came into the room. She stood just inside the door, her reddened eyes staring at the two figures locked together like one figure, their arms straining each other close, the symbol of everything that Lutie had wanted and missed in her 47 years of life.

"Susan!" she ried out sharply, and the two figures sprang apart at the sound of her shrill, shocked voice. Her unpainted lips were so tightly pursed together that they had almost disappeared. Her hair was wound up all over her head on old-fashioned kid curlers and she smelled of camphorated oil and horehound drops.

Susan found herself trying to remember how many years Lutie had had those greasy old curlers, as people will think of the most foolish and trivial things at important moments in their lives. Her eyes wandered to the hot water bottle in Lutie's hand. It was flat and empty.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

It has been here one day, but there are more performances tonight and tomorrow and so there is still time for all of us to see it.

Better than almost anything else we know, the circus shows you some of the wonderful things men can do when they try hard enough and practice and work at them long enough.

They have men who are fired out of a big repeating cannon. They have acrobats and jugglers who can leap and twist more than seems possible.

And in the menagerie there are lions, tigers, panthers and other animals brought to America from far-off countries.

So we hope you see the circus. It's loads of fun and you'll learn many new things.

Are you looking for new members, captains? Now is one of the best times to strengthen your clubs. Fellows who were too busy going to school to come around to Junior Patrol meetings are having their vacations now. Surely if they come to one of the meetings they will want to keep on coming.

We have heard that some of our members, now that school is over, are wondering what to do with themselves during the long summer days. We don't see why anybody should have any trouble finding things to do during every golden minute.

Everything in the world is worth looking at. You can have a lot of fun studying nature, and everything that is natural. Look at this description one man wrote about the beautiful Rocky Mountains:

"We also saw why early explorers called the northern Rockies 'shining mountains.' The rocks below were yellow-buff, weathered limestones and marbles. Above them rose slopes of satiny green, dipping toward a blue glacial lake. On the green stood cliffs of Indian red, whose tips are stained golden by lichens. At the top were pinnacles of ocher, crossed by bands of white and gray."

You don't have to go West to see beautiful mountains and rocks, fellows. They are right here, too, if you have eyes to see them.

Confession

Daily Short Short-Story

By FLORIA HOWE BRUESS.

Jim Matthews let himself down heavily on the park bench. He must think this out before he went home. Before he confronted his wife, Mazie, with her—her—

Slowly Jim's big fist clenched. He felt the sharp prick of the diamond he still held and opened his hand. The red light of the setting sun caught and mingled in blazing points on the faceted jewel in its platinum setting.

Jim's lips were a tight gray line across his bloodless face. His eyes were like agate, hard, almost colorless as he stared down at the ring. In the past hour he had aged. Looked more like 40 than 30.

"Look, Jim. I bought it at the 5 and 10. It's only glass, of course, but doesn't it sparkle? Silver looks a lot like platinum, doesn't it?"

* * *

Poor kid. If she couldn't have the real thing she got a kick out of a piece of glass and cheap metal.

It was then that Jim had made up his mind to buy Mazie a real diamond ring. He would take a part of their savings—he was sure of his job. The plant would always need a night watchman. Poor kid. She didn't have any fun. He could never take her out in the evenings, and most of the day he slept. A fellow had to get some sleep when he worked all night.

Life wasn't so hot for Mazie. But she had never complained. Had always been gay and happy, singing as she did her work in the little flat.

You bet. The Kid was going to have a real diamond. Wouldn't she be surprised!

That morning he had slipped the glass and metal ring in his pocket. Had taken it from the little box Mazie kept it in while she washed the breakfast dishes. He would have to use it to get her finger-size.

How he had planned this surprise for her!

A bitter, harsh and broken sob shook Jim. A man seated on an opposite bench looked uneasily at him, then rose and slouched down the path.

An hour ago Jim had gone into a jeweler's. "I want a platinum setting diamond ring. The best you can give me for 100 bucks. This is the size." Sheepishly he laid Mazie's—as he thought then—cheap little ring on the counter.

* * *

Speechless, Jim stared at him.

But Jim caught up the ring and strode from the shop. Three other jewelers corroborated the first man's statement.

"Where did she get it?" Jim stared at the jewel. His eyes were becoming bloodshot. Who gave Mazie this diamond and why? "I'll find out the name of the man and—" Slowly his fists closed. Some man's neck was between those big hands.

Jim caught a west-bound express. Half an hour later he went softly up the three flights of steps that led to the little flat Mazie had made so cozy, so cheery. Quietly he let himself in.

God! He never knew a man could feel like this.

He paused, hand on the door knob. A sound of stifled sobbing came from the bedroom. With hunched shoulders Jim crossed the living room to the bedroom. Mazie had flung herself across the bed, face down. Her little body shook with sobs. Jim knocked against a chair in his half-blind walk to the bed. Mazie heard the sound and sprang to her feet. Her eyes were so dim with tears she could not see Jim's contorted face. She only knew that he was here.

"What are you crying about?" Jim demanded.

"What's the matter? You got a cold?" She wiped away the tears and walked to the dresser. Jim watched her run her powder puff over her flushed little face. She picked up a comb, ran it through her short, wavy hair. Her throat swelled as though she was swallowing tears.

"I asked you what you were crying about?" Jim rasped.

"Jim, are you sick? What's the matter?"

"What—were—you—crying—about?"

She sprang to her feet, opened her dresser drawer. From under the paper she drew a little sheaf of receipts, thrust them into Jim's hands.

"I was afraid to tell you, Jim, but—the nights were so lonely—I got a job—cigaret girl in a night club. I got a lot of tips, and I wanted a diamond ring so badly. I bought it on the installment plan.

"Oh, Jim, don't be mad at me."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Gulf Coast

Through the camphor's new leaves, rose red,
The palm fronds rattle as tall trunks sway
And gulls flash by overhead.

And the jasmine's heavy scent
Out on the salt-sweet sea-wind goes
With odors of ocean blent.

The privet hedges are thick and green,
And beyond, the prairie waits,
Stretching down to the sands' gold sheen
And the great gulf's shining gates.

It is all unchanged since a distant year
When life bloomed like the pomegranate now;
The sky is as ardent, the sea as clear,
But . . . what of our deathless vow?

Bob Selvey showed Judge Pinks a sprig with small white blooming petals that he said was dogwood. The judge said it wasn't dogwood. Bob said it was. The judge called in Hon. N. S. VanPool, Sam Hackney and Than Bassett. They said it wasn't dogwood. The Judge told Bob he'd buy him a glass of beer if that was dogwood. Bob said it wasn't the old kind of dogwood, it was the new dogwood. The judge looked it up in the books and found there were several varieties of dogwood. On the strength of this he bought Bob the beer.

School Is Out

We have pleaded for years with college professors not to make too many successful experiments. Sooner or later one was sure to fly back and bend their whiskers.

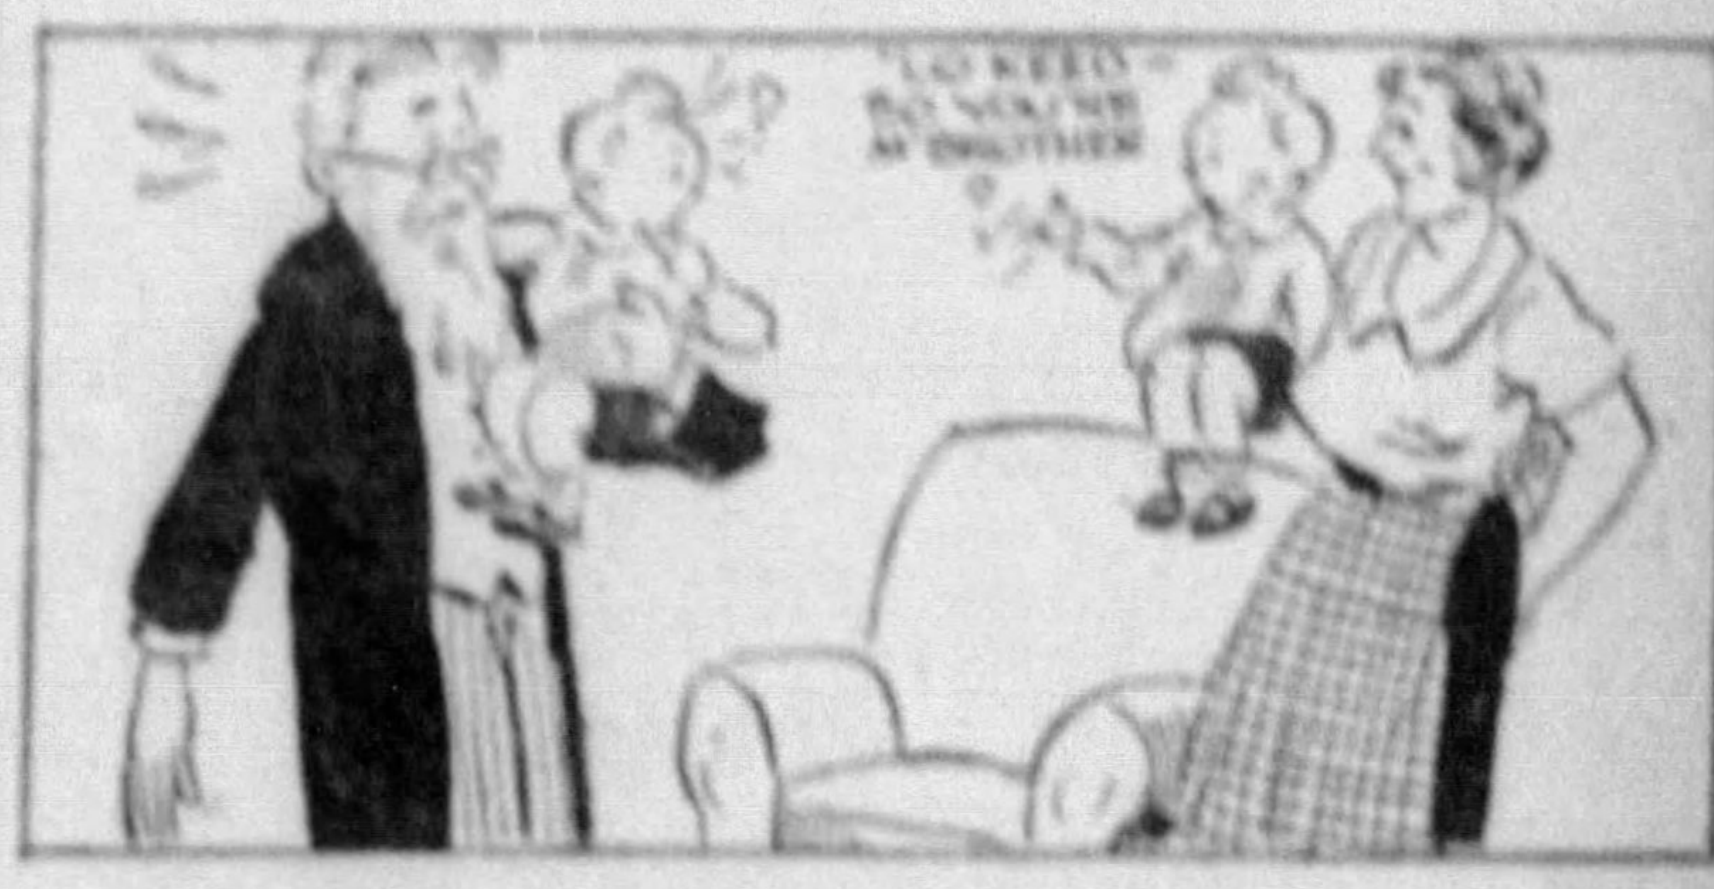
Well, they wouldn't listen to Papa Bugs and it happened. The profs collected two twin baby boys. One they took to college. The other stayed home with its mother. Where it belonged.

The profs raised their twin along scientific lines, curves and academic tangents. The mother brought her twin up as mothers have done since the world tried its first spin on its axis.

The period of training was for two years. The time elapsed last month. They got the babies together for the first time since they were born and compared notes.

The professors' baby was the fattest and best fed. Exploding the theory that our college monitors are starving gracefully, and proving that they spread a nice table.

The home baby, who couldn't pass the college test, was a trifle underweight. He had been through the depression with his pa who is a taxi driver.



LO KEED— SO YOU'RE MY BROTHER

The varsity chick was tops on poundage. But he was bottoms mentally. He couldn't talk a whisper. The home tad could page mama, daddy and anything else it needed.

Possibly, the professors discouraged the college kid from yelling maternal terms of endearment at their own dignified contours. Even, "Daddy," wouldn't have sounded quite formal when broadcast through the latticed casements of a class in advanced algebra.

Anyway, the collegian was a mental flop, a thumb sucker and 26 letters short of knowing anything at all. The home guard can kick him all over the lot in live languages, personality and leadership. For he was raised by his mother.

We knew that the professors would try anything. But their attempt at motherhood earned them a diploma that can be twisted into a very comfortable paper hat. The sheepskin is a yard wide, but clips no wool.

Well, that's over. The professors can go back to their books and rest up. It was tough work shaving three times a day just to fool a kid.

By flood lighting greenhouses with artificial sun rays, and cutting 10 hours off the sleeping time of asters, dahlias, sweet peas and pansies, the horticultural department of Purdue University, Indiana, has discovered a commercially successful method of making these flowers bloom as profusely in winter as in midsummer.

A convicts' union, the object of which is to afford inmates of Mexican jails advantages in the way of asserting their rights, has been established in Mexico City. The organization has 14,000 members. All officers are convicts or persons who have served time in prison.

A six-foot club, whose members must exceed 72 inches in height, has been established in England as a protest against small chairs, inadequate leg room in theaters and dwarfed head room in street cars and buses.

An Edward VIII 10-shilling stamp, 1902, said to be the rarest and most valuable stamp of Europe, in perfect condition, has just been sold in London for $4,000.

Federal Bureaucracy Endangers American Liberty, Warns Senator Borah

STIRRING words—timely, needed, to the point, and appropriate to the day—were those uttered by Senator Borah on Independence Day.

The Senator spoke twice, first in an interview at Washington, and later in a radio address which was broadcast throughout the country.

The New Deal has erected, the Borah statement proceeded, A SUPER-GOVERNMENT OF BUREAUCRACY which THREATENS the LIBERTIES of the American people and the FREEDOM GUARANTEED THEM by the CONSTITUTION.

> "The American people," he continued, "have only a slight conception of the enormous bureaucracy that has been fastened upon them. A myriad of government agencies, officials and hirelings now orders their destiny."

* * *

TOUCHING upon the appalling increase of these government bodies, of which a recent survey reveals that there are more than 80 major federal administrative agencies, Senator Borah declared:

> "The bureaus of the new bureaucracy are innumerable. Their expense is intolerable. Their power is dangerous and threatening."

With a forthrightness that is as refreshing as it is in contrast with the mute acquiescence into which so many of our public men have subsided in their fear of the administration's displeasure, the Senator expressed the belief that some elements of the New Deal are as vicious as Nazism or Communism.

> "These bureaucrats," he went on to say, "are issuing rules and regulations to govern and control the conduct of the American people, and the PEOPLE, unaware of the existence of these mandates, are equally UNAWARE that whenever they violate them THEY ARE GUILTY OF A CRIME for which they can be IMPRISONED."

* * *

CITING only one of the many bureaucratic rules which, according to Senator Borah, "ILLUSTRATE THE TYRANNY OF THE DAY," he called public attention to the fact that "an independent American citizen who happens TO SAY the processing tax is paid by the consumer, and not by the processor, CAN BE THROWN INTO JAIL."

In his radio address Senator Borah repeated this denunciation of the bureaucratic control which the New Deal is weaving around every American citizen.

He characterized it as a "meddlesome, irritating, confusing, undermining and destructive thing."

> "It is that form of government," said he, "which STEALS away man's rights in the NAME OF PUBLIC INTEREST and TAXES HIM TO DEATH in the NAME OF RECOVERY."

> "Of all forms of government," said he, "which have been permitted to TORTURE the human family, the most burdensome, expensive, demoralizing and devastating to human happiness and the most DESTRUCTIVE OF HUMAN VALUES, is a bureaucracy. It has DESTROYED EVERY CIVILIZATION upon which it has fastened its lecherous grip."

* * *

THE Senator struck at the undisputed fact that the New Deal has fostered monopoly.

Recalling the declaration in the last Democratic platform that one of the chief causes of the present disaster was the encouragement given by the Hoover administration to the merger of competitive business into monopoly, he declared that NEVER was monopoly more unrestrained or more ruthless than under the present administration—"with small business struggling for existence against fostered and protected monopoly."

So thinks and speaks a great Senator—warning against dangers which countless millions of Americans are beginning to discern only too clearly.

"A Necessary Evil"

Tube Tolls, Though Burdensome, May Prove Good Investment for South Hills People

South Hills residents unquestionably have good reasons for objecting to the proposal that tolls shall be charged for the use of the Liberty Tubes to help pay for the $24,500,000 of improvements that the county plans to make with Public Works Administration funds.

But inasmuch as refusal to accept the toll plan probably would result in abandonment of the entire program, the wisdom of persisting in such an attitude to the bitter end is open to question. It is a testimonial to the good sense of many of the large taxpayers of the South Hills that they are not willing to go that far.

A spokesman for the group speaks of the tolls as "a necessary evil." The position of these property owners is that it would be foolish to throw away $24,500,000 of improvements, towards which the United States government is willing to contribute an outright gift of six million dollars, just for the satisfaction of coming out on top in the tolls fight. It would be too heavy a price to pay for such a victory. In the homely but expressive words of the old saying, it would amount to "biting off one's nose to spite one's face."

The more thoughtful people of the South Hills are now looking at the other side of the picture. They are thinking of the enhancement of property values that will come with the improvements, and of the ill effects that might ensue from abandonment of the public works program. They see, too, the possibility that popular dislike of the tolls may result in their abolition sooner than is now planned.

Looked at from this point of view, the tolls may be considered as an investment from which the people of the South Hills will gain rich returns.

They should not forget, too, that they will not have to bear the whole burden. Tolls will be paid by many others besides South Hills residents.

If the authorities can furnish assurance that special consideration will be given those using the tubes daily, in respect both to expediting their passage through the tunnels and to their rate of payment, much of the opposition might disappear.

End This Foolishness!

A Single Baby Blinded Is Too Heavy a Price to Pay for Fireworks Fun

Robert Garland, president of City Council, has done a commendable thing in coming out for a complete ban on fireworks. Council should pass such an ordinance unhesitatingly.

The terrible toll of injuries taken by fireworks on the Fourth should lead to prompt action. Let there be no delay, lest memories become less vivid and the fireworks dealers more vehement in their protests.

There is nothing essentially patriotic in playing with explosives on Independence Day. The day can be celebrated more satisfactorily otherwise. And a single baby blinded by a firecracker explosion is too heavy a price to pay for the whole community's fun.

Toying with gunpowder has been shown year after year to be dangerous foolishness. It is time to end it.

Aquatic Sports Demanded

The Sun-Telegraph Regatta Will Fill a Need Long Recognized

The Chamber of Commerce presented five years ago a carefully worked out plan for a county aquatic park in the Squaw Run Valley, near Aspinwall, to cost $1,300,000. The plan contemplated an elliptical boat harbor at the point where the run empties into the Allegheny River—a semi-amphitheater, on the banks of which accommodations were to be provided for thousands of spectators of water pageants and regattas.

Though indorsed by the City Planning Commission and a number of other civic bodies, which recognized the force of the Chamber of Commerce assertion that Pittsburgh was handicapped in business by its lack of facilities for aquatic sports, the plan has remained merely a plan.

The County Commissioners sought to provide such facilities through the inclusion in the public works program of a plan for a lake in North Park. But it has been rejected by the Public Works Administration as not a self-liquidating project.

Appreciating the popular interest in aquatic sports, the Sun-Telegraph is sponsoring a motor boat regatta to be held on the Allegheny River, in co-operation with the Oakmont Boat Club, on Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15.

The Sun-Telegraph Regatta, in competition for the William Randolph Hearst Gold Cup, will be comparable in its scope to the motorboat races held at the cities of the Great Lakes, and will serve to show Pittsburghers what an asset our facilities for water sports will be if full advantage is taken of their potentialities.

The approaching regatta should give impetus to the movement to make greater use of the rivers for sport.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 6.—Thoughts while strolling: Hats are getting bigger than in the Merry Widow days. But there are no Grace La Rues to wear them. Lowest form of curiosity: Waiting to see who is carried out to an ambulance. Vincent Lopez's wet seal look. Nothing suggests an old man like a griffon.

One word description of Patsy Kelly—blurty. Seldom see a chauffeur-driven car any more. Janet Gaynor and Irene Hayes bear a resemblance. What's become of Fay Marbe? Russell Markert, who is now doing the Roxy things at Music Hall. The only thing Mexican I care about is chili.

Don Herald suggests those drawings he makes. Guy Kibbe is the movie's perfect Babbitt. Are there any other female caricaturists save Fay King? Nobody can zoom along the streets like Edwin Balmer. They call a new Broadway drink "the walking pass-out."

Johnny Horgan, Cincinnati's hotel Brummel, now running an inn off Times Square. Anita Loos and John Emerson, seem to have deserted the town completely. Earl Carroll has never walked past his famous theater since it went into other hands. Max Steur suggests E. Phillips Oppenheim.

One of my favorite people—Elsie Robinson. That song 'writers' barber shop near 48th street that Irving Berlin visits daily for a hair brush. And where Maj. Bowes goes for his daily laugh and Ring Lardner picked up jets from the great American comedy. What a howling comedy it has become!

* * *

Anna Steese Richardson, who wrote one of the season's successful comedies, was the only woman reporter at the Madison Square roof garden the summer night Stanford White was pistoled. She had gone there for the World to interview Maud Fulton, who was making her debut dancing with William Rock. While she sat in the dressing room the shot was fired and, rushing out, she saw enough to write a masterful graphic description of the wild-eyed killer being led away.

* * *

Going through my guest book recently I noticed Wilson Mizner had once written: "Small-booked for the 100th time." I never knew exactly the implication until recently. "Small booked" is a police station term for those who sign the blotter for a petty misdemeanor.

* * *

Below Mizner's name is a broader and better jet of humor, a Mickey Nielan caper. It is a circle of pen dots with this explanation: "A flea nursing its young."

* * *

As I recall Nielan and Mizner dropped in at the Ritz together one long after-midnight. Anyway the talk turned to footpads and Mizner barbed the generalities with the story of a long ago attack that resulted in the twisted jaw he carried to his grave. He had been wassailing at Jack's and was wandering across Twenty-third street when ambuscaded. "What in the world did he hit you with?" I exclaimed.

"The Metropolitan Life Tower, I think," he replied.

* * *

Floyd Gibbons, lustiest of the world wanderers, seems to have taken root at last in New York. Not only has his permanent address been the metropolis for six years, but he has maintained the same apartment in a Lexington avenue hotel that entire time. Of course, during the period he has visited Europe, the Orient and every part of the United States, but that to him is just commuting.

* * *

My wife, throwing open the door to my dugout to show a visitor, explained: "This is the love nest of the old ink amorist." That's the kidding a fellow gets for sticking to his job.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Don't Wait for the Right Job!

So now you've graduated. And, of course, you're asking the same old question—

"SHALL I WAIT FOR THE RIGHT JOB?"

Meaning, naturally, a fine position with a fat salary and a swell future. To which there's only one answer—

"NO!"

Yes, I know you think you're ready for the Big Adventure. You've accumulated a lot of technique—you've hung up a pretty good record. But that hasn't made you ready for the Right Job. And, though you won't believe it, the greatest misfortune that could possibly happen to you right now would be to walk into that snap which you so covet. For you'll not be ready for any real job, nor will any real job be ready for you, until you've tackled a proposition concerning which you are, as yet, entirely ignorant.

Meaning what?

Meaning—LIFE, ITSELF . . . IN PERSON, NOT A CAMPUS TALKIE.

Right now you're thinking how grand it would be if you could get a place in some big office, school, engineering project, hospital, editorial room or other highly specialized and lucrative niche. And you'd hoot with amazement if anyone advised you to spend the next year digging ditches, burning brush, hashing in restaurants, swabbing down decks or selling neckties.

If you were able to choose between the two programs, you'd come out ahead if you took the tough spot.

For right now you'll learn more in one day about yourself, your world and the other fellow by digging ditches than you would by sitting a year in an office. And that is the knowledge on which the failure or success of your life will depend.

F'rinstance—you majored in journalism. You're crammed to the ears with theories on writing. But when it comes right down to brass tacks not one of them will be worth a darn to you. For it isn't the "theory" that will make your words sing or snarl or flame—it's the tears you've shed yourself, the fears you've felt, the hate that has burned, the hope that has healed you, the laughter that's carried you along. And you'll never learn these by taking assignments from any editor. But only from that old gal, Life, herself.

And that goes—no matter who you are or what you want to do.

SWEAT—that's the post graduate course you'll have to take before you'll be worth a hoot in any business or profession, youngster. Sweat—your own and the other guys'. The why and wherefore.

People. People hustling you. People laughing at you. People cheating you. People forgetting about you—wrestling with their own problems.

LIFE. The vast, unconquerable, unending mystery of life. Life—that hasn't any rules or answers—no pretty plots—no beginnings or endings. Life that will "just go rollin' along," whether you like it or not.

People—Life—Hard Work. A tough combination that will take all the fizz out of you. That will give you something college courses and "right jobs" can never give you—A PROPER ESTIMATE OF YOUR UNIMPORTANCE—A HUMBLING GLIMPSE OF YOUR TERRIFIC IMPORTANCE.

So—pass up that Right Job and take ANY job that will lead you away from success and security, comfort and complacence, into the clamor and chaos of Life. And then, maybe, if you have the courage to take it, you'll be worth something a year hence. And, if you haven't—it's as well to learn the Bad News right now.

Human Side of the News

The Nudist Movement Spreads, as Health and Freedom Are Promised in Going 'Back to Nature'

By Edwin C. Hill

TO cover or to uncover. That is the burning question, with the sun doing the burning. The summer solstice with its blaze of heat stirs the nudists to a new advance. While they haven't any pockets out of which to pull statistics, they produce them just the same, to show statistical upcurves, along with their other disclosures.

Discounting a bit of the optimistic claims of the sun addicts, there is pretty good authority for the statement that there are now in America about 150,000 persons who have renounced clothes—that is, at such times and places as the law may sanction.

The John Laws are lifting their eyebrows. While the vast agencies of the government are centered on helping millions of persons to get clothes, it may soon be that Uncle Sam will have to deal with the other multitudes intent on throwing them away. Even bright Elysian, back-to-nature cults somehow make life more complicated.

Two zealot high priests of nudism exhort their followers to follow them back to the Garden of Eden. They are the Rev. Isley Boone, a Baptist minister, and Henry Stanley Huntington, a Presbyterian minister.

* * *

16 Nudist Camps Near New York

WITHIN a radius of 80 miles of New York there are 16 nudist camps, with about 8,000 campers. In sunnier climes, from Florida to California, the camps have been increasing in number during the last two or three years—earnest, be-spectacled, middle-aged, bookish people, mostly—building the facade of a new ethic as they seek a return to man's primeval estate.

From the beginning, sun worshippers have rendered their homage to sunlight and invoked its healing and restorative power. Post-war years have left wide gaps in the ramparts of the old conventions, and out of the Victorian age, with its chin-to-toe bathing suits, come the nudists, proclaiming a new heaven and a new earth—"with nothing on at all," as the old pink pajama song has it.

The kultur of the nude found its chief exponents in Germany. Important results, besides merely that of acquiring beautiful toast brown, were declared to follow the discarding of clothes. After the first hesitancy in strolling about au naturel, nudists report swift exhilaration of the ego, a spiritual uplift, a "feeling of freedom from oppressive social sanctions and false standards set by customs."

Theirs is a "brave nude world." A friend told me recently of her first visit to a nudist colony in Germany. Not the mere nudity of the colonists made her catch her breath, but the nonchalance of the ungarbed father mowing the lawn, while mother, similarly innocent of clothes, sat knitting on the bungalow porch—while the youngsters, plump little cherubim and seraphim, played doubles at tennis.

* * *

Self-Consciousness Conspicuously Absent

IT took my friend longer to get used to the sight of nude persons carrying on the ordinary activities of life than to the mere fact of their nudity. One of the characters in that poignant movie, founded on the book of the same name, "Little Man What Now?" says to the hero that come what may in the matter of jobs, he is unafraid.

> "What do I care if I lose my job?" he asks. "I am a nudist. I shall return to the sun. Once having lost fear, as I did in a nudist colony, I am unafraid of headlines."

However, he didn't say what might happen if he lost his job in the wintertime. "That's all right in the summertime," as I used to hear Alice Lloyd render it in that old Drury Lane Music Hall.

In Switzerland sick little children are healed by the sun's rays on their naked bodies. Sun lamps are man's imitation of the great lamp in the sky. Microscopic life swims up from the deeps of the sea to float for a mad, happy moment in sunlight. After the winter's hush, a vast orchestra of life begins its symphony at the swing of the sun's baton. Should not man strip himself of his winter garments and fling them into the fires of spring?

The nudists say "Yes," promising health abundant and ecstasies unknown to those bound and fettered by clothes. But, as yet, the conservatives prevail. Already in the sweep of a new destiny, nudism is fading in Germany. Cults rise and fall. Against the nudists are arrayed—in solid phalanxes—stylists, manufacturers, textile interests—a vast multitude whose displacement by the nudists would cause a social revolution. Nudes may come and go—they may ascend the stairs or descend—but clothes and the sun go on forever.

In my youth a missionary friend of our family used to tell about the trouble they had in getting a certain group of Solomon Islanders to wear clothes. Some of them, groping at the idea of propriety which their tutors had advanced, tattooed little shorts and jackets on their bodies. One, who had been aboard a visiting warship, had epaulettes on his shoulders and buttons from chin to waist.

The psychological and social aspects of the subject require some more erudite corner than this. I leave you with that magnificent book, "Folkways," by old Dean Sumner, of Yale.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Why Men Leave Home

If any woman could find an infallible recipe for retrieving wandering husbands or could discover a sure cure for "the roving eye and the stepping foot," she could sell it for enough money to keep her in yachts and tiaras for the rest of her life.

* * *

But there ISN'T any "cure" for a wobbly heart or a soured affection. Yet, three-quarters of the letters which come to the average woman-columnist are of the "how-can-I-win-him-back?" variety.

* * *

* * *

Some were born that way! Some men are born instinctive rovers, just as some children are born with double-joints or with ears that stick out. They would never stay at home, if their homes were Paradise and their wives archangels. They wander away from the old fireside, not for love of another woman—but just for love of a change. Or for love of adventure or love of conquest. Their real affections may belong to their wives, but they were born with a wandering fancy, a restless imagination, and a stepping-foot.

* * *

Other men leave home because they want to get away from it. Because they are bored or nagged or imposed on or overworked. Or because they have just lost their taste for their wives. If all the bars and clubs and gay spots were closed, they would go to a graveyard—just for relief! ANY place looks better to them than "home!"

Lastly—and leastly—there are those weak-hearted and impressionable men who take a left-turn onto the Primrose path because they fancy that they are in love with another woman.

* * *

But what can you DO about them—any of them?

* * *

The natural-born philanderer can no more be cured of his weakness for women than a cat can be cured of its weakness for cream. Not even old age and rheumatism can stop him for limping off after every pretty pair of ankles. And so long as he can see through his bifocals he will answer the signal in another woman's eyes.

* * *

The man who is tired of his wife and hates his home can only be kept in the house evenings by strapping him to the armchair. And that's not much satisfaction, when you are aware that his spirit is miles away making whoopee with "the boys."

* * *

And the man who imagines that he is in love with another woman is hopeless, just as long as he thinks he is in love. Only time and the "other woman" can wake him up from his dream. Which, fortunately, they usually do.

* * *

No. There is no cure for a philandering husband, you CAN'T "win-him-back." But you can stop TRYING—and get your beauty sleep!
